Media Information

The sports information office at Carolina is always interested in assisting the media with its coverage of the Carolina basketball team. Following are some brief guidlines you might want to be aware of in your coverage of the Tar Heels.

CREDENTIALS: Working press and photo credentials for Carolina home games in the Smith Center and for the December 23 Kansas State game in Charlotte, N.C. can be obtained by writing Sports Information Director Rick Brewer. All credential requests should be in writing on company letterhead. Brewer's mailing address is Post Office Box 2126, Chapel Hill, NC 27515-2126. Requests are screened to insure a working press box. Children, spouses and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association. Requests should be mailed to Brewer's office no less than two weeks before game day. Credentials are usually mailed 10 days prior to each game.

FILING COPY: The sports information office furnishes an ample number of telephones for writers to use in moving their copy. Anyone desiring a private phone line should contact Southern Bell Telephone in Raleigh, N.C. to make arrangements (919-780-2800). Please use Rick Brewer as a contact person for the placement of your phone in the press room or on press row. The Carolina sports information office has one fax maching available on a first-come, first served basis after each game. Please contact a UNC sports information student assistant in the press room for arrangements for its use.

PRESS BOX SERVICES: Press seating at the Smith Center has been moved to floor level for the 1989-90 basketball season. Radio crews, film crews and overflow press seating will continue to be at the mezzanine level on the Center's North side. The Smith Center's press room is located on the ground level of the arena off the hallway which connects the Smith Center to the Koury Natatorium. The press room is adjacent to the Smith Center's administrative offices and is accessed by entering the main doors of the building (blue doors) and taking the elevator to the first floor. After making a right turn, the press room is on the immediate right. Programs and game notes will be distributed to the media before each game. A halftime box score will also be distributed as will post-game books consisting of a play-by-play, box scores and coaches quotes. Coaches from both teams will be brought to the press room following the game for brief press conferences. The Carolina locker room will also be open after each game. A meal catered by the athletic training table will be available for the media in the press room approximately two hours before tip off for each game.

INTERVIEWS: Player interviews should be arranged through the sports information office. Please give at least one day's notice. These interviews are usually held before practice sessions in the Smith Center. Coach Smith is available each week on the Atlantic Coast Conference Teleconference (contact Tom Mickle in the ACC office, 919-864-8787) or contact Coach Smith's personal secretary, Linda Woods, 919-962-1154, for phone interviews.

RADIO NETWORK & TELEVISION SHOW: The Tar Heel Sports Network under the management of the Village Companies in Chapel Hill organizes one of the best basketball radio networks in collegiate sports. All Carolina basketball games are broadcast on the Tar Heel Sports Network. Woody Durham is the play-by-play voice of the Tar Heels and Mick Mixon is in his first year as the analyst. The Dean Smith Show is televised across the state of North Carolina and in parts of South Carolina on Sundays. Charlotte broadcasting veteran John Kilgo serves as the host of the show.

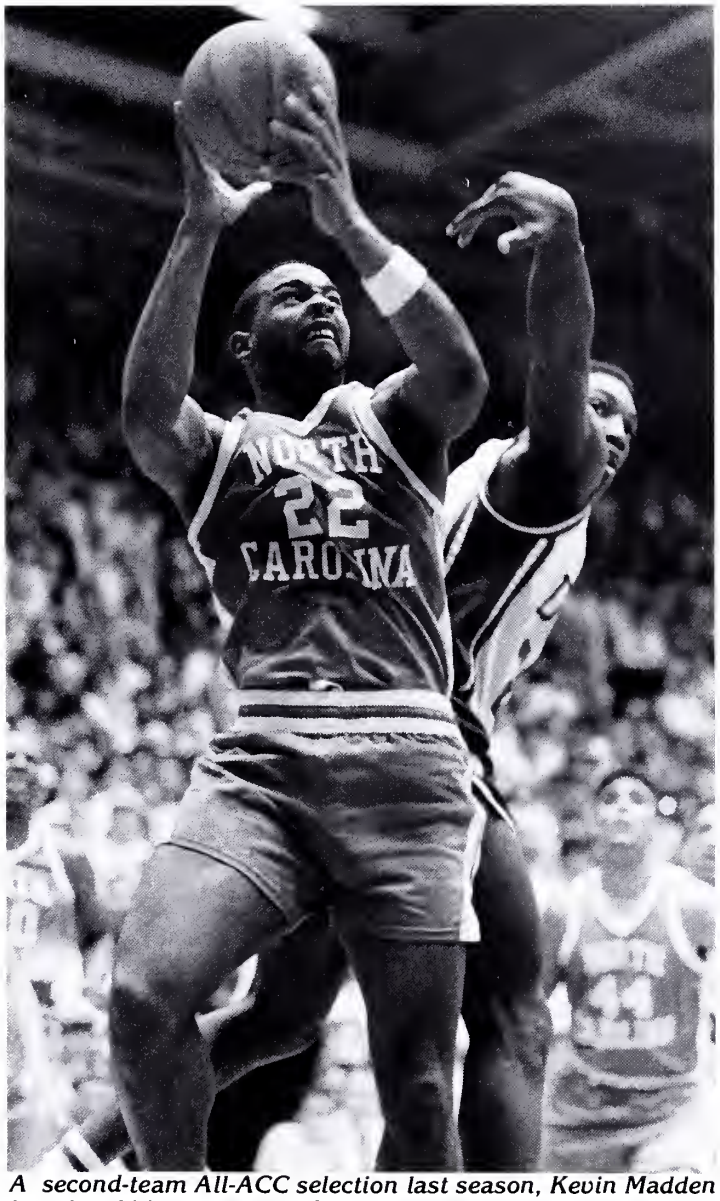
Carolina Basketball Outlook

The loss of three key players off an outstanding 1988-89 team combined with one of the most difficult schedules in all of college basketball will provide a strong challenge to the University of North Carolina's men's basketball team as it seeks another Top 10 national finish and NCAA Tournament appearance in 1989-90.

Equaling those feats will not be an easy task as Carolina has lost three valuable players from last year's squad. Jeff Lebo and Steve Bucknall combined to form one of the best backcourts in college basketball with Bucknall earning second-team ALL-ACC honors last season. Forward J.R. Reid, a consensus All-America as a sophomore, came back from an early-season foot injury to have a solid junior season, winning third-team All-America honors. However, Reid, acting on Coach Smith's advice, gave up his final year of eligibility to enter the NBA draft. He was the fifth player selected in the first round, taken by the home-state Charlotte Hornets.



A second-team All-ACC selection last season, Kevin Madden has the ability to be one of the league's top players in his final season. His versatility as both a post and wing player makes him one of the most valuable Tar Heels. (Photo by Jim Hawkins)

Coach Dean Smith does return five players who started at one time or another last season—point guard King Rice, center Scott Williams, interior player Pete Chilcutt and versatile forwards Rick Fox and Kevin Madden, who have also seen action at big guard. All five of those players saw a great deal of action last year and are experienced in Atlantic Coast Conference and post-season play.

Also returning is a pair of guards, Jeff Denny and Hubert Davis, who saw spot playing time in most games last season. Each appeared in 35 of UNC's 37 games last season.

Last season was another outstanding one for Coach Smith and his squad. Carolina finished with a 29-8 record, was ranked fourth in the final United Press International poll and fifth in the Associated Press poll, won the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament title and reached the Final 16 of the NCAA Tournament for the ninth straight year. In regular-season ACC play, UNC tied for second, marking the 22nd time in the last 23 years UNC has finished either first or second in the league standings. The Top 10 poll finishes were the ninth in a row for the Tar Heels and the 15th in the last 16 years. In addition, Carolina's 15th successive NCAA Tournament appearance established a record in that area.

Without Bucknall and Lebo, Carolina is left with a very young backcourt. The lack of backcourt experience and depth and another demanding schedule are probably Smith's two greatest concerns as the Tar Heels prepare for the season.

Despite the loss of Reid, the strength of this Carolina squad may very well still be up front. However, Reid's inside presence and tenacity will be impossible to replace. Although the Tar Heels did win some early games without him last year, he came on to lead Carolina in scoring and field goal percentage as well as ranking second on the team in rebounding. He was at his best in some of Carolina's biggest games of the season in the ACC and NCAA Tournaments.

"I still feel comfortable about our frontcourt with Madden, Williams, Chilcutt and Fox all coming back, If those four continue to improve and remain healthy, we can compete on the boards."
- Dean Smith

Madden, a 6-6, 227-pound senior from Staunton, Va. (Robert E. Lee High School) had an outstanding junior year, winning second-team All-ACC honors. Playing on the front line most of the season, he was second on the team with his 14.6 scoring average and 58.8 percent field goal shooting. He also averaged 4.8 rebounds per game. And among the eight players who rotated in and out of the lineup, only King Rice and Pete Chilcutt committed fewer fouls, attesting to his improved defensive skills, while still staying relatively foul-free.

At 6-6, Madden is an effective presence inside offensively, but when he's matched against a 6-9 or 6-10 forward, it does put the Tar Heels at a disadvantage defensively and on the boards. Madden works very hard in both areas, but on occasions he doesn't have the size some opponents have. Despite these potential problems, there's no doubt he's capable of becoming one of the ACC's top players his senior season.

The same is true for Carolina's veteran man in the middle, Scott Williams. A starter the past two seasons, Williams is a 6-11, 247-pound senior from Hacienda Heights, Calif. (Wilson High School). He has made outstanding progress throughout his Carolina career, particularly on defense and in rebounding and shot blocking. He led the Tar Heels last year on the boards with 7.3 per game and in blocked shots with 50. He averaged 11.4 points a game while shooting 55.6 percent from the field. A fine inside defender, he was second in the ACC in blocked shots last year.

Senior center Scott Williams, here going after a loose ball against UCLA in the 1989 NCAA Tournament, has been a starter for two seasons. A focused inside defender, he was second in the ACC in blocked shots last year and led UNC in rebounding.

"We anticipate Scott continuing his improvement," says Smith. "He will miss J.R. because they complemented each other very well inside. But, he has some outstanding individual post moves of his own. He performs them very well in practice and he needs to develop more confidence in them. We need more consistency from him and for him to stay out of foul trouble. Those are things he is working on."

-Dean Smith

Fox had a big sophomore season in 1989. A 6-7, 238-pound junior from Nassau, The Bahamas who attended high school in Warsaw, Ind., he hit 58.3 percent from the field (third best on the team) while being one of six Tar Heels in double figures at 11.5. He also averaged 3.8 rebounds per contest while leading the team in steals with 47. He also improved his free throw shooting remarkably from his freshman season, going from 50.0 to 79.0 percent. Still, Fox needs to improve his ballhandling (88 turnovers last season) and his proclivity to foul. He led the 1989 team with 122 fouls and was disqualified eight times. Improvement in those two areas could help make him one of the league's premier players.

"Rick's improvement a year ago was more rapid than I thought it would be," says Smith. "He should become a solid ACC player this season. Maybe he can even become our defensive stopper."

Chilcutt had spurts of outstanding play last year. A 6-9, 230-pound junior from Eutaw, Ala. (Tuscaloosa Academy), he did a good job on the boards with a 5.4 per-game average (third on the team) and also averaged 6.9 points. He also shot 53.7 per-cent from the floor. Confidence has been a problem at times in the past, but Smith is hoping his good play last year will help that.

Other frontcourt help should come from John Greene, a 6-10, 218-pound senior from Raleigh, N.C. (Athens Drive High School) and Marty Hensley, a 6-11, 239-pound senior from Marion, N.C. (McDowell County High School). Hensley has been bothered by a bad knee throughout his career and both have seen only spot action at Carolina.

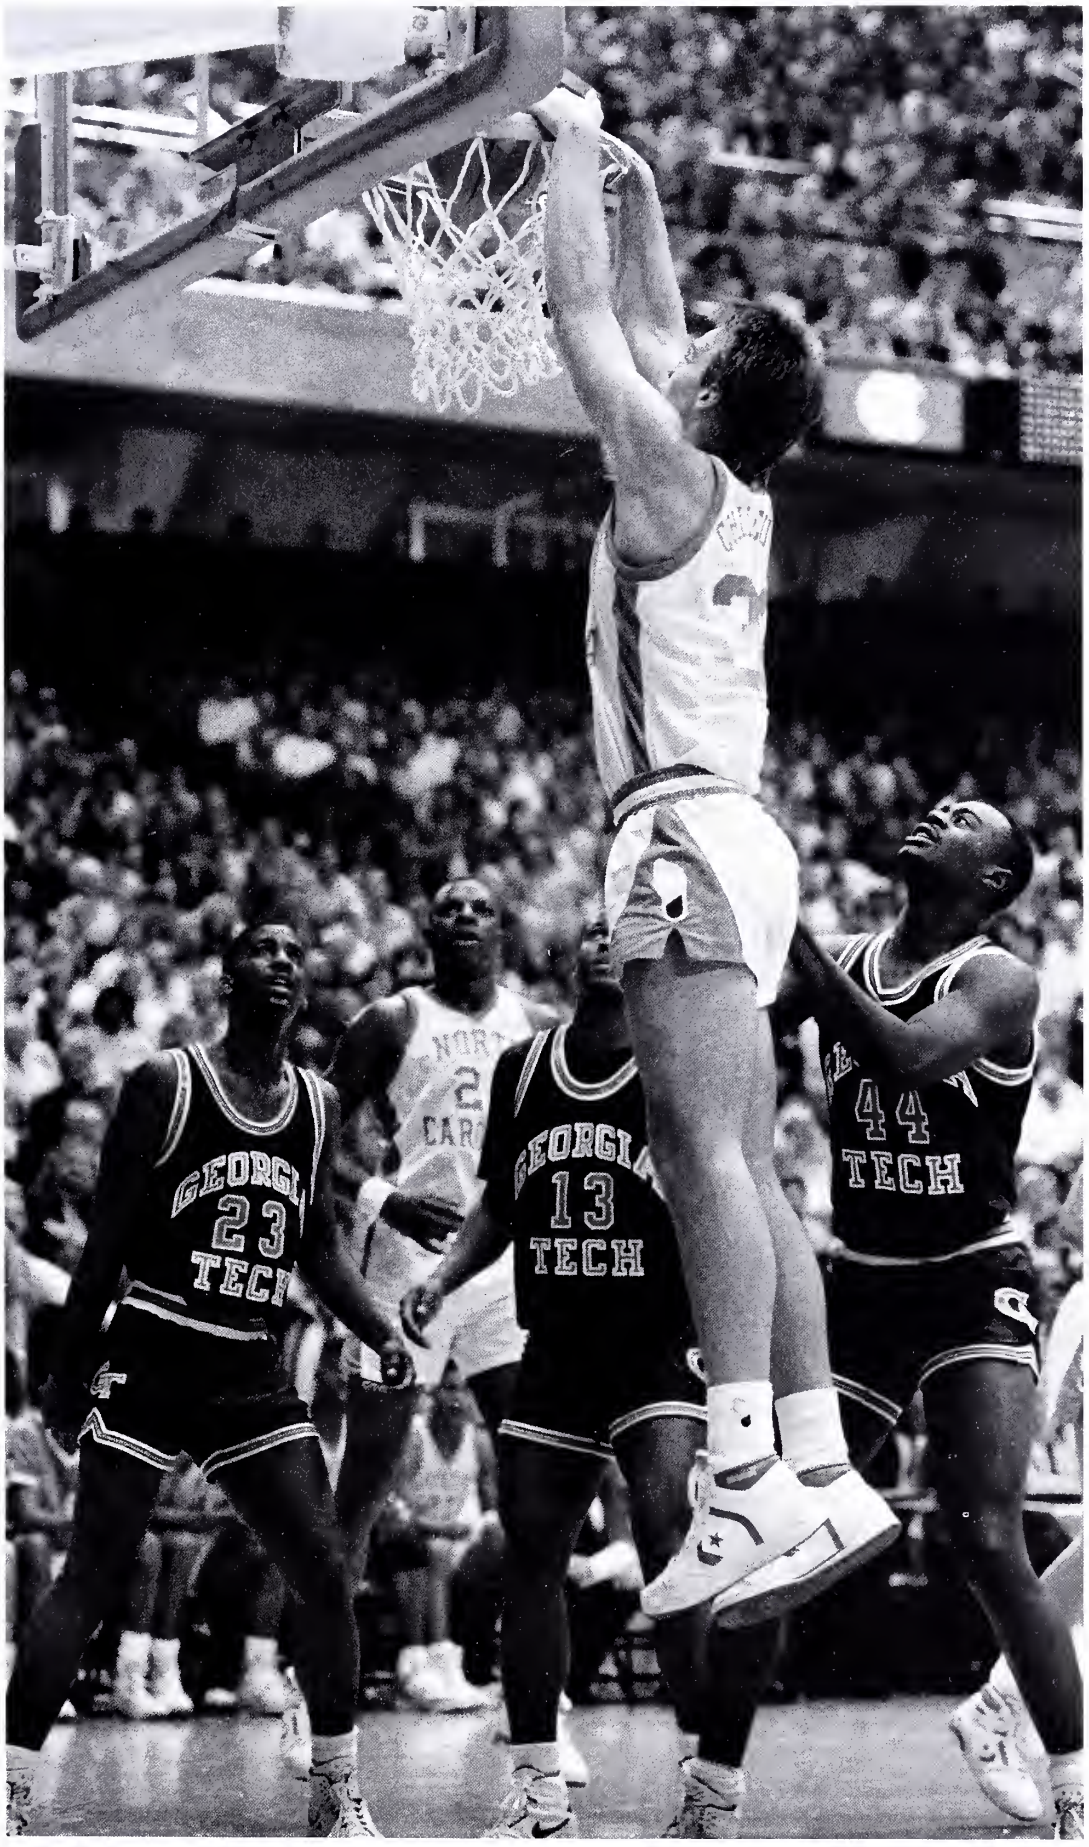
While there is a good nucleus up front, there are question marks in the backcourt where the Tar Heels are young and inexperienced.

Rice, a 6-1, 189-pound junior from Binghamton, N.Y. (Binghamton High School), has the most experience and will take over Lebo's quarterback position. He had some very good moments last year and performed especially well on several occasions when Lebo was sidelined with an ankle injury. He averaged 5.2 points per game and was second on the team in assists with 150. He also shot a very solid 82.2 percent from the line.

The battle for the other guard position is wide open. Leading candidates are Jeff Denny, a 6-4, 193-pound senior from Rural Hall, N.C. (North Forsyth High School) and Hubert Davis, a 6-4, 172-pound sophomore from Burke, Va. (Lake Braddock Secondary School). Neither player was highly recruited out of high school but both have contributed at Carolina. Davis averaged 3.3 points per game last year in 35 outings and shot 51.2 percent from the field and 77.4 percent from the line. Denny also played in 35 games and averaged 1.9 points. He connected on 81.5 percent of his charity tosses and shot 52.2 percent from three-point range (12-23).

Another possibility at the big guard spot is Madden. He has played there in the past and, from an offensive standpoint, would do a fine job. However, he may be too big to defend some of the quick guards Carolina will be facing this year.

A key in the backcourt will be to keep Rice healthy. There is no established backup at point guard.



A key player inside for the Tar Heels this season will be junior Pete Chilcutt. The Alabama native showed flashes of brilliance last season and continued gains in confidence will help improve his game. (Photo by Jim Hawkins)

Freshman Kenny Harris, 6-1, 181, from Petersburg, Va. (Petersburg High School) is the most likely top reserve at that spot, but Denny will also get some work there.

Although the Tar Heels will be depending mainly on the returning players from last year, freshmen could provide depth at a couple of places. Smith has also indicated that to employ the Tar Heels' normal eight-man substitution pattern, contributions will be needed from at least a couple of the newcomers. Overall, this class has six members, although Henrik Rodl is classified as a sophomore and another newcomer, Kevin Salvadori, was recruited with the idea he would be red-shirted.

"We needed numbers because we had brought in only three players on scholarship in the last two years," says Smith, in reference to his most recent recruiting class.

"However, it's hard to say which of the freshmen could be of the most help to us at this point."

-Dean Smith

"For example, we hope Kenny (Harris) can back up King Rice, but we don't know what his adjustment will be to college basketball. He's a good athlete, but he needs to develop a point guard mentality."

Besides Harris, other incoming players are 6-3. 165-pound Scott Cherry from Ballston Spa, N.Y. (Saratoga Central Catholic High School); 6-7, 211-pound George Lynch from Roanoke, Va. (Patrick Henry and Flint Hill Prep High Schools); 6-7, 190-pound Henrik Rodl from Heusenstamm, West Germany, who played on Chapel Hill High School's 1987 state championship team as a transfer student; 6-11, 205-pound Kevin Salvadori from Pittsburgh, Pa. (Seton-Lasalle High School); and 7-0, 255-pound Matt Wenstrom from Katy, Texas (Mayde Creek High School).

Rodl will be tried both at small forward and big guard. He last played at Chapel Hill High as a sophomore, but coaches haven't seen him since then. He is considered an outstanding outside shooter. Lynch has very raw skills at this point although he did earn a reputation as an outstanding rebounder as a prepster. It is felt he is capable of contributing up front this year. Big players usually take longer to develop so both Wenstrom and Salvadori will face challenges as they prepare for the future. Cherry will be looked at for additional help at the point-guard slot.

"My biggest concern is not our team, but the caliber of the teams we must play,"
-Dean Smith

"This schedule was designed thinking we would have J.R. available. We are facing so many teams which are capable of beating us and play a number of them away from home," Smith adds.

"Our goal is to make the NCAA Tournament. We will be a competitive basketball team, but a lot of things have to go right for us to have an outstanding season."

Junior wing player Rick Fox must continue the improvement he showed as a sophomore last season. The native of the Bahamas will be counted on heavily this season and must play more consistently than he did a year ago.

(Photo by Jim Hawkins)

King Rice, seen here in Carolina's 91-71 win at Duke last season, will inherit the quarterbacking role left vacant by the graduation of Jeff Lebo. Rice got valuable experience as the starter at point guard last season on several occasions when Lebo was sidelined with an ankle injury.

Carolina Administration

THE UNIVERSITY OF North Carolina

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was the first state university to open its doors and the only public university in the nation to award degrees in the 18th century.

The cornerstone for Old East, the nation's first state university building, was laid on October 12, 1793. Fifteen months later, UNC opened its doors and, by 1860, only Yale University had more students.

From those beginnings, the growth and development of North Carolina has always been influenced by the University. It has trained many of the state's leaders, including nearly half of its governors, and a United States president, James Knox Polk, is among its graduates.

Now the flagship institution of the 16-campus University of North Carolina system, the University at Chapel Hill is ranked among the great institutions of higher education in the nation and the world.

The University, which is preparing to observe its 200th anniversary, has earned that reputation because of its achievements in teaching, research and public service.

UNC is the largest, most comprehensive institution in North Carolina and a member of the select group of major universities that form the American Association of Universities. Its 14 colleges and schools provide instruction in more than 100 fields, offering 67 bachelor's, 88 master's, 61 doctoral and four professional degrees. In 1988-89, Carolina enrolled more than 23,000 students and employed 2,000 full-time faculty members and 5,500 staff members. Its living alumni total about 169,000, more than 60,000 of whom have been graduated since 1973.

The quality of the education the University offers continues to receive national acclaim. U.S. News and World Report magazine ranked Carolina third among American public universities in a 1988 survey. UNC was listed in the national university category, which is made up of those schools offering a full range of baccalaureate programs, granting the largest number of doctoral degrees and receiving at least $12.5 million annually in federal research funding. In 1987, UNC was ranked 11th among major research universities and was one of only three public schools at the top of the list. UNC placed ninth in the magazine's 1985 ranking.

Richard Moll, author of "The Public Ivys: A Guide to America's Best Colleges and Universities," picked UNC as one of eight public institutions in the nation equivalent to a traditional Ivy League school. He also called Chapel Hill "the perfect college town" in his 1985 book.

Education writers at The New York Times have also praised UNC, including it on the list of schools they call "The Best Buys in College Education." Carolina also made the Times' "1984-85 Guide To Selective Colleges," placing in the top six percent of the 275 colleges rated.

Those honors are just the latest indications that the University's stature as one of the nation's most prestigious research institutions continues to grow.

Carolina received a record $127.9 million in research funding during the 1987-88 fiscal year. The total, a 22 percent increase over the previous year, marked the second time the campus had topped the $100 million mark. In addition, funding from the National Institutes of Health rose 16 percent in 1987, placing UNC among the top 20 schools in the nation for the third year in a row, UNC was ranked 17th in the nation with awards totaling $66.7 million. These gains have come at a time when federal research funding has seen only modest increases. They also have enabled the University to continue to make a large contribution to the economic growth of the Triangle area and North Carolina.

The most recent comprehensive evaluation published by the National Academy Press also ranked Carolina as one of the nation's best graduate and research institutions. The faculty was rated tops in the Southeast and one of the best in the nation. Other studies have ranked numerous schools and departments among the best, and the University's three-million volume library system consistently is listed among the country's top research libraries.

University faculty members are considered leaders in American higher education. They either hold or have held major positions in virtually every national scholarly or professional association. More than 60 faculty members have served as presidents of national organizations in recent years. The Pulitzer Prize has been awarded to faculty members, alumni and to books published by the UNC Press, the oldest academic press in the South.

Students have made their mark as well. Five have been chosen as Rhodes Scholars in the 1980's alone, and 28 winners of that honor have come from the Chapel Hill campus since 1904. The Morehead Scholarship Program, patterned after the Rhodes and considered the best of its kind, annually brings about 65 outstanding freshmen to Chapel Hill.

The 729-acre campus, once called "The Noble Grove," is among the most beautiful in the nation. About 200 permanent buildings include the nation's two oldest state university buildings, Old East and Person Hall. Old East,still used as a dormitory, and Playmakers Theatre, an 1852 Greek-revival building, are registered as National Historic Landmarks by the U.S. Department of the Interior. In the 1980's, two of the largest public buildings in the state—the Walter Royal Davis Library and the Dean E. Smith Center—have opened. Other buildings recently completed include the Morehead Chemistry Teaching Laboratory, the Sitterson Computer Science Building, the Kenan Center and the Public Health and Environmental Sciences Center. When built, the Continuing Education and Conference Center also is expected to usher in a new era of non-traditional and continuing education.

The approaching Bicentennial Observance will mark the 200th anniversary of the founding of the University and the birth of public higher education. While this event will be a time to honor Carolina's rich history and great traditions, it also will be when the University begins laying the cornerstone for its third century of service to the state, nation and world.

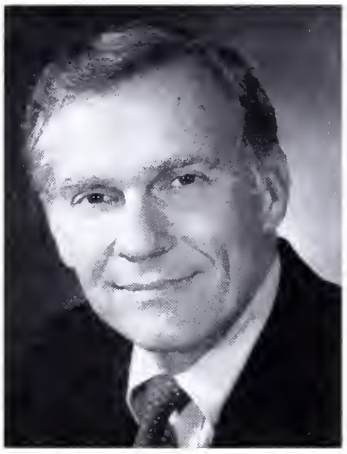
CHANCELLOR

Paul Hardin

North Carolina native Paul Hardin is the seventh chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His goal is to provide leadership to carry forward the University's time-honored tradition of vital teaching, cutting-edge research and distinguished public service.

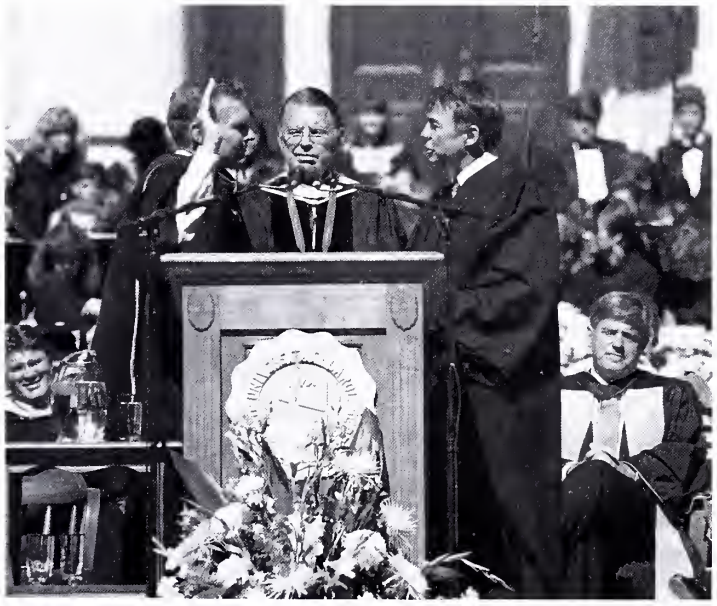
"In the complex and highly competitive world of public higher education, the future belongs to those institutions and persons who command it, not to those who wait passively for it to happen," Hardin says. "With a clear sense of our mission, an abiding commitment to academic freedom, and a deep appreciation of Carolina's history and traditions, we will boldly lead the University into its third century."

Hardin has been associated with college and university campuses ever since he enrolled at Duke University at the age of 17. He came to Chapel Hill in 1988 after 13 years as president of Drew University in Madison, N.J. The Methodist school has more than 2,400 students, and Hardin left after steering Drew toward a sound academic standing and financial stability when many small colleges were faced with declining enrollments.



North Carolina native Paul Hardin is the seventh chancellor in the University's history.

He was also president of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, from 1972 to 1974, president of Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C., from 1968 to 1972, a member of the Duke law school faculty for 10 years and a practicing lawyer. He has been a visiting professor at the law schools of the Universities of Pennsylvania, Texas and Virginia.



Hardin received the oath of office on University Day 1988 from North Carolina Supreme Court Chief Justice James Exum as UNC President C.D. Spangler, Jr. looked on.

Hardin was named one of the 100 most effective university leaders in the nation in a 1987 study conducted by researchers at Bowling Green State University in Ohio. The study found that the best presidents are "strong risk-taking leaders with a dream" who rely on respect rather than popularity and work long hours.

Hardin is the co-chairman of the Japan-U.S. Conference of University Presidents. He also has been a member of the Board of Higher Education in New Jersey and the Board of Directors of the National Association of independent Colleges and Universities. He served twice as president of the National Association of Schools and Colleges of the United Methodist Church, and was chairman of the National Commission on United Methodist Higher Education.

While teaching law at Duke University, he won a four-year Ford Foundation grant for summer study in comparative law. He traveled to universities in Canada, Jamaica, Nigeria and Scotland. He published numerous articles on legal topics and is the co-author of two books, "Cases and Materials on the Administration of Criminal Justice" and "Evidence: Cases and Materials." His other writings have addressed civil and criminal trial procedures in Scotland, executive privilege in the federal courts and college campus unrest.

He has been involved in politics, running for mayor of Durham in 1967 and serving as the second chairman of Durham's Human Relations Council.

Hardin, 58, was a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in English at Duke in 1952 and a member of the varsity golf team. He graduated from Duke's law school in 1954, first in his class, and edited the law review. Hardin practiced law briefly in Alabama before returning to Duke in 1958 to teach law. A former member of Duke's Board of Trustees, he holds six honorary degrees.

Born in Charlotte, Hardin and his wife, Barbara, call several places in North Carolina home because they were the children of Methodist ministers. During his youth, he lived in Concord, Waynesville, Wadesboro, Asheboro, Shelby and High Point. She is from the eastern part of the state. They have three children: Paul Russell of Atlanta; Sandra Mikush of Durham; and Dorothy Holmes of Birmingham, Mich. His parents, Dorothy and the Bishop Paul Hardin, Jr., live in Asheville.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

John Swofford

The director of athletics at the University of North Carolina is John Swofford, nationally recognized as one of the best administrators in intercollegiate sports.

Swofford, a 1971 Carolina graduate, is in his 10th year as head of his alma mater's athletic department. The Tar Heel program is one of the biggest in the South, fielding 26 varsity teams, and one of the finest in the nation in terms of success both on and off the playing field.

In his nine years as athletic director, Swofford has seen Carolina teams win 49 Atlantic Coast Conference championships and 11 national collegiate titles. In fact, the Tar Heels have just completed the most successful decade of conference and national championships in school history. In addition, Carolina won more ACC and NCAA titles than any other league school in the 1980's.

Swofford has guided the UNC Athletic Department through a period of tremendous change which has left it both vastly different and vastly better than it was when he took its top job in 1980.

With Swofford in the lead, Carolina successfully completed a $34 million fund-raising drive to construct the Smith Center, a complex which includes a 21,444-seat basketball arena and one of the nation's top collegiate swimming pools. He was also the driving force behind the expansion of Kenan Stadium in 1988 and the building of a new press box there. He has a special love for the stadium and made sure its natural beauty would not be damaged before going ahead with the greatly needed alterations.

Swofford planned the construction of the Student-Athlete Development Center as an addition to Kenan Fieldhouse in 1986. That building, a one-of-a-kind facility, includes the most modern equipment to aid student-athletes in their studies and physical development.

A Morehead Scholar himself, Swofford has a special interest in the academic side of intercollegiate athletics. The academic center at Kenan is a prototype in its field. He has expanded the academic support staff to function better for the student-athletes who use its services. One of the many results has been the fact Carolina has had more students on the ACC Academic Honor Roll in the last two years than ever before.

Since Swofford became athletic director, a new tennis stadium and clubhouse have been built and an indoor tennis facility is currently being designed; Boshamer Stadium has been expanded and dressing rooms renovated for the baseball team; three new holes have been completed at Finley Golf Course; the football practice fields have been reconstructed and lighted; a new Astroturf playing field installed; renovation has begun on Fetzer Field; and the department has been computerized.

Nationally, Swofford was appointed to the NCAA Football Television Committee in 1982 and was named its chairman in 1984. He handled the committee during the stormy dispute over football television rights. A past chairman of the NCAA Communications Committee, he is now chair of the Special Events/Post-Season Bowl Committee. He served as chairman of the ACC Television Committee when the current basketball contract was signed. This is generally considered to be the most lucrative regional television agreement in college sports. He has just finished two years as chairman of the ACC athletic directors.

These accomplishments have not gone unnoticed. In a 1986 Arizona Republic poll of athletic personnel across the country, he was chosen one of the top three athletic directors in the nation. He has elected to turn down several other prominent athletic director positions, as well as inquiries regarding being a conference commissioner, to remain in Chapel Hill.

The Swofford Family: Autumn, Becky, Chad and John.

A native of North Wilkesboro, N.C., Swofford was a two-time All-State football player and a three-sport star at Wilkes Central High School. An honor student in high school, he majored in psychology and industrial relations at Carolina.

Swofford played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. Those last two teams went to bowl games. He tied a then-school record against Vanderbilt in 1969 by throwing three touchdown passes in one game.

He was named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus.

In 1973, he earned a master's in athletic administration at Ohio University. In his time there Swofford served as a graduate assistant to the assistant business manager of athletics.

From 1973 to 1976, he was athletic ticket manager and assistant to the director of athletic facilities at the University of Virginia. He returned to Carolina in May 1976 as assistant athletic director and business manager, handling all the athletic department's business affairs.

Although he remained assistant athletic director, Swofford dropped the business manager title and was named assistant executive vice-president of the Educational Foundation in January 1979. In that job, he was in charge of the overall financial structure of the athletic department. His position with the Educational Foundation involved general office procedures and fund-raising. He then replaced Bill Cobey as athletic director on May 1, 1980.

Swofford is a member of the executive committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics and is on the alumni advisory board for the Ohio University Sports Administration program. He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Ohio University in 1984. He has been inducted into the Order of the Golden Fleece, Carolina's highest honorary society.

Swofford serves on the board of directors of the Chapel Hill Ronald McDonald House and North Carolina National Bank in Chapel Hill. He also was on the board of directors for North Carolina Amateur Sports which brought the 1987 U.S. Olympic Festival to this area.

A regular jogger, Swofford enjoys reading, golf and tennis. He is married to the former Becky Owens of North Wilkesboro. They have two children, Autumn and Chad.

Dean Smith

Choosing the greatest of University of North Carolina Head Coach Dean Smith's accomplishments is not an altogether simple task. As he enters his 29th season as Carolina's head basketball coach, Smith has compiled a remarkable list of achievements which prove his program is one of the best in college history. Just a sampling of his Tar Heels' accomplishments shows why it is so difficult to select one as the most significant.

Carolina has finished in the Top 10 of both major wire service polls each of the last nine seasons. No other team has come close to accomplishing that feat in the same period. Georgetown and Kentucky were next with five Top 10 appearances each in that span. Syracuse has the second-longest current string with four straight appearances. Only UCLA has had a longer streak of Top 10 appearances in college basketball history with 13 (1967-79).

Smith has led the Tar Heels to the NCAA Tournament 15 consecutive times, an NCAA record, and UNC's current string of nine straight trips to the NCAA Final 16 is the longest in the nation by a wide margin. Conference rival Duke has the second longest current string with only four.

Upon defeating UCLA in the NCAA Tournament Southeast Regional last season, the Tar Heels handed their coach his 667th career win. That ties him with another coaching legend—former Bruin mentor John Wooden—for sixth place on the all-time victory list.

Moreso, 281 of Smith's career wins came during the decade of the 1980's as Carolina posted a phenomenal .817 winning percentage—best in the land.

It is this astounding consistency on the court, coupled with a sparkling 97.7 percent graduation rate among his Tar Heel players, including a 100% rate for the lettermen since 1978, which makes Dean Smith one of the most respected and admired coaches in the history of college basketball. Success, it seems, is forever in his grasp.

Head Coach Dean Smith

In Smith's 28 seasons as head of Carolina hoop fortunes, the Tar Heels have established a record that is unequalled in the game today. His teams have won 667 and lost just 190, an amazing 77.8 percent success story, especially against the tough schedule UNC plays every season.

Numbers, however, fail to fully tell the extent of Smith's respect in the coaching fraternity, but the results of a 1986 Dallas Morning News poll of college head coaches reveal such admiration. In a survey of head coaches at the NCAA Final Four, Smith received 49 votes as the nation's top collegiate coach to 33 for Indiana's Bobby Knight. No other coach had more than 20 votes.

Smith's Tar Heels have won at least 27 games each of the past nine years, and they have also recorded the most victories in the NCAA Tournament in the 1980's, a testament to Smith's ability in a so-called tournament sport. It's these sterling credentials which make his coaching peers rave.

"I think he is the number one guy in America," said then Michigan coach and current Arizona State mentor Bill Frieder after his Wolverines had been bounced out of the 1987 NCAA's by Carolina. "He's always there. It isn't like Louisville or Villanova, where they win it one year and they're way down the next. Even Indiana finished way down in our league a couple of years ago. But with Dean and Carolina, year after year, they're there."

California coach Lou Campanelli shares the same respect Frieder has for Smith. "When you play against North Carolina and Dean Smith, that's the best," he said after his James Madison Dukes lost to UNC in the 1983 NCAA Tournament's second round. "That's the epitome of college basketball. They represent everything you want—dedication, class, attitude. As we built our program at James Madison, we've paid a lot of attention to that. If that reflects in our style of play, that we resemble North Carolina, then I consider that a compliment."

Smith-directed teams have won championships at every level, including an NCAA championship in 1982, a National Invitation Tournament title in 1971 and a gold medal at the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal. Only two other coaches in history have duplicated that troika—Pete Newell of California and Knight.

Smith, who played for the legendary Phog Allen at Kansas in the early 1950's, is also one of only two men, along with Knight, to both play on and coach an NCAA championship team. Smith was a member of the KU squad that won college basketball's top prize in 1952 and finished second in 1953, losing to Indiana by a single point.

Smith and his teams are certainly no strangers to postseason play, as late winter and early spring in the Smith household have for 23 years meant but one thing—"Tournament Time." Carolina has had one of the most amazing records in postseason play under Smith, especially considering the rash of late-season injuries which have struck some of UNC's most promising teams.

Under Smith's guidance, the Tar Heels have made seven trips to the Final Four, second only to UCLA's Wooden, who took the Bruins of the '60s and '70s to 12 Final Fours. Wooden and Smith are also the winningest coaches in NCAA postseason history. Wooden had 47 tournament victories, while Smith ranks second with 41. Louisville's Denny Crum is third with 31.

During the past 23 seasons, Smith's Tar Heels have been among the most dominant teams in the game. Carolina has a record of 601-143 in that span, winning 80.7 percent of its games—an average record of 26-6 per year. No shool has won more games in that time.

Incredibly, Carolina has been in the Top 10 14 of the last 15 years, while no other NCAA school has even been in the Top 10 of either poll for the last five years in succession. Also, the Tar Heels have won at least 20 games for 19 consecutive years, the longest such streak in college basketball history. Smith has had 17 seasons in which his teams have won at least 25 games, more than any other college coach. By comparison, Wooden, in second place, had 11 seasons of at least 25 victories.

Coach Smith's gifts go far beyond his basketball-coaching ability as he is a popular speaker at basketball clinics and with alumni groups. He also has been a media favorite during his 28-year tenure in Chapel Hill. (Photo by Robert Crawford)

A highlight of Smith's coaching career at Carolina came in the form of the NCAA championship in 1982. Smith's Tar Heels, who ended the year with a 32-2 record, defeated Georgetown, 63-62, in one of the most exciting and well-played championship games of all time.

Smith's teams have also been incredibly dominant in Atlantic Coast Conference play over the years. The Tar Heels have finished at least third in the ACC standings for 25 successive seasons. That includes a 19-year stretch (1967-85) in which Carolina finished first or second in the league standings each season. In fact, Carolina has finished in the top two of the league 22 of the last 23 years, with the only exception being in 1986 when the Tar Heels were third in the ACC, but eighth in the nation.

In the last 23 seasons, UNC has won 15 league regular-season crowns, 10 ACC Tournament titles and has won either the ACC's regular-season title or the tournament crown in 18 of those 23 years. In addition, the Tar Heels have made 19 NCAA Tournament appearances and four NIT trips during the 23-year span.

Success like that was one of the reasons Smith was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in 1983. He had been so honored in the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame two years earlier. Such tributes are nothing new to Smith, as is the praise he receives from his colleagues.

Utah Head Coach Rick Majerus commented on Smith when one of Majerus' recruits (during his tenure at Marquette), Joe Wolf, announced his intentions to come to Chapel Hill. "Joe made a good choice. North Carolina may very well be the best program in the country and Dean Smith may very well be the best coach of all time."

Coaches have made similar comments in the past about the Tar Heels' consistency, the integrity of the program and the academic competence of Smith's players. Nevada-Reno coach Len Stevens praised Smith before the Wolf Pack's game with the Tar Heels two years ago. "They're not a team of basketball players," Stevens said. "They're a team of true student-athletes. That's why they have always been so successful. They have quality people, not just quality athletes. Some people have had cycles of success that have lasted three, four or five years. Their cycle has lasted from the beginning of time."

A few years ago, Virginia coach Terry Holland spoke about Carolina's consistency in the ACC. "Because of the league we're in, it's difficult to stay at the top every year," said Holland. "Only one team, North Carolina, has been able to do that. The rest of us have a couple of good years, then we have to fight to put it back together."

One of Smith's best-known accomplishments actually came somewhere other than at Carolina. In 1976, Smith guided the U.S. Olympic Team to the gold medal at the Montreal Summer Olympics, sweeping through the tournament undefeated. The '76 squad, in which Smith molded a group of college all-stars into a team in a few weeks, faced the pressure of regaining the gold medal the Americans lost controversially in 1972 in Munich. Emphasizing a tough pressure defense and a fast-breaking style of attack, the Americans returned the U.S. to the top of the international game. Four of Smith's Tar Heels played key roles in that Olympic triumph—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. Smith has now had players on the last seven Olympic teams, dating back to the 1964 Tokyo Games. In addition to the 1976 quartet, there were Larry Brown in 1964, Charlie Scott in 1968, Bobby Jones in 1972, Al Wood in 1980, Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins in 1984 and J. R. Reid in 1988.

Smith has accomplished all his success by utilizing a tremendous rapport he has with his players, a masterful teaching ability and a style of play which produces victories.

Former Marquette coach Al McGuire may have put it best when he said, "If anyone was ever born to be a coach, it's Dean Smith. He's the Jack Armstrong-type person."

Smith's teams in Chapel Hill have been characterized by their unselfish play, great teamwork and tenacious man-to-man defense. Although the Tar Heels specialize in a whirlwind, fast-breaking offense, they also add a disciplined attack, ranking high annually among national field goal percentage leaders.

Among Smith's many innovations are the run-and-jump defense, the mixing of pressure defenses, the point zone, team huddles at the foul line, the free-lance passing game, the four corners offense and the scramble defense.

"Dean is one of the most organized and brilliant minds that I've ever met in basketball," says Georgetown coach John Thompson, coach of the 1988 U.S. Olympians. "He shared ideas and thoughts and philosophies with me that people just don't share with people, and I will always be grateful and respect him for that. He did me a tremendous favor. One of the greatest gifts you can share with somebody is the knowledge that you have."

Smith has shared his secrets of the game with a talented group of assistants, as well. Former Tar Heel player and assistant Larry Brown led the Kansas Jayhawks to the NCAA championship in 1988 and currently is head coach of the San Antonio Spurs in the NBA. One of UNC's assistants two years ago, Roy Williams, took over at Kansas after Brown's departure. Two of Smith's former assistants, John Lotz and Kenny Rosemond, left Carolina to take head coaching jobs in the Southeastern Conference at Florida and Georgia, respectively. Eddie Fogler, another player and coach under Smith at Carolina, rebuilt Wichita State's program into a national contender after taking over the Shockers' top spot in 1986. He moved on to the head coaching job at Vanderbilt last spring.

Smith's talents do not lie solely in tutoring quality college coaches, as evidenced by the number of outstanding players who have gone on to professional careers. In Smith's 28-year tenure, 38 of his players have gone on to play pro basketball in this country and many more have played in European professional leagues.

Seven of Smith's players have won rookie-of-the-year honors—Billy Cunningham, Charlie Scott, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Walter Davis, Phil Ford and Michael Jordan. In 1988, Jordan swept the NBA's top awards, being named the NBA Most Valuable Player and the Defensive Player-of-the-Year in the same season. Jordan also won MVP honors at the mid-season All-Star Game. Carolina grads thrived all season long in 1988 as James Worthy won his third NBA title with the Los Angeles Lakers and was named the Most Valuable Player of the 1988 NBA Finals and Doug Moe of the Denver Nuggets was named NBA Coach-of-the-Year.

Former Chicago Bulls coach Kevin Loughery credits Smith with the manner in which Jordan has handled his incredible popularity. "Michael has had the most media hype I've ever seen in professional basketball, and I was around Dr. J for three years," Loughery said. "He has handled it all extremely well. It is a tremendous tribute to the way Dean Smith, who is one of the greatest coaches of all time, handled this guy. You can see his training. We are very fortunate that he has had that coaching background."

Pat Riley, coach of the 1988 world champion Lakers, paid Smith a similar compliment, referring to Worthy. "I think James' success is based directly on how he was coached in college," Riley said. "We always look for players from North Carolina. If we could draft players from North Carolina every year, we'd do it. You know they know how to play. The players are so full of character like James and Michael Jordan. I have a lot of respect for Coach Smith. I'm the beneficiary of a man who has taught all these guys how to play the game. When they come to the pros, they're refined. They're ready to step right in."

Bobby Jones once gave Smith credit for the success of his professional career in an interview with the New York Times.

"If I had gone to any other school, I would probably not have been in pro basketball," said Jones. "I was a shy and gangly kid, not very well coordinated when I started playing basketball in junior high school. At North Carolina, they gave me the tools to play in the pros and I don't want to forget it."

While many of Smith's players have gone on to great pro careers, it is in college under Smith where many have shone brightest. He has coached more All-Americas than any other active coach. Smith has had four players win National Player-of-the-Year honors—Ford in 1978, Worthy in 1982, Jordan in 1983 and 1984 (unanimous selection) and Kenny Smith in 1987.

A native of Emporia, Kan., and a graduate of Topeka High School, Smith attended the University of Kansas on an academic scholarship. He played freshman football and varsity basketball and baseball there. He was a member of Jayhawk basketball teams which won the national championship in 1952 and finished second in 1953.

Smith was an assistant basketball coach and the golf coach at the Air Force Academy in 1958 when Frank McGuire brought Smith to Carolina as an assistant coach. In his three years as McGuire's assistant, Carolina won the ACC regular-season title each season. Thus, Smith has been associated with 18 of the 20 league regular-season crowns Carolina has won. He served as an assistant until 1961 when McGuire left to coach in the NBA.

After taking Carolina to the NCAA championship game in 1977, Smith was named National Coach-of-the-Year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches. He received the same honor from the U.S. Basketball Writers Association and Basketball Weekly in 1979 and from Medalist in 1982.

Smith is a great goodwill ambassador for the University. He is called upon to give lectures at basketball clinics all over the world. Smith is past president of the NABC and was the only basketball coach among a group of college presidents who served on the NCAA Select Committee in the early 1980's. The committee was called upon to study many of the problems facing intercollegiate athletics today.

Smith has won the prestigious Golden Plate Award from the American Academy of Achievement which honors people from all fields. The only other coaches to win the award have been Wooden, Bud Wilkinson, Bear Bryant, Joe Paterno and Tom Landry.

In addition, Smith has received honorary doctorates from Eastern College in Pennsylvania and Catawba College and in 1984 was cited by his alma mater, Kansas, receiving the Distinguished Service Citation. This honor is the highest KU can bestow upon an individual to acknowledge outstanding achievements for the betterment of society and in behalf of mankind.

In his spare time, Smith enjoys golf, tennis, music and reading. He has a special interest in theology.

Smith has five children. Daughters Sandy and Mrs. Sharon Kepley are Carolina graduates, as is son Scott. Smith also has two younger daughters, Kristen Caroline and Kelly Marie. In addition, he has two grandchildren, Drew and Megan Kepley. Smith's wife, Linnea, is a physician.

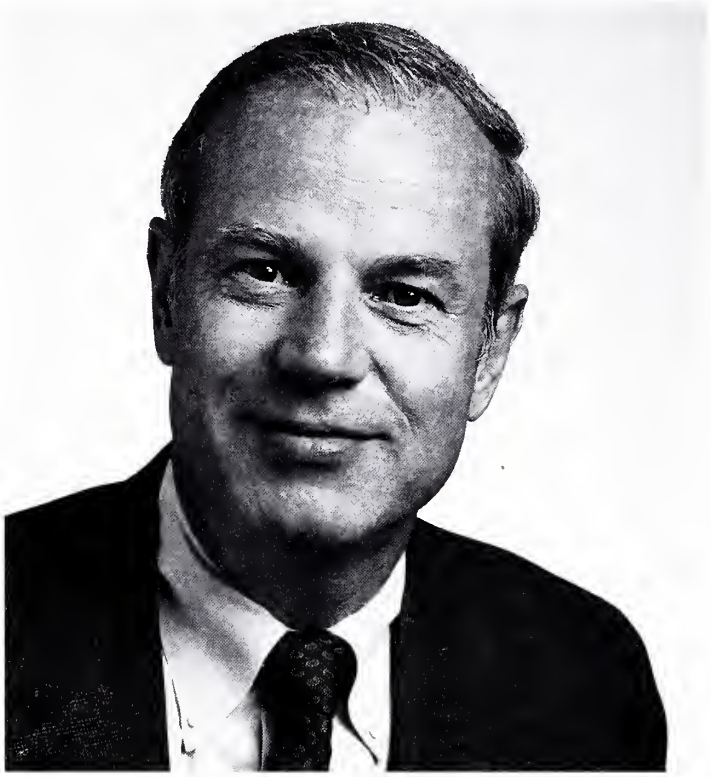
Basketball Coaches

Chief Assistant Coach Bill Guthridge



Chief Assistant Bill Guthridge

Entering his 23rd season on Dean Smith's staff, Bill Guthridge is one of the premier basketball coaches in the country.

As Smith's chief assistant, Guthridge is involved in every aspect of the Tar Heel program. He has a thorough knowledge of all aspects of his profession—teaching, organizing, motivating and recruiting.

When a major college has a head coaching vacancy, Guthridge's name is usually mentioned even though he has indicated he doesn't want to leave Carolina. He has turned down several offers and has had his name withdrawn from consideration for others.

"Bill has made a decision to stay in Chapel Hill and not seek head coaching positions," says Smith. "I personally feel he should have taken several of the excellent opportunities he has had, but he's decided that's not what he wants. By staying here, he has certainly given great stability to our program. He's one of the top coaches in America and I'm including head coaches as well as assistants. His record as an assistant, first at Kansas State, and then here, has been tremendous. He has made great contributions to both programs."

Guthridge graduated from Kansas State in 1960, and has been involved with great teams ever since. He played on three Wildcat teams which won Big Eight Conference championships and he has been a part of some of the greatest seasons in Tar Heel history.

In fact, Guthridge has been to the NCAA's Final Four a total of eight times-six as a Carolina assistant, once as an assistant at Kansas State and once as a player at KSU.

The Tar Heels have been in a national post-season tournament every season since Guthridge first came to Chapel Hill in 1967. During the course of those 22 years, Carolina has finished as low as third in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings only once, has won either the ACC regular-season or tournament title 17 times, won the 1971 NIT and captured the NCAA championship in 1982.

Guthridge was also a key factor when the United States basketball team brought home the gold medal from the 1976 Summer Olympic Games. He and Georgetown's John Thompson, who coached the likes of J.R. Reid in the 1988 Olympics, served as assistants to Smith and also scouted the Americans' opponents.

In his time at Carolina, Gurthridge has worked with both the team's offensive and defensive schemes. He currently is the Tar Heel shooting instructor. It is no coincidence that Carolina annually shoots better than 50 percent from the field. In fact, the Tar Heels have the best field goal percentage of any team in the country over the past two decades. And in the past five years, Carolina has been in the top four nationally in field goal percentage each year, including a school-record 55.9 percent in 1986.

A native of Parsons, Kan., Guthridge played his high school basketball for Harold Johnson, one of two brothers who innovated the zone press in the 1930's.

At Kansas State, he helped the Wildcats win the Big Eight championship in 1958, 1959 and 1960. Based on his leadership, academic record and athletic accomplishments, he was chosen one of the University's 13 most outstanding all-around seniors.

Guthridge coached at Scott City High School in Kansas for two years following his graduation, and then he returned to his alma mater as an assistant to Tex Winter. During his time on the KSU staff, the Wildcats posted a 93-43 record, swept to two Big Eight titles and once advanced to the Final Four.

In his first six years at Carolina, Guthridge coached Tar Heel freshman and junior varsity teams. He had a 72-25 record and won the Big Four championship four times, an outstanding feat in those days.

Besides working with Smith and Winter, two of the great names in coaching, Guthridge has also coached in Puerto Rican summer leagues twice, earning Coach-of-the-Year honors. So impressive in the job he did, Guthridge was invited to coach the 1968 Puerto Rican Olympic team.

Of course, Guthridge's greatest fame has come from his work at Carolina. And Smith gives him much of the credit for helping to develop the players who have kept Carolina among the top basketball powers in the nation over the past two decades.

"Bill is highly respected by the players who have been through our program," says Smith. "He is sincere in his recruiting and I think that has made him a favorite of prospective student-athletes and their families. He is a man of great integrity."

Unlike many coaches, Guthridge says he actually enjoys recruiting.

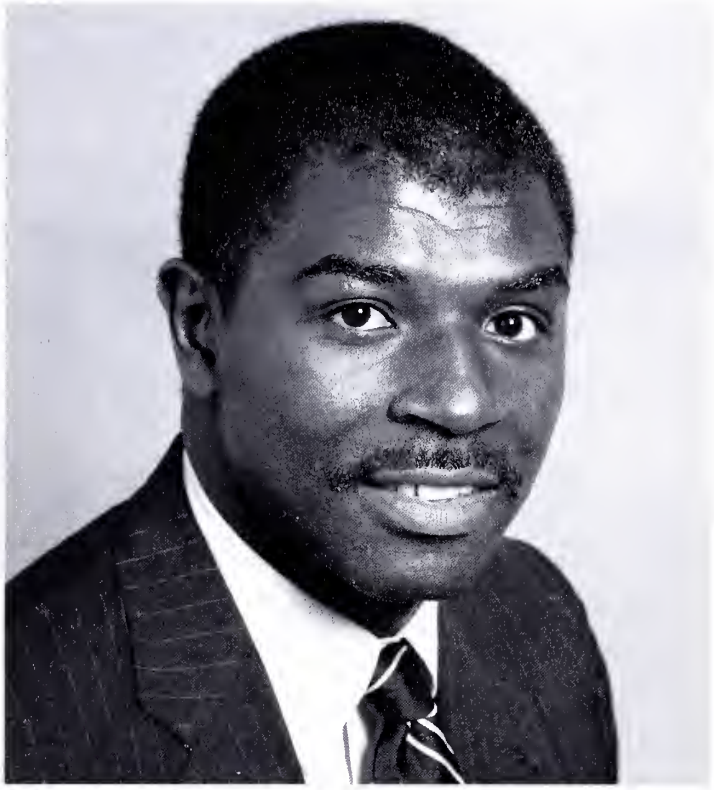
"Some people say recruiting is undesirable, that it's the worst part of being a college coach," he says. "But my experiences have been very enjoyable. I think that has had a lot to do with the type of young man which our university attracts."

Guthridge, who got his Bachelor of Science degree in mathematics, has a master's degree in education and has taken courses at Carolina towards his Ph.D.

His excellent sense of humor makes him one of the most popular after-dinner speakers in the Carolina athletic department.

Bill and his wife, Leesie, have two sons, Jamie and Stuart, and a daughter, Megan.

Assistant Coach Phil Ford



Assistant Coach Phil Ford

Phil Ford, a three-time first-team All-America point guard and the 1978 National Player-of-the-Year at the University of North Carolina, enters into his second season as a Tar Heel assistant coach.

"It's a dream come true to coach at my alma mater and a great thrill to work with Coach Smith," says Ford. "He has played a very important role in my life and there is no one better with whom I can begin my career."

Besides the obvious wealth of practical knowledge and talent Ford brings as a coach, he has also proved himself as a valuable recruiter. He and Bill Guthridge join Smith as the three designated representatives of the Tar Heel basketball program who can go on the road and visit with prospective players.

Ford, a Rocky Mount, N.C. native, will always be known as one of the greatest basketball players in Atlantic Coast Conference history. Recruited by practically all schools as a basketball prospect and National Honor Society student, Ford narrowed the choices to N.C. State and Carolina because they were near his home. He eventually chose Carolina because of Coach Smith.

The 6-2 backcourt star played on Carolina teams which swept 99 of 124 games and went to four NCAA basketball tournaments. He won the coveted John Wooden award as a senior and was also named National Player-of-the-Year in 1978 by the U.S. Basketball Writers Association, the National Association of Basketball Coaches and The Sporting News.

During his senior season, he became the leading scorer in Tar Heel history with 2,290 points, a record he still holds today. He perhaps saved the greatest performance of his career for his final game in Carmichael Auditorium, scoring a career-high 34 points against Duke in a game that gave Carolina the 1978 Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship.

He also held the school's single-game, single-season and career assist records for close to a decade until Kenny Smith and Jeff Lebo came to Chapel Hill.

During Smith's tenure at Carolina from 1984-87, he broke Ford's season and career assist marks. Then ironically last year, in Ford's first regular-season game as an assistant coach, he watched starting point guard Lebo break his decade-long record for assists in a game as Lebo passed for 17 in a win over Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Although freshmen became eligible to play varsity basketball in the 1972-73 season, Ford was the first freshman to start in his first game at Carolina, in November 1974. He capped that outstanding season by leading the Tar Heels to the ACC Tournament championship over an N.C. State team led by National Player-of-the-Year David Thompson.

In the process, he became the first freshman in Atlantic Coast Conference history to win the Everett Case Award as the most valuable player in the ACC Tournament.

Ford won first-team All-America honors at Carolina in 1976, 1977 and 1978. He was ACC Player-of-the-Year in 1978 and the McKevlin Award winner as the ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1977 and 1978. Elected a co-captain, Ford started on the 1976 United States Olympic team which won the basketball gold metal in Montreal, playing on a team coached by his present-day colleagues Dean Smith and Bill Guthridge along with Coach John Thompson of Georgetown.

Despite all his shooting and playmaking heroics, Ford was probably best known for his running of Carolina's famed four corners offense. Time and again, he ran that offense to perfection in the closing moments of a crucial game to lift Carolina to victory. His enthusiasm on and off the court for his teammates and the fans made him one of the most popular players in Carolina history, a fact not lost on Coach Smith.

"People ask me why I play Phil so much," said Smith during Ford's senior season. "Well, all his cheering and jumping get in the way on the bench."

Ford was voted the National Basketball Association Rookie-of-the-Year in 1979 while playing for the Kansas City Kings. He spent four seasons with the Kings, one with New Jersey and Milwaukee and two with Houston.

In addition to gaining Rookie-of-the-Year status with Kansas City in 1979, Ford was also named second-team All-Pro that season.

Since leaving professional basketball, Ford has worked for North Carolina National Bank and for Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions. He had been named a color commentator for the new Charlotte Hornets NBA franchise, but resigned that post to accept the job at Carolina.

Ford has come a long way from his backyard basketball court in Rocky Mount where he learned to play the game. The middle child of school teachers, Ford has a brother who is a doctor in Greensboro and a sister who teaches in Durham.

And his family has always been important to Phil. During his senior season, a reporter from The Washington Post asked him what he considered his greatest thrill.

"When someone tells my parents I'm a nice guy," he responded.

Ford added a new member to his immediate family in July 1988 when he married the former Traci Vample, a Salem College alumna and Durham, N.C. native.

Assistant Coach and Junior Varsity Coach Randy Wiel

Formerly a Tar Heel player and graduate assistant coach to Dean Smith, Randy Wiel is in his fourth season as the head junior varsity coach.

He and his former teammate Phil Ford have combined to handle many of former assistants Eddie Fogler's and Roy Williams' responsibilities. Fogler left in 1986 to become the head coach at Wichita State and now is at Vanderbilt and Williams resigned in 1988 to take the position left vacant by another former Tar Heel Larry Brown as the head coach at the University of Kansas.

A native of Curacao in the Netherlands Antilles, Wiel played on Carolina teams from 1975 to 1979, earning four letters.

He received his master's degree in education from Carolina in 1986.

Wiel played professional basketball for six years in Europe after leaving Chapel Hill. In the Netherlands, he was his league's Rookie-of-the-Year in 1980 and Most Valuable Player in both 1981 and 1984. He twice led the league in scoring.

Wiel was also a member of the Dutch National Team for six years.

An accomplished all-around athlete, he participated in sprint events in track and also swam competitively. He represented the Netherlands Antilles in the Pan American Games as a swimmer and in the Olympic Games as a track sprinter. Wiel is also an accomplished linguist. He speaks six languages—his native Papiamentoe, English, Dutch, Spanish, French and Portuguese.

"As a player at Carolina, Randy always represented the University well being a great senior leader on our 1979 ACC champion team," says Coach Dean Smith.

Smith goes on to further praise the job Wiel has done with the junior varsity program at Carolina. "Randy has done an amazing job as head coach of the junior varsity program," he asserts. "His teams are consistently overmatched in size, speed and quickness, but somehow they're in every game. They are able to win with consistency over junior colleges who give scholarships.

"It's a real credit to Coach Wiel and the type of young man on our junior varsity team that we're able to compete as well as we do. Furthermore, Coach Wiel always has the team playing very hard. They play a smart game and they play together. We're proud of the junior varsity program and feel it represents the University well."

Wiel married the former Connie Hicks in the summer of 1986. She is also a Carolina graduate.

Administrative Assistant Dave Hanners

Assistant Coach and Administrative Assistant Dave Hanners

Dave Hanners, a former University of North Carolina backcourt player, joins Dean Smith's Tar Heel basketball staff this season as an administrative assistant.

Hanners replaces Dick Harp, who retired at the end of last season.

"We are delighted to have Dave return to our staff where he assisted Coach (Eddie) Fogler with the junior varsity while getting his master's," says Smith. "We were looking for an experienced assistant coach for this position and found one in Dave, who is also so familiar with our program."

Hanners is a 1976 Carolina graduate. As a senior, he served as tri-captain of the basketball team along with Bill Chambers and Mitch Kupchak.

That team finished with a 25-4 record and won the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season championship with a 13-1 league mark.

After earning his undergraduate degree at Carolina, he worked on the staff for two seasons as a graduate assistant coach, particularly assisting then Tar Heel assistant coach Eddie Fogler with the jayvee program.

After securing his master's degree form Carolina, Hanners worked two years as a high school coach—one in Wisconsin and another in Fayetteville, N.C. He then spent three seasons as an assistant coach at UNC-Wilmington, one at Furman and the last five at East Tennessee State.

His work at ETSU truly helped Les Robinson's program develop there. After spearheading Buccaneer recruiting efforts, the dividends of Hanners' work paid off last season as East Tennessee won the Southern Conference championship and came within one point of knocking off NCAA Southeast Regional top seed Oklahoma in the NCAA first round.

"Coach Hanners headed up the great recruiting effort at ETSU," says Dean Smith. "That helped them with their near upset of Oklahoma last season in the NCAA Tournament. Dave takes great pride in picking out so-called sleepers in high school recruiting. He surely did this at UNC-Wilmington and Furman before the amazing job he did at East Tennessee. He chooses to watch all tapes on our prospects and gives us valuable feedback.

"In Dave, we have one of the most hard-working and organized people I have ever been associated with. It's good to have him back on our staff."

Hanners echoes Coach Smith's words about his return to his alma mater.

"I enjoyed my time at East Tennessee a great deal," says Hanners. "However, I could not pass up the opportunity to come back to North Carolina and work with Coach Smith. Any coach in the country would love to spend time with him and Coach (Bill) Guthridge. This will be a great learning experience for me and I hope I can make an important contribution."

THE

Educational Foundation

One of the most important organizations in the Carolina Athletic Department is the University's Educational Foundation.

It is the Educational Foundation which raises funds for athletic scholarships at Carolina.

These scholarships, either partial or full, will be awarded to nearly 400 student-athletes for the 1989-90 academic year, with an additional 100 awarded for summer school. The scholarship budget, which has more than doubled in the last eight years, will total $2.25 million this year.

"Since its founding in 1938, the Educational Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, to over 5,000 student-athletes," says Moyer Smith, the Foundation's executive vice-president.

The purpose of the Foundation is to offer financial aid to worthy young men and women seeking an education at the University and to support University programs by providing services and funds for the construction of facilities or purchase of equipment.

The following are categories of annual giving:

Super Ram ($1,200)—Entitles a member to purchase up to eight season football tickets (selected location) and receive an assigned parking space. Football seating and parking will be in a preferred area.

Big Ram ($600)—Entitles a member to purchase four season football tickets (selected location) and receive an assigned parking space. Football seating and parking will be in a preferred area.

Ram ($300)—Entitles a member to purchase two season football tickets (selected location). Additional tickets may be purchased, but location of tickets is subject to the point system.

Little Ram ($150)—Entitles a member to purchase four season football tickets. However, location of tickets is subject to the point system each year.

Educational Foundation Member ($50)—Those who give less than $150 receive periodic bulletins and the option to purchase tickets. The minimum Foundation membership is $50 per year. However, contributions of any amount are welcome.

Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program was started in 1968 and consists of $75,000 endowed scholarships set up through insurance, life memberships, wills and bequests and a pooled income program.

The Foundation operates on a dignified and realistic plane in compliance with all the the regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference.

"We couldn't have the type program we do without the Educational Foundation," says Athletic Director John Swofford. "We've enlarged our staff in the last several years and I think the staff additions we have made will enable us to do a better job for our members."

The Foundation offices are located at the Smith Center in the North end of the Koury Natatorium. This new office complex has helped tremendously in allowing the Foundation staff to better serve the membership.

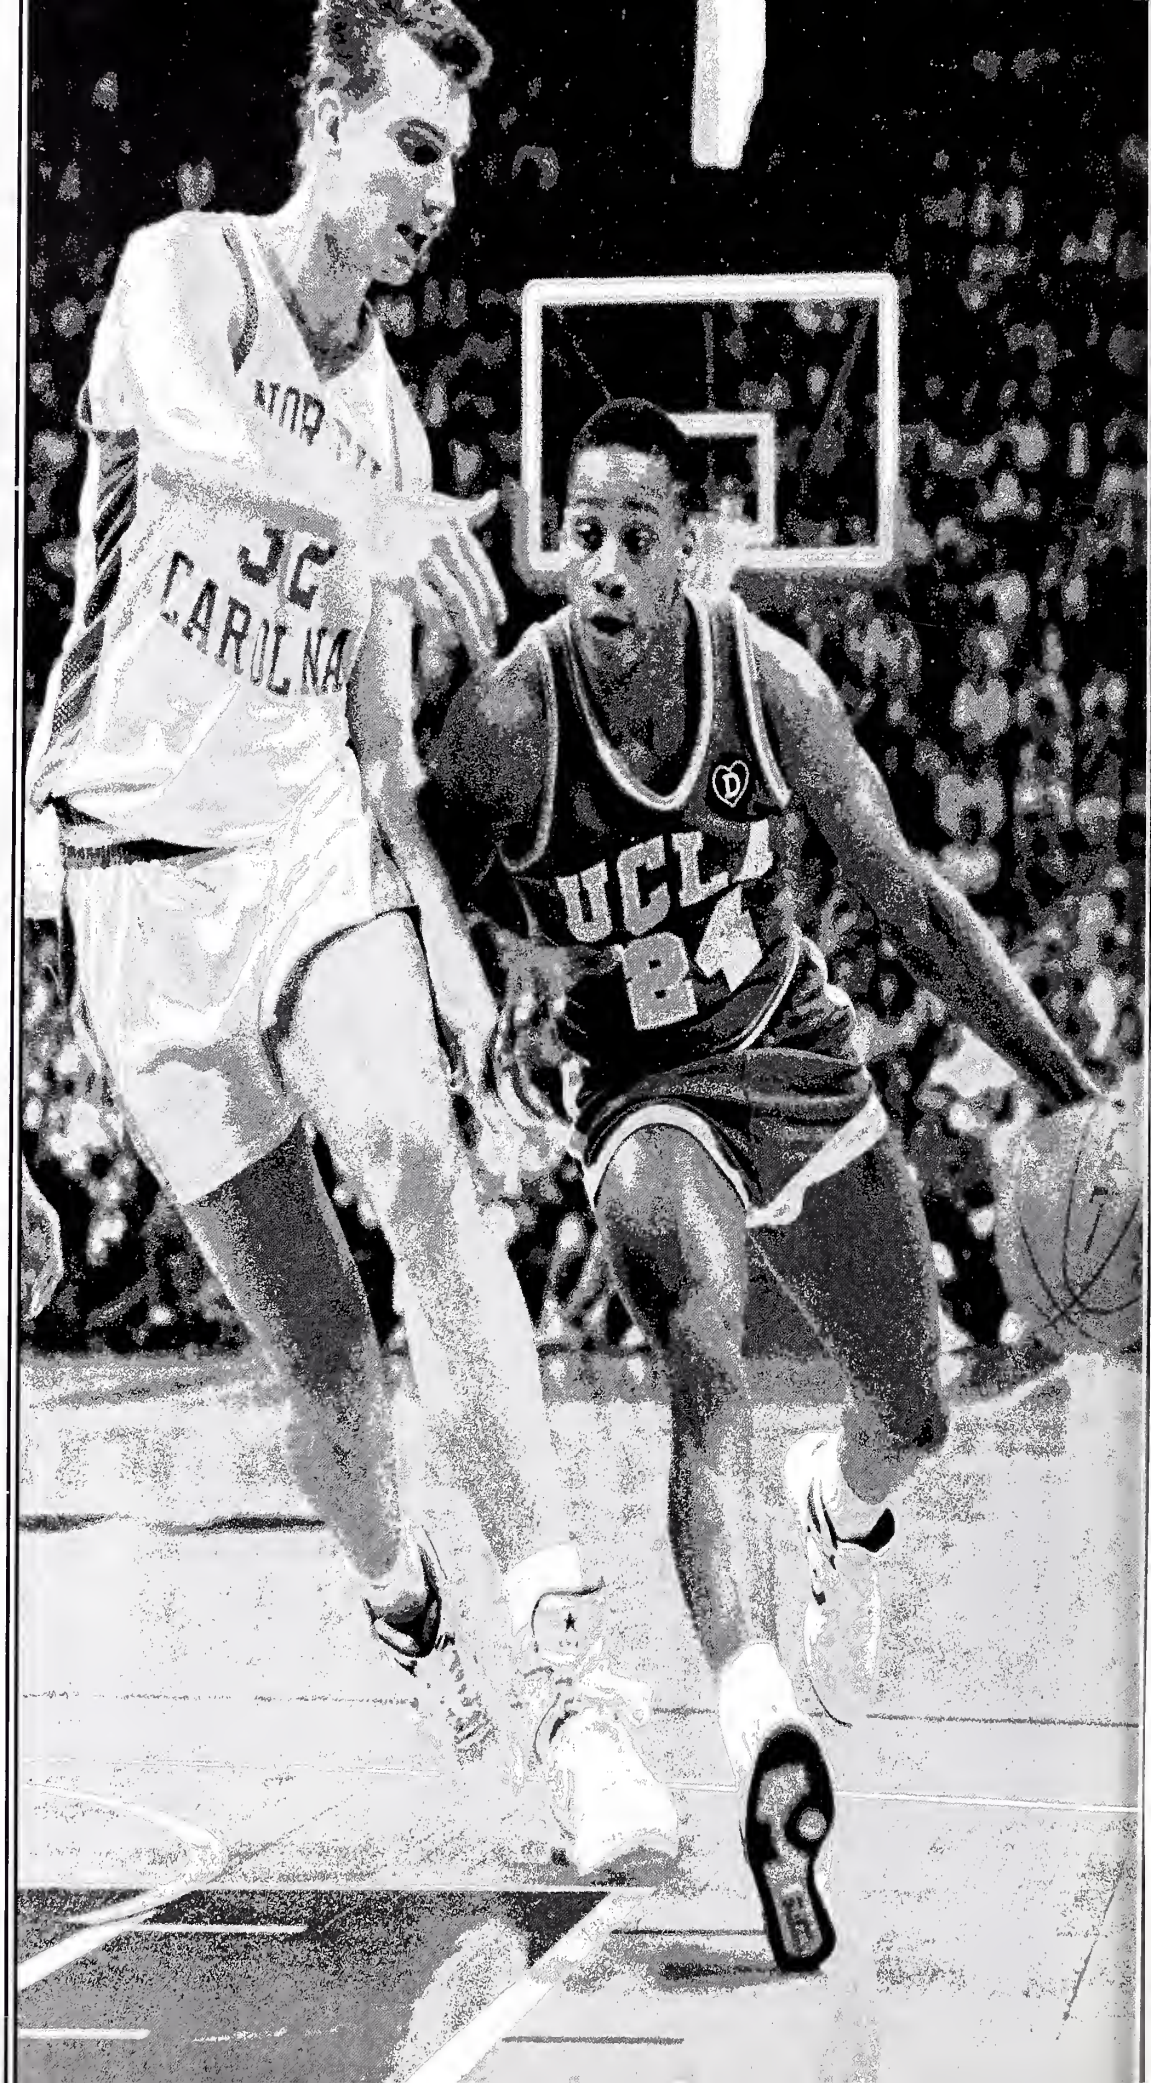
1988-89 in Review



THE 1988-89

Season Review

At most schools, what the University of North Carolina accomplished during the 1988-89 basketball season--29 wins, a conference championship and a berth in the NCAA Tournament's Final 16--would be truly outstanding.

For Tar Heel fans, though, it was just another season. After all, 1988-89 featured the usual Carolina chemistry of a well-balanced attack producing results which folks in Chapel Hill have grown accustomed to.

Still, at Carolina, the basketball norm is greatness. And fairly-typical teams amount to great teams.

"It was a remarkable season," Head Coach Dean Smith says, reflecting on his 28th season in Chapel Hill. "It was a great season, especially for our seniors, who contributed to four outstanding teams."

Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith helped engineer another successful campaign in 1988-89 as UNC won the ACC Championship, amassed 29 wins, finished fourth and fifth in the national polls and advanced to the NCAA Sweet 16 for the ninth straight year. (Photo by Jim Hawkins)

With six players averaging in double figures in scoring, the Tar Heels went 29-8, captured their 11th Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament title and advanced to the NCAA's 'Sweet 16' for the ninth straight year. Carolina never lost more than two games in a row en route to its 19th-consecutive 20-win campaign and ninth succussive 27 or more victory season.

Like each of the eight previous years, the Tar Heels finished the regular season ranked in the Top 10 of the national wire service polls. And, as with most Carolina teams under Dean Smith, the 1988-89 Tar Heels were multi faceted, not relying on any single star while fully epitomizing the team concept.

Playing without forward J.R. Reid, a consensus All-America in 1987-88, who was sidelined by a stress fracture in his left foot for the first nine games, Carolina benefitted from contributions by a host of others right from the opening tip-off.

With Reid injured, the Tar Heels went 8-1, losing only to Missouri, 91-81, in the semifinals of the Dodge Pre-Season NIT. In fact, Carolina later avenged that loss to the Tigers, defeating Mizzou, 76-60, in the final game of the Diet Pepsi Tournament of Champions, while in the midst of an 11-game winning streak.

The Tar Heels' early-season success, despite the loss of their most highly-touted player, characterized the 1988-89 campaign. With every win, there seemed to be a different hero.

Take the season opener, a 111-84 rout of Tennessee-Chattanooga in the Dodge Pre-Season NIT. Jeff Lebo established a school record with 17 assists and Rick Fox and Kevin Madden enjoyed career-high scoring performances with 25 and 31 points, respectively. Meanwhile, guard Jeff Denny came off the bench to net 10 points.

Two days later, in a 99-91 win over Georgia, Scott Williams, with 25 points and nine rebounds, and Pete Chilcutt, who had 12 points and seven boards, shined for the Tar Heels.

Other early-season outings featured Lebo's career-high 29-point effort, including six three-pointers, in a 106-92 win over Indiana as Carolina administered one of the worst beatings in the Hoosiers' storied history.

Then, in an 87-76 late-November win over Stanford, Chilcutt went 6-for-6 from the field and 2-for-2 at the free-throw line for 14 points and had nine rebounds and four assists.

All five Tar Heels starters scored in double figures as UNC beat UCLA, 104-78 in a nationally televised game in Mid-December. The following contest, a 102-74 win over Towson State, six players, including reserve Hubert Davis, who had 10 points, hit double digits in scoring, making Lebo's homecoming game in Hershey, Pa. a success.

Later, Steve Bucknall was the hero in an 87-67 victory at DePaul, scoring 21 points and hitting all four of his three-point attempts. And when Carolina began play in the ACC with an 88-72 win over Maryland, Reid, in a reserve role, had 17 points and 10 pounds.

But, perhaps the greatest testimony to the Tar Heels' overrall depth occurred in a nationally-televised (ESPN) meeting with Duke at Cameron Indoor Stadium, when Carolina was missing an injured Lebo. King Rice took center stage, matching a career-high with 14 points and passing for seven assists, to help the Heels roll over the previously unbeaten Blue Devils, 91-71. Another key performer was Williams, who had 22 points and 11 rebounds.

Minus its senior leader, Lebo, Carolina won its next two league contests, 84-81 over N.C. State and 88-74 at Wake Forest. The Tar Heels then completed a string of four straight ACC wins by defeating Georgia Tech, 92-85.

After dropping its next two games, Carolina reeled off six straight wins, including victories over Virginia and Clemson, two teams who had earlier defeated the Tar Heels. In fact, six of the eight teams that knocked off Carolina last season also fell to Carolina at least once during the course of the 1988-89 campaign.

Two such squads were Duke and Georgia Tech, both of whom had two-point victories over Carolina to close out the regular season. But, in the ACC Tournament, the Tar Heels dropped Tech, 77-62 and after downing Maryland in the semifinals, defeated Duke, 77-74, for a second time to claim the league title. Against Duke, six players, including Reid, who had 14 points and nine rebounds, scored 10 or more points. Reid was named tournament MVP.

Seeded second in the Southeast Regional, Carolina began the NCAA Tournament in Atlanta with a 93-79 win over Southern University and rallied from an eight-point halftime deficit to eliminate UCLA, 88-81, and move into the round of 16. But, the Tar Heels' season came to an end in Lexington, KY. , as they fell to eventual national champion Michigan, 92-87, in one of the most exciting games of the tourney.

Reid and Lebo, playing in their final game at Carolina, scored 26 and 19 points, respectively. They were among six Tar Heels to score more than 10 points per outing, as Reid led the team with a 15.9 points per game average and Lebo averaged 12.2 ppg.

The curtain also fell on Bucknall's collegiate career. He scored 13.1 ppg, including a 30-point outburst in UNC's 100-86 victory over Clemson. Kevin Madden (14.6), Rick Fox (11.5) and leading-rebounder Scott Williams (11.4 ppg), who had 7.3 boards a game, complete the list of double-figure scorers.

A part of another magnificent Carolina squad, they helped the Heels amass 15 wins against teams that advanced to the NCAA Tournament. All eight losses, including five by a total of 3 points, were to NCAA participants. For the season, the Tar Heels shot nearly 53 percent from the field and averaged 90 points per contest.

Surely, those numbers sum up an amazing year. But at Carolina, it was business as usual.

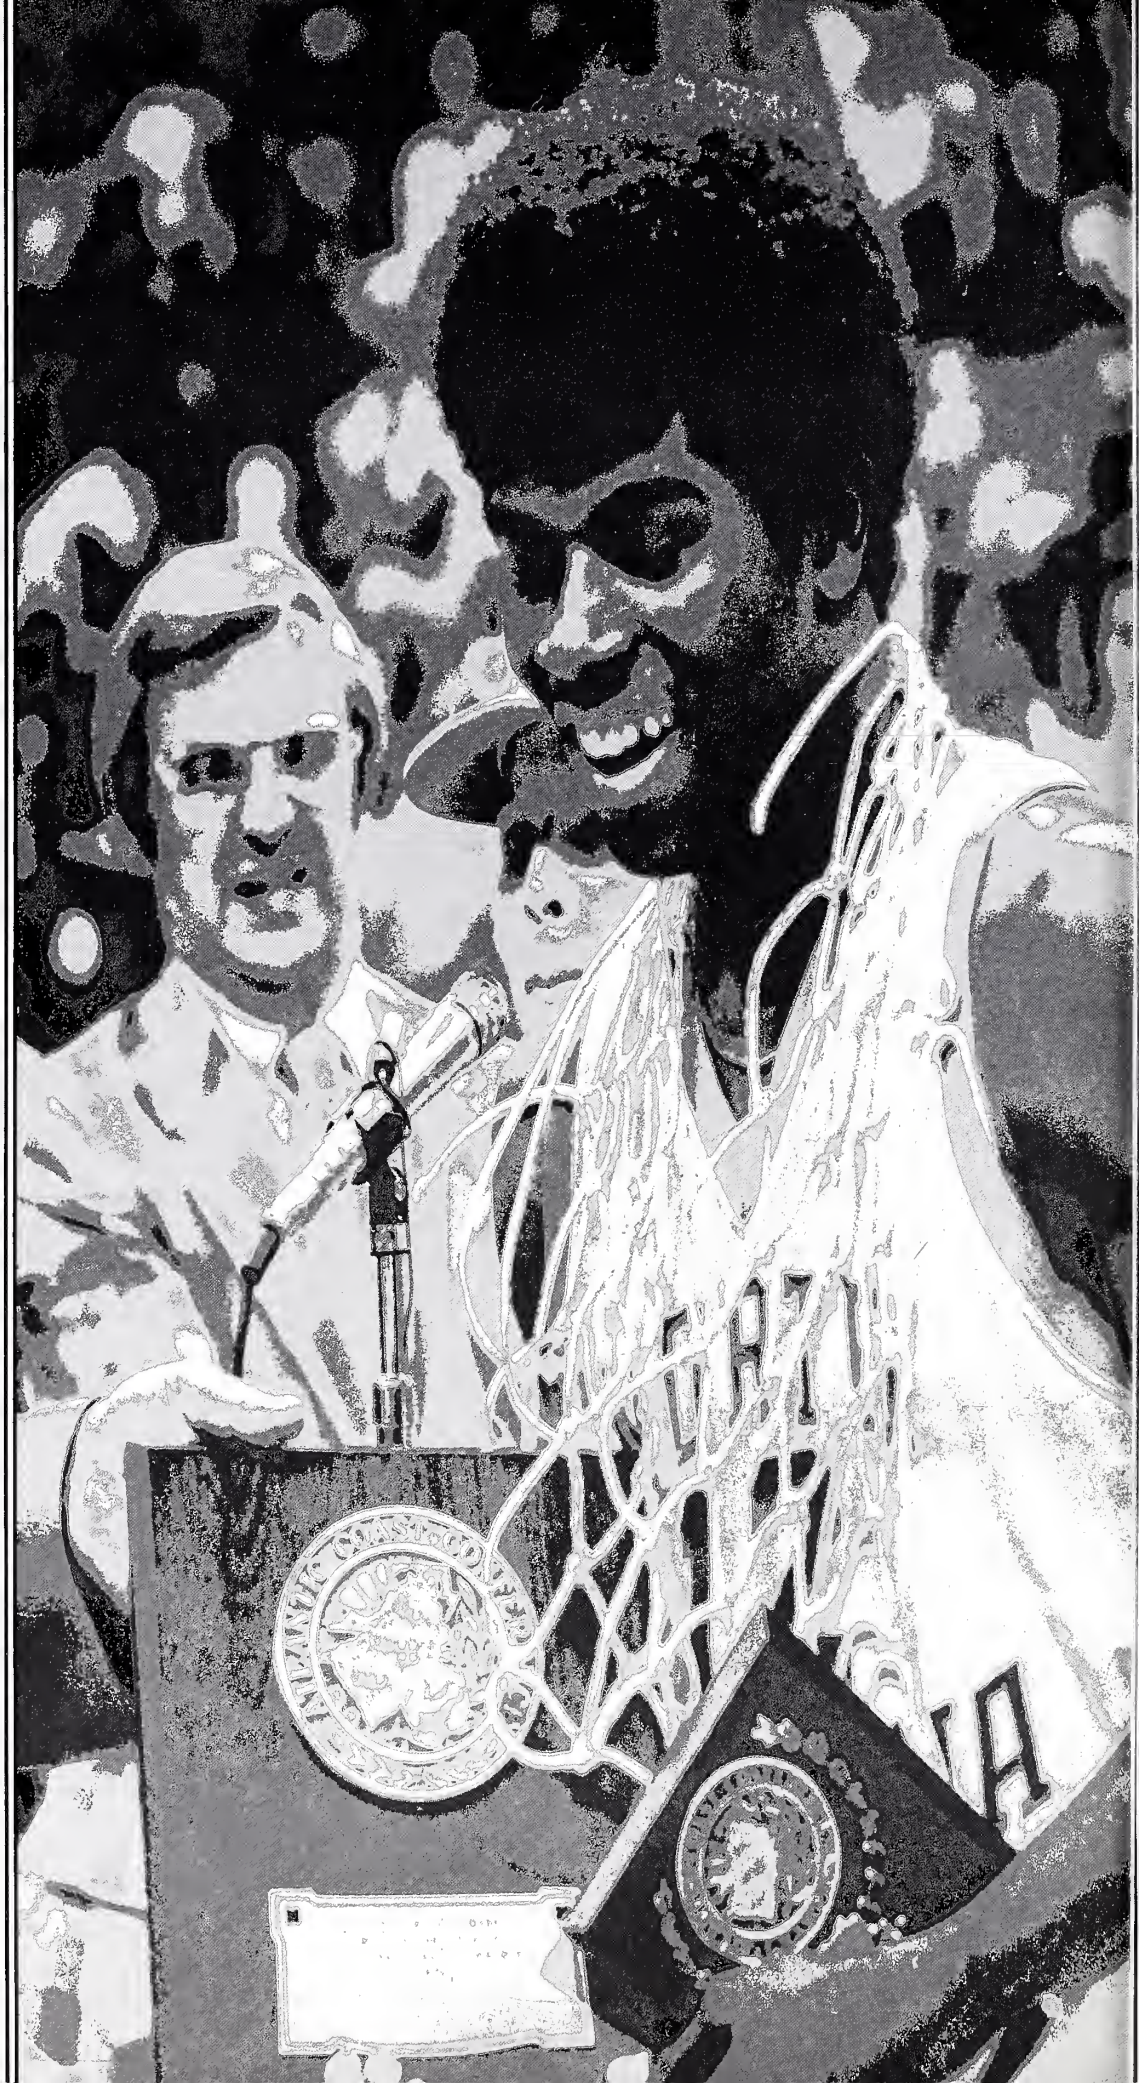
Tradition & History



Facts and Figures

In the final measure of any competitive endeavor, there really can be only one mark of greatness. That mark is consistency.

However, the modern version of college basketball is so unpredictable and balanced, it is virtually impossible to maintain any level of consistency, let alone consistent excellence. Sixty-four teams each year have the chance to win college basketball's biggest prize, the national championship. Surprises, upsets and Cinderella teams are the status quo when March Madness arrives, and all too often, the eventual winner is a team that has dramatically exceeded its expectations.

Yet, the University of North Carolina has defied the odds, maintaining a tradition of greatness with one of the nation's strongest basketball programs, year-in and year-out. A perennial Atlantic Coast Conference powerhouse and nationally-contending basketball team, the Tar Heels just never seem to have the "down year" which every once in a while happens to the nation's other top programs. Two NCAA championships, 20 ACC regular-season titles, and 11 ACC Tournament championships are amongst the many successes in the long tradition of Carolina basketball.

Still, Carolina doesn't excel just on the court. The University is considered an aptly-named "Public Ivy" for its academic prowess, and is annually referred to in listings of the nation's Top 20 colleges, as it was in a recent U.S. News and World Report survey.

And that is especially impressive when one considers the image of college athletics today. At a time when universities are being placed on probation at an unprecedented rate, Carolina basketball serves as a role model for combining academic excellence with a successful athletic progra The Tar Heels have prove that athletic quality does have to come at the expense of academic integrity.

Adhering to these policies since their first basketball game in 1911, the Tar Heels have consistently upheld a tradition of greatness unparalleled in any sport.

And here are some numbers to prove it.

1,458—Number of all-time wins for the UNC basketball program. Second only to Kentucky's 1,464 even though the Wildcats have played seven more seasons.

73.3%—UNC's all-time winning percentage. Also second nationally.

520—How many games UNC has won in the past 20 seasons versus only 124 losses. The most victories in the U.S. in that period.

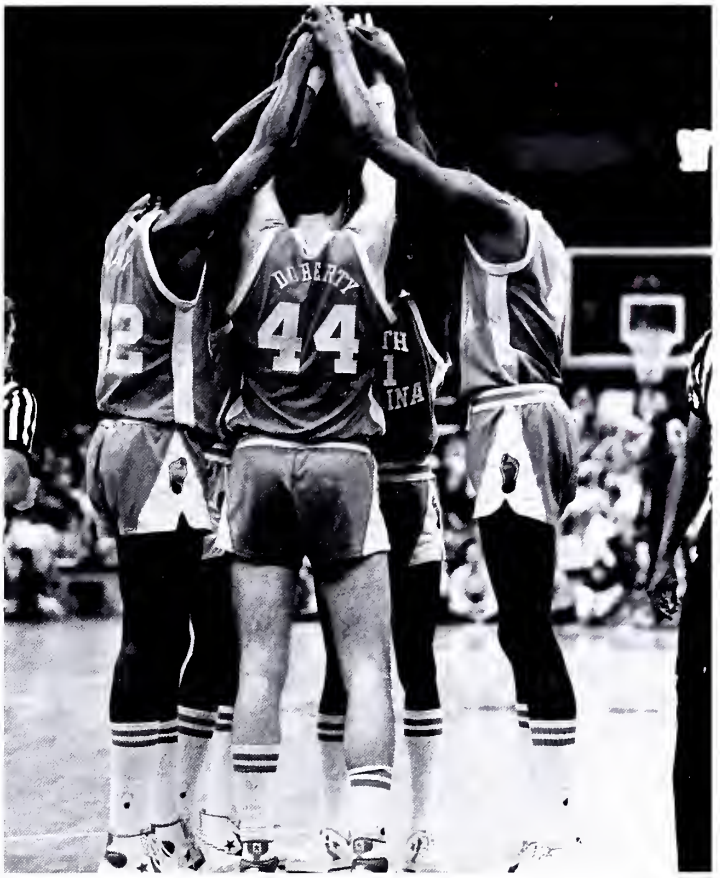
80.7%—Winning percentage of the Tar Heels over those same 20 seasons—also the best mark in the country.

9—Number of times Carolina has appeared in the Top 10 of both the AP and UPI polls in the last nine years. The Tar Heels have been in the Top 10 of at least one of the polls in 15 of the last 16 years.

88.9%—Carolina's winning percentage in the Smith Center — 40 wins, 5 losses since opening in January 1986.

7—The number of ACC opponents the Tar Heels have winning series records against. Since the founding of the Atlantic Coast Conference in 1953, the Tar Heels have been the league's dominant power, boasting winning all-time records against all of its league foes. In fact, Carolina's closest series with an ACC opponent is with Duke and in that rivalry, the Tar Heels have won 107 times to a mere 73 wins for the Blue Devils.

15—Consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances for the Tar Heels, an NCAA record and still counting.



Teamwork has been the key to Carolina's phenomenal basketball success over the past quarter century. The Tar Heels' ever-present team chemistry and unselfishness have helped lead to 19 Top 10 poll finishes, 15 ACC regular-season championships, 10 ACC Tournament championships and seven NCAA Final Four appearances over the past 23 seasons. (Photo by Sally Sather)

23—Number of post-season tournament appearances by the Tar Heels in the last 23 seasons—19 NCAA and four NIT. The four NIT appearances came when only the ACC Tournament winner was invited to the NCAA's.

9—(again)—Number of times UNC has made it to the Sweet 16 round of the NCAA Tournament in the past nine years. Louisville is second with six appearances.

25—Number of NCAA tourney games the Tar Heels have won in the past eight years—more than any other team in the nation.

20—(victories)—Considered the magic number for measuring success in a college basketball season, like a 1,000-yard rusher in football or a .300 hitter or 20-win pitcher in baseball.

19—Number of consecutive times Dean Smith-coached teams at Carolina have equalled or bettered said magic number, an NCAA record.

9—Number of consecutive times Dean Smith-coached Tar Heel teams have won 27 or more games, and still counting.

11—Number of times John Wooden's legendary UCLA teams won 25 games or more, second highest total in college basketball history.

17—Number of times Dean Smith's UNC squads have won 25 or more games, in the 28 years of Coach Smith's tenure.

32—The most victories in a single season for a Dean

Smith team. It's been done twice, in 1982 and 1987.

9—Number of trips UNC has made to the Final Four. Second only to UCLA's 13 journeys.

15—Number of times Dean Smith teams have won or tied for the ACC regular-season championship — most in conference history.

23—How many consecutive years in which UNC has finished no lower than third in the ACC regular season. Carolina has been either first or second in the league in 22 of those 23 seasons and the one team which was third finished #8 in the final AP poll.

29—Number of UNC players who have been named first-team All-Americas. (Latest—J.R. Reid, 1988)

38—Number of Dean Smith-coached players who have played professional basketball.

29—1989 was the first time in an amazing 29-year streak that UNC did not have a first team All-ACC player. Two players, Kevin Madden and Steve Bucknall, were named to the second team.

7—Number of National Players-of-the-Year who have played at UNC.

97.7%—Bottom line—the number that really matters. Percentage of basketball lettermen under Dean Smith who have earned a college degree (167 of 171). And the graduation rate is 100% for the lettermen who have stayed in school and played four years.

That's quite an impressive array of numbers, records and statistics. And yet the numbers don't even begin to show a complete picture of the Carolina basketball program. True, numbers can give a fair assessment, but in order to truly see the beauty, grace and power of one of college basketball's finest teams, one must see it first-hand. Since that is impossible in a media guide, it is the editor's job to give as accurate and as complete a picture as possible. To that end, here is a complement to the mere numbers.

Carolina has dominated the most powerful conference in the nation—the ACC—for quite literally decades. "Carolina is always there," said one-time Duke All-America Johnny Dawkins. "State had it's run, but Carolina was right there. Maryland did the same thing. Duke, Virginia, Tech—they all had their moments, but Carolina was always there. They've been great every year. They cast a shadow over the league."

In the league's 36-year history, ACC teams have gone to the Final Four 20 times, with UNC having made eight of those national showcase appearances. And in that span, none of the other ACC teams has less than a .600 winning percentage against non-league foes. That's solid competition for Carolina year-in and year-out. Yet against that competition on a regular basis, the Tar Heels have thrived. Carolina has won the regular-season title no less than 20 times, including 13 outright titles and three undefeated seasons. And Carolina's victory in last season's ACC Tournament gave the Tar Heels 11 such championships, more than any other team in the league.

Carolina has won 363 of its 485 league games in those 36 years for a winning percentage of 74.8%. That's amazing in any conference. Second-place Duke is more than 70 games behind, with an all-time ACC record of 289-193. In fact, you have to go back to the year of 1964 to find a season in which the Tar Heels finished lower than third place. Carolina has never finished lower than fifth place in the conference, and has had only two losing conference seasons in 36 years of ACC play. In fact, Carolina has finished in the upper division of the ACC in 34 out of 36 years of league play.

In just the past 10 years alone, the Tar Heels have gone 110-30 in the ACC, almost 30 games ahead of second-place Virginia's 82-58 record.

The Tar Heels' success in the ACC is even more amazing given UNC's leading role in the league. Playing Carolina is always the biggest game an opponent will play in a season, thus ensuring that any foe will be pumped up for the game. This is the case not only in the difficult league schedule, but against non-conference opponents as well.

But league dominance is just the beginning of a basketball tradition that predates the ACC's formation by over 40 years. Carolina is second in all-time victories behind Kentucky, trailing the Wildcats by a mere six wins, even though UK has fielded a team for seven more seasons than the Tar Heels.

While raking up so many victories, the Tar Heels have also won their share of titles. Among them are the NCAA championships in 1957 and 1982, the National Invitation Tournament title in 1971 and nine NCAA regional titles. Carolina is one of only six schools to have won both the NCAA and NIT tournaments. UNC was also declared the national champion in 1924 with a perfect 26-0 record. The 1957, 1982 and 1984 teams were also voted #1 in the final national polls.

In post-season play, the Tar Heels have won 48 NCAA tournament games in 23 appearances, plus an additional seven wins in four NIT appearances. The 48 NCAA wins puts Carolina third on the all-time list behind UCLA and Kentucky, and 41 of those victories have come under Dean Smith, leaving him second only to UCLA's John Wooden. Louisville coach Denny Crum ranks third with 31 NCAA wins.

Carolina continued adding to those numbers in 1989 with an NCAA-record 15th consecutive trip to the tournament, a record it shared with UCLA two seasons ago at 13. The streak would be longer but for the fact that early in the 1970's, only one team from each conference could attend the NCAA Tournament. Thus, in the years 1970, 1971, 1973 and 1974, the NIT was the only tournament some outstanding Carolina teams could attend.

Carolina's prominence and consistency are probably best reflected in the fact that the Tar Heels have finished in the Top 10 of at least one of the major polls in no less than 19 of the last 23 years, and in every season since 1981. Ten times in those 23 seasons, UNC was ranked as one of the top four teams in the nation. Other teams' fans are ecstatic if their team finishes in the Top Ten. In Chapel Hill, a spectacular season like that is the status quo.

At the team level, Carolina has been one of the most successful programs in the nation. No freshman class since 1963 has missed playing in a post-season tournament.

The Class of 1989 was a part of some remarkable achievements during its four years in Chapel Hill. In four seasons, that group led the team to a 116-25 record, including 44-12 in the ACC, and an overall winning percentage of 82.2%.

1989 seniors Jeff Lebo and Steve Bucknall were part of the record-setting team which scored 123 points and had a shooting percentage of 79.0% against Loyola Marymount in the second round of the 1988 NCAA Tournament. They were also part of the 1986 team which set the ACC record for season field goal percentage (55.9%).

The 1989 squad was one of the most prolific scoring teams in Carolina history. It set a team and ACC record for most points in a season with 3,331 (breaking UNC's own mark of 3,285 from 1987) and averaged 90.0 points per game for UNC's second-highest mark ever. The Tar Heels also broke the 100-point barrier eight times, the most by a UNC team since 1968-69. They also kept up an unwritten but favorable tradition by shooting 52.7% from the floor, marking the 19th consecutive year the Tar Heels have shot better than 51% for the year.

If you weren't convinced already, those numbers thoroughly debunk the myth that Carolina relies heavily on the "four corners" offense for which it gained so much notoriety. In fact, the Tar Heels now rank as one of the nation's highest scoring teams, and since 1967 have averaged 82.1 points per game, usually ranking among the top five in the nation in scoring each year.

The major key, however, to Carolina's success lies not with its offense but with its stifling defenses. The Tar Heels combine the innovative scramble defenses with powerful man-to-man matchups which can suffocate opposing offenses.

And the famous saying that "The best offense is a good defense" certainly holds true for the Tar Heels. Steals, easy layups and breakaway dunks often account for a significant percentage of Tar Heel points, and are three of the reasons the Tar Heels have the best shooting percentage in the nation over the last 23 years.

Other major reasons are simply the discipline, unselfishness and maturity of the Tar Heel players over those years. Carolina is often criticized for passing too much in an effort to select only the best, highest-percentage shot available. But that criticism is totally invalid. That's just good team basketball.

Rusty Clark was a key player on Dean Smith's first great teams at Carolina in the late 1960's. Clark was the starting center and a valuable member of three Tar Heel teams which won ACC regular-season titles, ACC tournament crowns and NCAA Eastern Regional championships from 1967-69. Clark also represents the great success story of Dean Smith's lettermen. Now a vascular surgeon in Fayetteville, N.C., Clark is one of 167 out of 171 letterman during Smith's tenure to have earned his degree.

College basketball is often referred to as a "tournament sport," leading to the idea that tournament performance is an indication of overall success. Whether that's the case or not, the Tar Heels have always excelled in that area. Including the NCAA and NIT tournaments mentioned earlier, the Tar Heels have won no less than 60 tournament championships. Carolina has won such prestigious regular season tournaments as the ECAC Holiday Festival in New York City, the Tournament of Champions in Charlotte, N.C., the Great Alaska Shootout in Anchorage twice and the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu three times.

Carolina has had the distinction of placing at least one player on every U.S. Olympic squad since 1964. Beginning with Larry Brown in 1964, the trend continued with Charlie Scott in 1968, Bobby Jones in 1972, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Walter Davis and Phil Ford on the Dean Smith-coached 1976 team, Al Wood in 1980, Michael Jordan and Sam Perkins in 1984 and J.R. Reid in 1988.

Chapel Hill has been home to literally dozens of All-America players. Dean Smith himself has coached 19 of them in his 28 years as head coach—Billy Cunningham, Bob Lewis, Larry Miller, Charlie Scott, Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain, Robert McAdoo, Bobby Jones, Mitch Kupchak, Tommy LaGarde, Phil Ford, Mike O'Koren, Al Wood, James Worthy, Sam Perkins, Michael Jordan, Brad Daugherty, Kenny Smith and J.R. Reid.

In just the past 13 years, Carolina players have been named first-team All-America on nine different occasions. No other shcool in the nation can claim that distinction.

And when a Tar Heel is considered to be among the top five players in the nation, chances are he'll also be the best. Kenny Smith was the last player accorded such an honor when he was named National Player-of-the-Year by the Basketball Times in 1987. Before him, Michael Jordan and James Worthy earned those honors in 1982, 1983 and 1984, Jordan in the latter two years and Worthy in 1982. But they are not the only ones. Phil Ford in 1978, Lennie Rosenbluth in 1957, George Glamack in 1940 and '41 and Jack Cobb in 1926 have all been named the best college basketball player in the nation.

In 1986, the Tar Heels christened their new 21,444-seat Dean E. Smith Center with a thrilling 95-92 victory over arch-rival Duke. The multi-purpose facility was built because ticket demands were far exceeding the 10,000-seat capacity of the legendary Carmichael Auditorium. Now, twice as many people can see the Tar Heels play their home games, and in one of the premier college basketball arenas in America. Members of the Educational Foundation who had contributed money for years, but couldn't get a seat in Carmichael, now have the opportunity to see the Tar Heels play. In addition, thousands more faculty members and UNC students get to see the Tar Heels play. The building also plays host to many concerts each year, and has the seating capacity to hold a myriad of events which for years had eluded Chapel Hill. The $34-million Smith Center was constructed entirely through private donations.

But even if fans aren't lucky enough to get a ticket in the Smith Center, chances are that they'll be able to see the game on television. At least five Carolina games will be broadcast on national network television this year, with 12 more being tentatively scheduled on ESPN. In fact, only eight of a possible 39 games Carolina could play in 1989-90 will not be televised.

Carolina basketball is also carried on over 60 radio stations in three states, broadcast through the Tar Heel Sports Network. Woody Durham's colorful narration has earned him the monicker "The Voice of the Tar Heels," and he brings the sound of Carolina to life for thousands of people who otherwise would have missed out. Several times each season Carolina games are chosen to be broadcast on Armed Forces Radio, meaning that the Tar Heels will be heard by millions of listeners all across the globe.

Carolina is also unequalled in its production of successful professional basketball players. In Dean Smith's 28 years he has sent 38 of his players to the professional ranks. Some of these include such modern NBA superstars as James Worthy, Sam Perkins, Brad Daugherty and the incomparable Michael Jordan.

However, those players who haven't gone on to careers in basketball have graduated to success in all fields of life. Equipped with college degrees, Smith graduates have become coaches, doctors, military officers, businessmen, lawyers and bankers. Carolina's record of graduating lettermen is virtually unequalled in all of college sports.

Perhaps Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino summed it up best at the 1985 NCAA Southeast Regionals, the year Villanova won the national championship. "North Carolina has a great team and a great tradition," noted the veteran coach. "North Carolina is what college basketball is all about, academically and athletically."

And if you don't believe him, ask any other coach in college basketball.

A Decade Of Dominance

If Chinese New Year's themes applied to 10 years instead of one, then the 1980's in college basketball could well be remembered as the Decade of the Ram. Dean Smith's North Carolina Tar Heels bettered opponents consistently from 1980 to 1989, thus establishing UNC as the dominant force in the Atlantic Coast Conference cage wars as well as those of the entire nation.

9. Kentucky	233-86	.730
10. St. John's	228-85	.728

As the saying goes, numbers don't lie, and a review of this past decade proves why.

North Carolina had the best overall Atlantic Coast Conference league record, producing a gaudy 110-30 (.786) mark. The second-place team in the '80s was Virginia, but the Cavaliers fell 28 games shy of Carolina's victory total.

What makes the Tar Heels' 110 wins even more remarkable is the fact that UNC not only won more games at home in league play than any other ACC school, but Carolina also had the best road record. And it wasn't even close. In Chapel Hill, the Tar Heels proved to have the greatest home-court advantage of any league foe, as Dean Smith's squads racked up 61 wins against a mere nine defeats in ACC action. Again, Virginia was second behind Carolina with a 52-18 record at University Hall in Charlottesville. Even more amazingly, UNC's road record was better than six league opponents' home records, including Duke, N.C. State, Maryland, Georgia Tech, Clemson and Wake Forest. A model of consistency, Carolina posted a 49-21 record away from home for a winning percentage of .700, a truly amazing accomplishment in such ACC atmospheres as Duke's Cameron Indoor Stadium, N.C. State's Reynolds Coliseum and Clemson's Littlejohn Coliseum.

Carolina continued to demonstrate its ACC supremacy in the storied ACC Tournament, where the Tar Heels compiled an 18-7 (.720) record—four wins more than the next closest team, and 17 more than the last-place finisher. Three of those 18 Tar Heel tournament wins came in championships games, with Carolina defeating Maryland in 1981, Virginia in 1982 and the Duke Blue Devils in last year's dramatic title-clinching finals. All in all, UNC won six regular-season titles and three tournament titles, for a total of nine ACC championships during the decade. Duke and N.C. State, meanwhile, finished second in combined championships as the Blue Devils and Wolfpack mustered less than half the number of Carolina's titles with four — one regular-season and three tournament crowns for Duke and two of each for N.C. State.

No other ACC team was able to match Carolina's national accomplishments, either. The Tar Heels and Georgetown led the nation in most NCAA Tournament victories in the '80s with 25 each. Carolina has accomplished this despite a startling number of injuries to starters who missed NCAA games. This group includes James Worthy, Kenny Smith and Steve Hale among others. The well-balanced ACC had three other league schools crack this particular Top 10, but none had more than 18 tournament victories—30 percent less than Dean Smith's squads.

North Carolina has been consistently recognized for its outstanding program by the Associated Press and United Press International national polls. The Tar Heels have been ranked in the Top 10 in either one or both of the polls in 14 of the last 15 years, five more times than second-place Kentucky and six more occasions than Syracuse and Indiana. Only one other ACC team finished in the Top 10 at least five times since 1975, and that was Duke, who accomplished the feat a whopping nine fewer times than the Tar Heels. Maryland and Virginia each finished in the Top 10 three times, Georgia Tech twice, N.C. State and Wake Forest once apiece, and Clemson has never finished in the Top 10 in its history.

In the last 10 years, Carolina finished in the Top 10 an amazing nine times, outdistancing second-place Georgetown and Kentucky, who tallied six appearances each. The year Carolina failed to make the Top 10 (1979-80), it was still ranked 15th in both polls. While the Tar Heels were finishing in 90 percent of the decade's final Top 10 polls, the next-best finish by an ACC school came from Duke, which earned four Top 10 rankings, or 50 percent fewer Top 10 finishes than UNC. Virginia, while being led by then-star center Ralph Sampson, managed three Top 10 finishes in the early part of the decade, while Georgia Tech and Maryland each had two.

ACC and NCAA Tournaments and its dominance in the national wire service polls, the Tar Heels also ranked as the 1980's winningest college basketball program. In the last 10 seasons, Carolina posted a 281-63 record, a winning percentage of 81.7. The Tar Heels won more games and lost fewer games than any other school in America during the decade. Nevada-Las Vegas had the second best record with a mark of 271-65, a percentage of 80.7. No other Atlantic Coast Conference school ranked in the Top 10 in this category.

Carolina has been ranked in the Top 10 of both polls during each of the last five years, a sterling accomplishment unparalleled by any other team in the nation over that same span. Three other schools have made the Top 10 polls four times each during that period.

Out of the 10 NCAA Tournament championships decided in the '80s, two were captured by ACC schools—Carolina in 1982 and N.C. State in 1983. Unlike the Wolfpack, who made a Cinderella journey through the NCAA field in 1983 after having struggled earlier in the season, the Tar Heels did one of the most difficult things in sports. Carolina began the 1981-82 season ranked number one, finished the regular season ranked number one and then marched through the NCAA Tournament to win the national title. It was an awesome display of consistency by Dean Smith's Tar Heels and marked one of the truly great seasons in the history of college basketball. That was also the only time in the decade that the troika of being pre-season #1, final poll top-ranked and winning the NCAA Tournament was accomplished.

Only two teams won the NCAA Tournament more than once in the '80s, and they were Louisville and Indiana. Clearly, then, to win the NCAA Tournament in times of tremendous parity is an improbable task and does not provide a barometer on which programs are best judged. The days of UCLA's dynasty in the '60s and '70s are over. Rather, it is the consistency shown by a basketball program which signifies its greatness, and not only do the Tar Heels have a national championship to show, they have the decade's best ACC record and best national record, they have appeared in every NCAA Tournament in the 1980's, including nine Final 16 appearances, and they have finished in nine of 10 Top 10 polls to prove their dominance at both the conference and national levels.

Indeed, Dean Smith has directed the North Carolina basketball program to such consistently great fortunes that, it appears, the Decade of the Ram might apply not only to the 1980's, but to the 1990's and far beyond.

THE HISTORY OF

Carolina Basketball

By Dave Lohse
Assistant Sports Information Director

The University of North Carolina is known world-wide for producing basketball teams laden with talent and integrity. From the casual sports fan to the basketball connoisseur, the Tar Heel monicker evokes memories of classic performances, stunning comebacks and thrilling victories.

Carolina's 79 seasons in the intercollegiate ranks have produced an overall record of 1458-531, making the Tar Heels second only to Kentucky in number of victories. The Wildcats have won 1464 games over an 86-season span to put them six games ahead of Carolina in the "W" column, but the Tar Heels have played seven less seasons than Kentucky. UNC and its bluegrass counterpart also sit atop the all-time winning percentage charts, with the Tar Heels having posted a sparkling .733 mark during the program's fabled past.

Only nine of the 78 Tar Heel teams have suffered through losing seasons and no Carolina coach has ever retired with a cumulative losing mark. The closest was Nat Cartmell who went 25-24 in 1911-14. From 1911 through 1952, the UNC program had 13 different head coaches. None stayed for more than six years. Since then, the program has had only two coaches—Frank McGuire for nine years and Dean Smith for 28. Each led Carolina to an NCAA championship.

The first UNC team played in 1911. It was part of physical education classes at the University, but student Marvin Ritch led the drive for an organized team. Nathaniel Cartmell, then UNC's track and field coach who was internationally known in his own right as a sprinter, coached that first team.

Carolina played its first game February 3, 1911, beating Virginia Christian 42-21. The team played its games in Bynum Gymnasium, now the site of the University cashier's office. Carolina went 7-4 that first season, playing the likes of Tennessee, the Woodberry Forest School of Virginia and the Durham and Charlotte YMCA's. At the time, a crowd of 50 spectators for a game was considered enormous.

Cartmell was to coach the Tar Heel cagers to a 25-24 record over his four seasons. His 1912 team was only 4-5, but several thousand fans came to see the Heels play Virginia A&M in the Raleigh Auditorium, a sign that interest in and support of the sport was growing.

In 1915, Charles Doak became the coach of the Tar Heels. His 1916 squad went 12-6, the best record in the first decade of the sport in Chapel Hill. Doak had been the baseball coach for Carolina before taking over the basketball duties.

In 1917, Carolina scored its first victory over then arch-rival Virginia in 13 tries, 35-24. That Tar Heel team was led by George Tennent, captain of both the 1917 and '18 Carolina squads. Luther Hodges, later to be governor of North Carolina, was a substitute on the 1917 team. Howell Peacock coached the Tar Heels for three seasons beginning in 1917 and racked up a 23-14 mark in that time.

In 1920, Fred Boye took over as head coach at Carolina. He stayed two years and compiled an 18-17 ledger.

The 1922 squad played without an official coach and went 14-6. Carolina went to Atlanta and swept the Southern Conference tournament, winning five games in five days. The Heels captured the final over Mercer, 40-25. The '22 squad was led by Cartwright "Cart" Carmichael, who was then a sophomore. He went on to be one of Carolina's all-time great players. He became UNC's first All-America in any sport in 1923 and '24, and he was an All-Southern Conference pick from '22 through '24.

In one of the most famous jump shots in Carolina basketball history, Tar Heel freshman Michael Jordan lauches a 17-footer which put North Carolina ahead for good in the 1982 NCAA championship game at the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans. In one of the greatest NCAA title games ever, Carolina beat mighty Georgetown 63-62. (Photo by Al Steele)

The five-year period beginning in 1922 was actually a glorious one for Carolina despite the fact the Tar Heels played with no coach in 1922 and '23 and with three different coaches the following three years. Carolina went 93-14 in the five-year span and won four of five Southern Conference titles and the national championship in 1924.

The 1923 team set the stage for that magnificent '24 squad by going 15-1, losing a 34-32 thriller to Ole Miss in the Southern Conference tourney final.

The '24 team proved to be something else. Led by Jack "Spratt" Cobb, Carmichael and Bill Dodderer, it rolled to a 26-0 record and was named national champion by the Helms Foundation.

Carolina's eight-man squad played for the first time in 1924 in the Indoor Athletic Center, better known as "The Tin Can." It stood on the site of what is now Fetzer Gymnasium.

Norman Shepard coached the Tar Heels in '24. It was his only season as Tar Heel mentor. He left the next year to pursue business ventures abroad. Carolina students waited at the telegraph office to hear the score of the Southrn Conference championship game, and when it was heard that UNC had beaten Alabama, 26-18, the celebration began with bells ringing at the Old South Building for an hour.

In 1925, Monk McDonald coached a Cobb-led Tar Heel squad to another Southern Conference title and an 18-5 record. Harlan Sanborn coached the '26 squad to a 20-5 mark. That team was led by National Player-of-the-Year Cobb and Dodderer, an All-Southern Conference choice from '24 through '26. Cobb, who averaged 15 points a game, unheard of in that day, was named an All-America for the third straight year. Thousands gathered in Memorial Hall to hear a telegraphic play-by-play of the Southern Conference championship game as Carolina downed Mississippi State, 37-23.

James Ashmore began an impressive five-year coaching stint with the Tar Heels in 1927. His teams were led by players like Billy Morris, Puny Harper and Bunn and Rufus Hackney. Ashmore's teams compiled a 79-37 mark in his tenure, but they never won a Southern Conference title, in fact never even reached the finals.

Norman Shepard's brother, George "Bo" Shepard, took over as coach in 1932. He brought Carolina back to national acclaim quickly. The "Charlotte Connection" provided many of the best players for UNC at that time because of the strong high school and YMCA programs in that part of the state.

Guard Tom Alexander and forward Virgil Weathers, both All-Southern Conference choices, led the '32 team to a 16-5 mark, losing 26-24 in the Southern Conference final to Georgia.

After that '32 season, the Southern Conference lost 13 schools which went on to form what is now the Southeastern Conference. There now were 10 schools remaining in the Southern Conference and the site of competition for the league tournament was changed to Raleigh.

In 1933, Shepard needed a big man for rebounding purposes and to control the jump ball after each score which was a part of the game at that time. He found his man in Jack Glace, who hadn't even made his high school squad. The Heels went 12-5 that season and lost a double overtime thriller to powerhouse South Carolina, 34-32, in the semifinals of the Southern Conference tourney. Late in the game as the Gamecocks were attempting a free throw, the officials called a technical foul on the "home" crowd for its behavior even though the game was being played 30 miles from Chapel Hill. The call is still questioned today but it helped the Gamecocks tie the score and send the game into overtime where they eventually won.

The 1934 Carolina team finished 18-4, losing to Duke in the Southern Conference tourney. Dave McCachren was the captain of that Carolina squad and was the first of four McCachren brothers to play at UNC from 1931 to '43. Each brother captained the Tar Heel team his senior year and each was elected president of the UNC Athletic Association. Besides Dave, there was Jim, who was probably the best of the four, being named All-Southern Conference three times, as well as Bill and George, who was known by the nickname "Toad."

The 1935 team won the conference championship and compiled a gaudy 23-2 mark in Shepard's last year as head coach. After that season, Shepard stepped down because of health reasons and Walter Skidmore became head coach. Skidmore continued the winning ways in Chapel Hill, leading the 1936 team to a 21-4 record and the Southern Conference title. That 1936 unit was led by Pete Mullis and Andy Bershak, who was also an All-America end in football.

Carolina had good years in 1937 and '38, but failed to win the Southern Conference title either time. Then, in 1939, Carolina suffered its first losing campaign in 19 years and Skidmore stepped down as coach. He was replaced for the 1940 season by Bill Lange, then an assistant football coach under Ray Wolf.

The 1940 Carolina team proved to be a very good one. Led by George Glamack, who was nicknamed the "Blind Bomber," UNC went 23-3. The 6-6 junior from Johnstown, Pa., could barely see the basket because of impaired vision, but his foul line hook shot was lethal. Glamack became only the third player ever designated as National Player-of-the-Year by the Helms Foundation twice, both in 1940 and in '41. Glamack was also a two-time All-America for the Heels.

Other stars on those teams of the early 1940's were Paul Severin, a two-time All-America end in football, and Bob Rose, an All-Southern Conference player in 1941. Glamack averaged 20.6 points a game for the Tar Heels, an amazing statistic given the fact teams only scored in the 40's and 50's during that era.

As in other sports, the World War II years in basketball were crazy ones. The Carolina team lost many players to service obligations during this time—in fact, only one letterman was available for the 1943 team. In 1944, the Tar Heels played 11 contests against service teams. Lange stepped down as coach after the 1944 season and his five-year record was an impressive 85-41.

Ben Carnevale took over as head coach in 1945 and the Tar Heels motored to an outstanding 22-6 ledger and the Southern Conference championship. The star of that team was Jim Jordan, who was named an All-America that season.

The 1946 team was an outstanding one. Led by All-America John "Hook," Dillon, Jordan and 6-6 Horace "Bones" McKinney, it made it all the way to the NCAA championship game before losing to Oklahoma A&M 43-40. McKinney had left N.C. State to resume his post-World War II career at Carolina and he helped lead the Heels to a 30-5 mark. Carnevale left after the season was over to take the coaching job at the Naval Academy. He was replaced by Tom Scott.

At this time, basketball in the South was booming. North Carolina State was becoming a formidable rival and the Southern Conference Tournament was moved to Duke Indoor Stadium for additional seating.

Scott's first team, in 1947, was led by Jim Hamilton and Bob Paxton. It posted a 19-8 record and lost in the conference finals to N.C. State. Unfortunately, that would be the first of 15 successive losses to the Wolfpack.

Scott produced 20-win seasons in both '48 and '49, but lost thrice to N.C. State each year, including heart-

A great night in Carmichael Auditorium's storied history occurred February 16, 1980. Carolina players mob starting center Jeff Wolf after he dunked over vaunted Virginia center Ralph Sampson on two successive possessions. Wolf's heroics broke open a close game, sending the Carmichael denizens into a frenzy en route to a 68-51 Tar Heel victory.

breakers in the tournament. Coy Carson and Hugo Kappler both made All-Southern Conference in 1949.

The next three campaigns produced a trio of mediocre records and Scott resigned following the '52 season. He was replaced by Frank McGuire, a 38-year-old native of Greenwich Village in New York City. Formerly the coach at St. John's in Jamaica, N.Y., McGuire was successful at luring many outstanding New York basketball stars to Chapel Hill through his connections to the area, the first of whom was Jerry Vayda.

McGuire's first team, in 1953, proved to be a scrappy unit. It didn't have great talent, but it ended up 17-10 and beat N.C. State in Raleigh, breaking a six-year losing streak to the Pack. During the off-season, Carolina and seven other schools left the Southern Conference to join what has become one of college basketball's most powerful leagues, the Atlantic Coast Conference. The next two years produced average records, 11-10 in 1954 and 10-11 a year later, but McGuire was building a foundation for future greatness. Lennie Rosenbluth, from New York City, debuted for the Tar Heels in 1955 as a sophomore and averaged 25.5 points per game.

In 1956, a great new class joined holdovers Rosenbluth, Vayda, Tony Radovich and Bob Young. The new sophomore class included Pete Brennan, Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg, Bob Cunningham and Roy Searcy. That '56 team went 18-5 setting the stage for what happened a year later.

In 1957, McGuire had a lineup that consisted of the 6-6 Brennan, 6-5 Rosenbluth and 6-9 Quigg on the front line with Cunningham and Kearns in the backcourt. En route to its 32-0 record, Carolina had to avoid a couple of close calls in the regular season against Duke and a double overtime contest versus Maryland. The closest call of all may have come in the ACC Tournament semifinals when the Heels edged Wake Forest 61-59. Once in the NCAA's, Carolina swept past three opponents to set up a meeting with Michigan State in the semifinals.

It took three overtimes, but Carolina finally vanquished the Spartans, 74-70. That set the stage for a showdown with Dick Harp's Kansas Jayhawks, led by the great Wilt "The Stilt" Chamberlain. At Kansas City's old Municipal Auditorium, UNC needed another three overtimes to subdue KU, 54-53, on Quigg's two free throws with six seconds to play in the third extra session. Thousands turned out at the airport to welcome their conquering heroes home. Rosenbluth concluded his brilliant career by being named an All-America, All-ACC for the third straight year and the Helms National Player-of-the-Year.

In 1958, a Carolina team led by All-America and ACC Player-of-the-Year Brennan finished 19-7. Lee Shaffer and Dick Kepley, soon to be Carolina stars in their own right, joined the squad as sophomores. The 1959 team may have been McGuire's second best among his nine teams at UNC. Doug Moe, York Larese and Lou Brown joined the team and Carolina finished 20-5, losing in the finals of the ACC Tournament and in the first round of the NCAA Tournament to Navy.

A year later, Carolina had another outstanding season under McGuire. The Heels finished 18-6 overall, losing to Duke in the ACC tourney. Shaffer was named a first team All-America that year.

The 1961 season produced a good team and a 19-4 record. It was the senior year for Moe, Larese and Kepley. Moe was an All-America that season and together with Larese, they were called the L&M twins. McGuire chose to accept an offer from the Philadelphia Warriors of the NBA at this time. His nine-season record at Carolina was a brilliant 164-58.

The man who stepped into the void was a native Kansan by the name of Dean Edwards Smith. He had been lured to Carolina in 1958 from the Air Force Academy to be McGuire's assistant. He assumed the head coaching duties at age 30 and since has built a program that is a model for integrity and success in college athletics.

Coach Smith's first team in 1962 compiled an 8-9 record, his only losing season as a head coach. But his players did give him a victory in his first coaching outing, 80-46 over Virginia. It would prove to be a harbinger of things to come. After that victory, Smith said, "I've never been as scared in my life."

In 1963, Billy Cunningham, affectionately known as "The Kangaroo Kid," joined the varsity and became an immediate star. Averaging 22.7 points and 16 rebounds, he helped lead the Tar Heels to a 15-6 record. A year later, Cunningham was still awesome, but the Tar Heels' record dipped to 12-12. Help for the future arrived, however, in the form of highly-touted frosh Bob Lewis.

Lewis moved up to the varsity in '65 and with All-America Cunningham, the two combined for 46.4 points per game as Carolina went 15-9. Cunningham left Carolina as its all-time leader in rebounds and one of the most prolific rebounders and scorers in conference history. A two-time All-America and three-time All-ACC selection, he went on to a great professional playing and coaching career, mainly with the Philadelphia 76ers.

For 1966, Cunningham was gone, but Lewis was now joined by soon-to-be superstar Larry Miller. The Tar Heels moved out of Woollen Gymnasium and into 8,800-seat Carmichael Auditorium which would evolve into one of the most famous arenas in college basketball history. The '66 squad finished only 16-11, but it was obvious greatness was just around the corner.

The 1967 team proved to be Coach Smith's first truly great squad at Carolina. Lewis and Miller were joined on the varsity by sophomores like 6-11 Rusty Clark, Bill Bunting, Dick Grubar and Joe Brown. The season resulted in a 26-6 ledger and the Tar Heels finished third in the final Associated Press poll and fourth in United Press International's rankings. The '67 campaign marked the begin ning of a string of three successive first-place finishes in the ACC regular-season standings, three straight ACC tourney titles and three consecutive NCAA East Regional championships for Smith and his troops. The '67 squad was characterized by an enthusiastic, gambling defense that has become a trademark of Smith teams.

Lewis graduated after '67, but the great Charlie Scott arrived to take his place in the Carolina lineup as the Heels prepared for the 1968 season. Scott was the first black player on the Carolina varsity and he started from the beginning of his sophomore year. The '68 team was an outstanding one and made it all the way to the NCAA finals before losing to UCLA and Lew Alcindor. The Heels' final record that year was 28-4, best yet under Smith's tutelage. Miller was All-America and All-ACC for the second straight year.

Heading into 1969, Miller was gone, but the remaining core of those great teams returned. Carolina went 27-5, won the ACC's for the third straight year and was again in the Final Four. Scott, Bunting, Clark and Grubar led that team as well as junior guard Eddie Fogler.

The 1970 squad entered that season decimated by graduation. The tremendous seniors of the year before—Bunting, Clark and Grubar—had graduated. Carolina finished 18-9 but was buoyed by the addition of sophomores Dennis Wuycik, Bill Chamberlain and Steve Previs, all solid players. Scott made All-ACC for the third consecutive year and first team All-America for the second. In his final home game, Scott left to a thunderous standing ovation when Smith took him out. The crowd chanted "We want Scott!" and Smith reinserted him in the lineup and of course, Scott responded with a basket. Carolina lost in the first round of the ACC Tournament that year and accepted an NIT bid. It would be the last time UNC failed to win 20 games in a season and the last time a Carolina team would fail to finish in either wire service poll's Top 20.

The 1971 team was not expected to do much in the pre-season ratings. But it rolled up a 26-6 record and won the ACC regular-season title and the NIT championship. Sophomore George Karl moved up to the varsity and formed a great backcourt with Previs. Wuycik was a first team All-ACC choice and Chamberlain the Most Valuable Player of the NIT.

Carolina returned to the Final Four in 1972 with a 26-5 record. Robert McAdoo, a junior college transfer, was outstanding for the Heels that year along with returnees Wuycik, Chamberlain, Karl and Previs. Sixth-man Bobby Jones, a 6-8 sophomore, showed great promise for the future. Carolina won the ACC regular-season and tournament titles before losing to Florida State in the NCAA Final Four. After the season, McAdoo declared himself eligible for the NBA draft.

Carolina returned to the NIT in 1973 and reached the semifinals after losing in the first round of the ACC Tournament. The 25-8 squad was led by the play of Karl and, in the first year freshmen were again eligible to play under NCAA rules, Mitch Kupchak showed signs of greatness inside.

The 1974 team was led by All-America and All-ACC player Jones. It compiled a 22-6 record and made a return trip to the NIT after losing to Maryland in the ACC semifinals. That team featured a freshman class of Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester, which would lead Carolina back to the Final Four three years later. The season will also be remembered for the memorable comeback the Tar Heels made against Duke in Carmichael Auditorium. Trailing by eight points with 17 seconds to play, the Heels rallied to tie the contest on a half-court shot by Davis as time expired, UNC went on to win in overtime, 96-92. 1974 also marked the last time Carolina failed to make the NCAA Tournament, a streak now numbering a record 15 years.

In 1975, the wonderous Phil Ford arrived on campus as a freshman and he had an immediate impact on Carolina basketball fortunes. He became the first freshman under Smith to start the first game of his freshman year, a feat since matched by Mike O'Koren, James Worthy, Michael Jordan, Kenny Smith, J.R. Reid, Pete Chilcutt and Rick Fox. As a frosh, Ford won the Everett Case Award as MVP of the ACC tourney as Carolina beat defending national champion N.C. State in the finals, 70-66. The Tar Heels had to survive overtime games with Wake Forest and Clemson in the first two rounds of the tourney just to get into the title game. Overall that Carolina team finished 23-8 and was eliminated in the NCAA East Regional by Syracuse.

A year later, in Kupchak's senior year, the Tar Heels had one of their best teams ever under Smith, but it was undone by injuries and bad luck at season's end. First team All-Americas Kupchak and Ford led UNC to a 25-4 mark and a 13-1 ACC slate. But Carolina was upset in the ACC finals by Virginia and then lost to Alabama in the first round of the NCAA's with Ford hurt.

That summer, however, Carolina would mine Olympic gold in Montreal in a big way as Kupchak, LaGarde, Ford and Davis would all play on the victorious U.S. squad which was coached by Smith and his Carolina assistant, Bill Guthridge.

The 1977 campaign marked a return to the Final Four for the first time in five years as UNC posted a 28-5 mark. A mid-season knee injury to LaGarde ended his career early and then Davis broke his thumb in the ACC tourney semifinals. Led by Kuester, the Tar Heels persevered and beat Virginia in the tournament finals. Carolina used its up-tempo style to perfection in conjunction with the four corners offense in scoring NCAA wins over Purdue, Notre Dame, Kentucky and UNLV. All were of the comeback variety save the win over the Wildcats. Ford was hurt in the Notre Dame game and played the remainder of the tourney at less than 100 percent. After freshman O'Koren helped the Heels into the finals with 31 against Vegas, the Tar Heels fell to Marquette, 67-59, in the championship contest.

The 1978 team had to play minus LaGarde, Davis and Kuester—no easy task. It was Ford's senior year and the Rocky Mount, N.C., native would be tapped for National Player-of-the-Year honors as UNC went 23-8. In an emotional Carmichael farewell, Ford scored a career-high 34 as UNC beat Duke 87-83 to clinch first place in the regular-season standings over the Blue Devils. Losses to Wake Forest in the ACC Tournament and San Francisco in the NCAA Tournament would dampen Tar Heel spirits, but couldn't diminish the greatness of Ford, a three-time All-America and Carolina's all-time leading scorer.

The 1979 squad was not ranked highly in the pre-season but won Smith ACC and National Coach-of-the-Year honors after finishing 23-6. O'Koren, senior defensive wizard Dudley Bradley and sophomore sharpshooter Al Wood led this squad. During the regular season, UNC beat eventual national champion Michigan State and scored an infamous 70-69 win at N.C. State on Bradley's last-second steal and dunk.

Carolina tied for the ACC regular-season championship with Duke and beat the Blue Devils 71-63 in the ACC tourney finals. The season ended in frustration with an upset loss to Penn in the NCAA's, and Bradley went on to the pros.

The 1980 squad was led by a senior class which featured O'Koren, a first team All-America in 1979 and 1980. The Heels finished 21-8, losing to Duke in the ACC semifinals and to Texas A&M in the NCAA's second round. UNC finished 15th in both wire service polls, the last time it missed making the Top 10.

The 1981 team would start a string of nine straight Carolina teams that have won a minimum of 27 games and advanced to the Sweet 16 of the NCAA Tournament. Led by Wood and Worthy, UNC finished 29-8 in 1981 and won the ACC Tournament and reached the Final Four where it beat conference foe Virginia in the semifinals behind Wood's 39 points. Two days later, Indiana beat the Tar Heels for the national championship.

But that only set the stage for a 1982 squad which won it all. Pre-season rated #1, the Tar Heels finished the regular season that way and went on to win the NCAA championship. The squad's 32-2 record equalled the school record for victories in a season as the Tar Heels swept through the ACC Tournament and the East Regional. There were countless heroes on the '82 team. Worthy was co-National Player-of-the-Year and he scored a career-high 28 points in Carolina's 63-62 win over Georgetown in the finals. Sam Perkins was a first team All-America and was joined in the lineup by point guard Jimmy Black, forward Matt Doherty and freshman Michael Jordan. Jordan hit the 17-foot jump shot with 17 seconds left to give the Heels the winning points against the Hoyas.

Worthy was drafted after his junior year by the Los Angeles Lakers, but the 1983 squad returned a strong nucleus led by Perkins and Jordan, both of whom were first team All-Americas that year with Jordan earning some National Player-of-the-Year recognition. The Heels finished 28-8 after an 0-2 start and were ranked #1 in the nation during several weeks in January and February. After tying for the ACC regular-season title, the Heels made it to the finals of the East Regional before being upset by Georgia. Possibly the highlight of that season was a 16-point comeback victory over Virginia in Carmichael in February in a battle of the nation's two top-ranked teams.

In 1984, Smith had one of his best teams before it fell victim to the injury bug. At 28-3, the Heels became only the sixth team in ACC history to go through the conference round-robin undefeated at 14-0. Jordan was a consensus National Player-of-the-Year and Perkins was All-ACC and first team All-America for the third straight year. Point guard Kenny Smith had his wrist broken in the LSU game and he never fully recovered, hurting Carolina in the post-season.

The 1985 team was another one of Smith's overachieving squads. Ignored in the pre-season Top 20's for the first time in recent memory, UNC went 27-9 minus Perkins and Jordan and finished tied for first in the ACC regular season standings. Junior Brad Daugherty and Smith spearheaded that team to the finals of the NCAA Southeast Regional before losing to eventual national champion Villanova.

The 1986 unit, led by first team All-America Daugherty, produced another outstanding campaign. The Tar Heels finished 28-6, but were decimated in the post-season by injuries to Steve Hale, Warren Martin and Joe Wolf. For the second straight year Carolina was ousted from the NCAA Tournament by the eventual national champion, Louisville.

The 1987 squad proved to be another one of Smith's best. Led by a strong senior nucleus which featured All-ACC players Smith and Wolf, UNC tied the school record for victories in a season with 32 in a 32-4 campaign. For the second time in four years, UNC finished the ACC regular season undefeated at 14-0. Ranked second and third in the final wire service polls, UNC advanced to the NCAA East Regional finals before falling to Syracuse, 79-75. Smith capped a brilliant career as UNC's all-time leader in assists by being named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times.

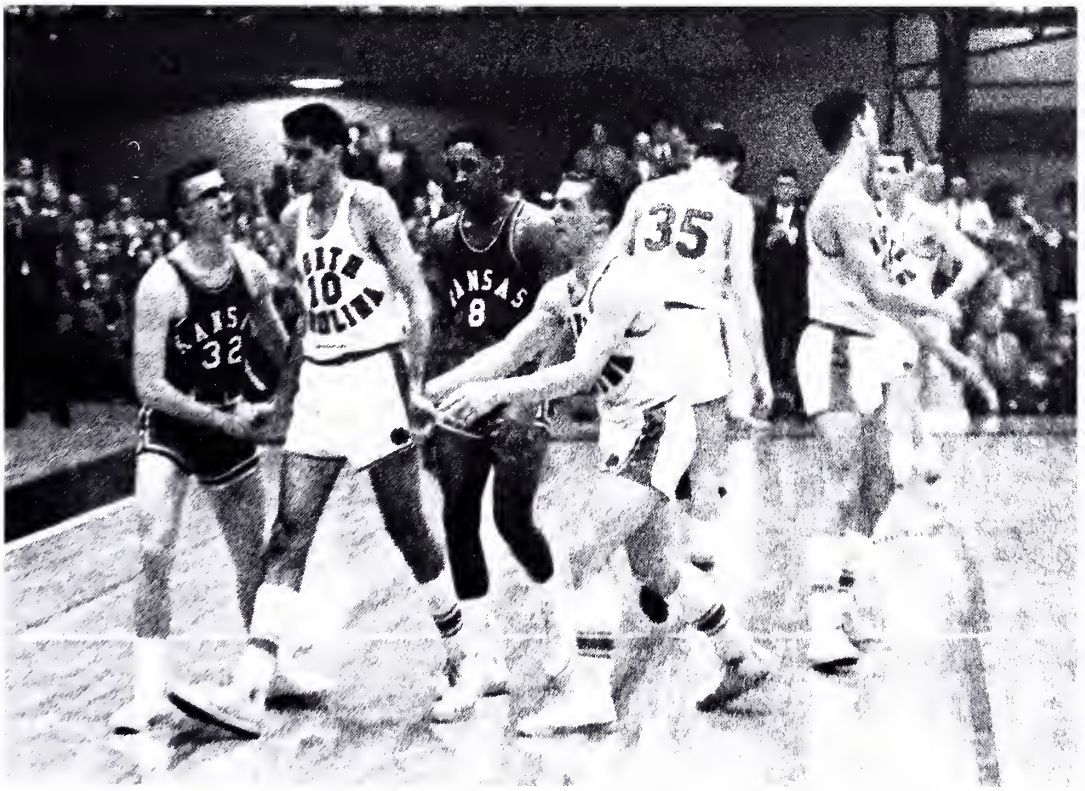
Going into the 1988 season, many experts saw the Tar Heels as an inexperienced bunch that might struggle a little bit more than previous UNC squads. But yet again, Smith assembled a fine Carolina team and coached it to a 27-7 record and a berth in the NCAA Tournament, where the Tar Heels fought their way to the West Regional finals in Seattle behind the play of All-America sophomore forward J.R. Reid. En route to the post-season appearance, the young Carolina team opened the season with a thrilling come-from-behind victory over top-ranked Syracuse in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic in Springfield, Mass.,

In what is regarded as the greatest comeback in college basketball history, Walter Davis banks in a 35-foot bomb at the buzzer to send the 1974 Carolina-Duke game at Carmichael Auditorium into overtime. The Tar Heels trailed their traditional arch-rivals by eight points with only 17 seconds remaining in regulation before rallying to tie the game with Davis' miraculous shot providing the finishing touches. In the overtime, the Blue Devils took a four-point lead but UNC came back again and won, 96-92, on March 2, 1974 in Chapel Hill.



After a great final performance in which he scored 20 points and pulled down five rebounds, 1957 National Player-of-the-Year Lennie Rosenbluth walks dejectedly from the court after fouling out late in regulation time of the 1957 NCAA title game with Kansas. Rosenbluth is congrautlated by teammate Tommy Kearns and Kansas players Bob Billings and Maurice King. setting the tone for another great season in Chapel Hill. The Tar Heels captured the regular-season ACC crown for a second consecutive year and went on to defeat North Texas, Loyola Marymount and Michigan in the NCAA's before succumbing to a loaded Arizona squad, 70-52, in a battle for a spot in the Final Four.

Only Ranzino Smith graduated from the 1988 team, allowing Coach Smith the luxury of an experienced 1989 squad. Led by seniors Jeff Lebo and Steve Bucknall, the Tar Heels won their first ACC tournament crown in seven years. Carolina went on to the final 16 of the NCAA tournament for the ninth straight year, but fell to eventual champion Michigan, 92-87. Carolina's 29-8 record marked the 19th straight season in which the Tar Heels had won at least 20 games and the ninth successive campaign in which they won at least 27. UNC was ranked fourth and fifth in the final wire service polls and reached the Round of 16 in the NCAA's for the ninth consecutive year.

CAROLINA'S

Greatest Players

This season, the University of North Carolina has the opportunity to become the winningest basketball program in the history of college athletics.

Since the first basketball contest in Chapel Hill back in 1911, the Tar Heels have won 1,458 basketball games. Only the University of Kentucky, which has played seven more seasons than the Tar Heels, has won more than that. The Wildcats' total is 1,464 wins or, just six more victories in seven more seasons.

If Dean Smith's 1989-90 squad continues to dominate opponents as in years past and new Kentucky coach Rick Pitino takes more than a season to rebuild the Wildcats, then the University of North Carolina will begin the 1990's as the NCAA's winningest basketball program.

The credit for such an achievement goes to some of the most dominant and talented players in the history of the game.

From Olympic gold medalists and National Players-of-the-Year to scoring champions and defensive standouts, North Carolina basketball teams have been filled with players who have done it all.

The Tar Heels' first great basketball success came in the 1920's. The 1922 team won the Southern Conference championship and the 1923 squad captured the South Atlantic title. Those teams had no regular coaches, but were simply taken to games by Coaches Bob and Bill Fetzer, experts in almost every sport but basketball.

Norman Shepard was hired to handle the basketball program in 1924 and he promptly led the Tar Heels to a 26-0 record. Carolina won the Southern Conference championship that year and was declared national champion by the Helms Foundation.

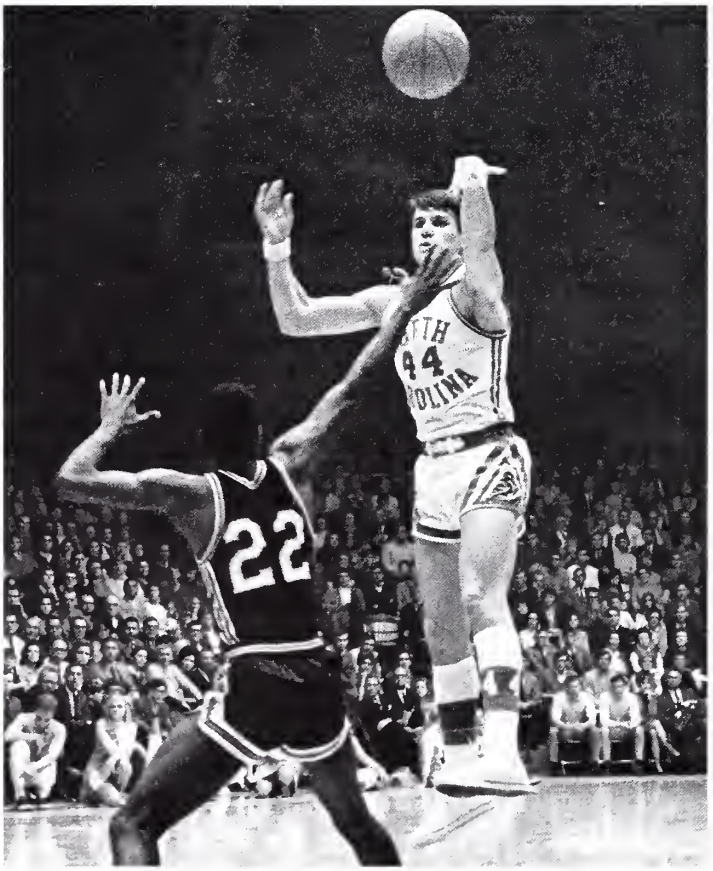
That team featured three truly outstanding players—Cartwright Carmichael, Jack Cobb and Monk McDonald. While the style of play has changed drastically since then, these three men are still recognized as three of Carolina's greatest stars ever.

Cobb is a member of the Helms Basketball Hall of Fame. He was a three-time All-America and the Helms Foundation Player-of-the-Year in 1926. At a time when most teams were barely scoring 30 points a game, he averaged 15 as a senior. Carmichael was twice named All-America and McDonald was an all-conference performer.

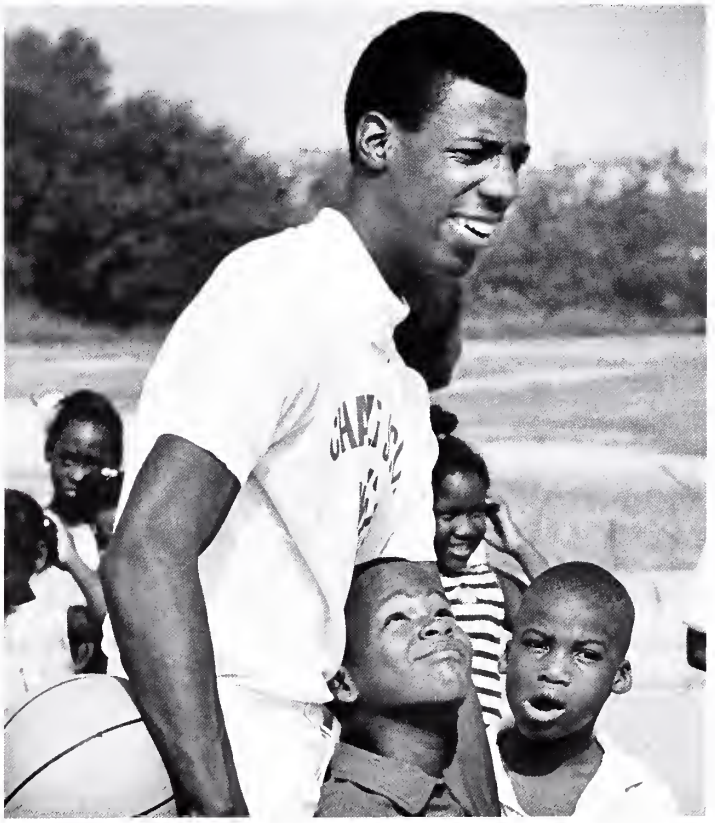
Although the Tar Heels did not have an All-America like Cobb or Carmichael in the 1930's, there were many outstanding players. Ivan (Jack) Glace, Earl Ruth, Virgil Weathers, Tom Alexander, Jim McCachren and Stewart (Snooks) Aitken made the All-Southern Conference team during that decade.

The big star of the 1940's was George Glamack—"The Blind Bomber." Glamack had terrible eyesight and could barely see the basket while standing underneath it. However, he developed an uncanny sense of knowledge of his position on the court in relation to the basket. He perfected a hook shot with either hand that he could deliver with great accuracy. He was a two-time All-America and Helms National Player-of-the-Year in 1940 and 1941. He's now in the Hall of Fame.

All-America John (Hook) Dillon was the key figure on the 1946 team which lost to



A two-time Atlantic Coast Conference Player-of-the-Year, Larry Miller was a key figure in Carolina's drive to ACC titles and NCAA Final Four appearances in both 1967 and 1968.



One of the most dynamic players in Carolina history, Charles Scott was a force both offensively and defensively on Tar Heel teams from 1968-70. When Dean Smith recruited Scott out of New York City to the Chapel Hill campus in fall 1966, he was the first black scholarship athlete in the University's history.

Aptly nicknamed "The Kangaroo Kid," Billy Cunningham was one of the most prolific scorers and rebounders in ACC history. A two-time first-team All-America, Cunningham was Coach Smith's first truly great player. He went on to a successful career in the pro ranks as a player, coach, television commentator and owner.

Oklahoma State in the NCAA finals. Dillon, however, had an excellent supporting cast in Jim Jordan, Bones McKinney, Jim White and Bob Paxton. Jordan, in fact, had been an All-America in 1945 and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern Conference.

Eleven years later, the Tar Heels again played for the national championship. This time they won the NCAA title, defeating Wilt Chamberlain and Kansas, 54-53, in a triple-overtime thriller that rates among the greatest college games ever played.

Lennie Rosenbluth was the star of that team. He averaged a school-record 28.0 points a game and was National Player-of-the-Year. Other starters on that undefeated team were Pete Brennan (an All-America the following season), Tommy Kearns, Joe Quigg and Bob Cunningham. It was Quigg who hit two free throws with six seconds on the clock in the third overtime to win the final game in that 32-0 season.

The stars were many durin the 1960's. Big Lee Shaffer was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player-of-the-Year in 1960. Shaffer was a great scorer and later was an all-star performer in the National Basketball Association with the Syracuse Nationals. York Larese and Doug Moe also starred for the Tar Heels in the early part of that decade. Larese ranks as one of the most prolific free throw shooters in Carolina history. Moe was a sensational all-around star and now coaches in the NBA with the Denver Nuggets.

A teammate of Moe's was Larry Brown, a diminutive guard who rates as one of Carolina's finest playmakers. Brown played on the 1964 U.S. Olympic team which won the gold medal.

Billy Cunningham, a three-time All-ACC selection, was the next star on the Carolina horizon. He made All-America in 1964 and '65. Only 6-5 1/2, he led the conference in rebounding three times and in scoring twice. The "Kangaroo Kid" went on to a great professional career as both a player with and the head coach of the Philadelphia 76ers. He is now a part owner of the Miami Heat.

Bobby Lewis, a slender sharpshooter from Washington, D.C., followed Cunningham into the Tar Heel spotlight. He still holds Carolina's single-game scoring record with 49 points against Florida State in 1965.

Next came Larry Miller, an All-America in 1967 and '68. He led his team to the national finals where the Tar Heels lost to Lew Alcindor and UCLA in 1968. Miller twice was named the ACC Player-of-the-Year. At 6-4 and 215 pounds, he was a rugged performer who dazzled crowds with driving lay-ups and a great variety of shots.

Bill Bunting, Rusty Clark and Dick Grubar were starters on Carolina teams which won three straight ACC regular-season and tournament championships, swept three Eastern Regionals and went to the Final Four in 1967, 1968 and 1969.

Bunting had a great senior season and made All-ACC. Grubar was literally one of the most popular athletes to wear Carolina Blue and was an outstanding playmaker and defender. Clark was a tough defensive player and a tremendous rebounder.

The National Player-of-the-Year in 1957, Lennie Rosenbluth was the key cog on what most consider to be the greatest team in Tar Heel history. The New York native led that 1957 squad to an undefeated season and a national championship, winning an incredibly thrilling triple overtime game against favored Kansas in the finals.

Then there was Charlie Scott, who excelled in every phase of the game. He made All-America in his junior and senior seasons and was voted ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1970. In 1968, he starred for the United States in the Olympic Games, leading the team to the gold medal.

Three-fine frontcourt players—Bill Chamberlain, Dennis Wuycik and Robert McAdoo—sparked Carolina teams in the early 1970's. Chamberlain was the Most Valuable Player in the 1971 National Invitation Tournament as the Tar Heels swept that title. Wuycik was a fine shooter and an aggressive rebounder. McAdoo had a great shooting touch and was an excellent rebounder. That trio led the Tar Heels to the NCAA's Final Four in 1972.

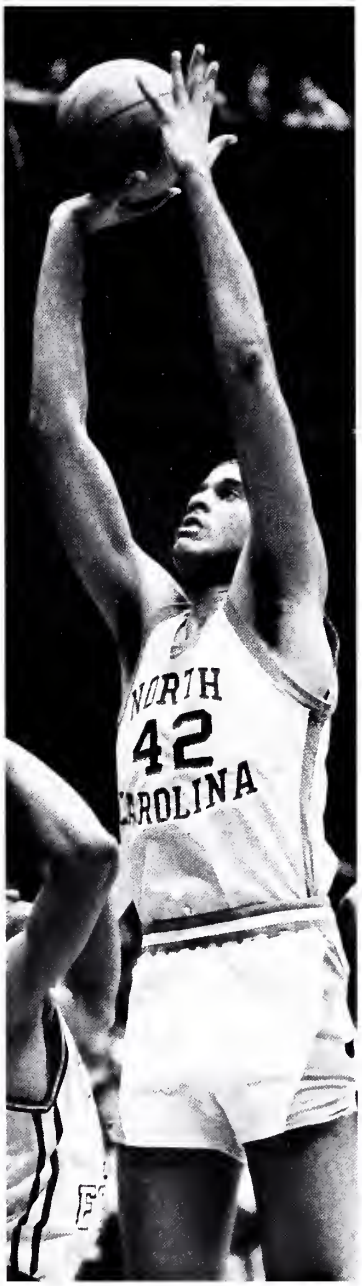
Another All-ACC performer in that period was George Karl, a three-year starter and highly popular player. He amazed fans with his daring plays and his propensity for diving on the court after loose balls.

One of the most complete players in the history of the college game was forward Bobby Jones. Jones had great quickness and was a superb defender. He retired from the NBA four seasons ago after an outstanding career.

Another great all-around player was Mitch Kupchak, the 1976 ACC Player-of-the-Year. Kupchak led the Tar Heels to a 25-4 record his senior season and later played a key role in the Washington Bullets' 1978 NBA championship sweep and the Los Angeles Lakers' 1985 NBA title drive.

In the mid-1970's, came Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and John Kuester. They played on Carolina teams which won 98 games and lost only 23. All three were excellent defensive players and good shooters.

Davis, in fact, is regarded as one of the greatest clutch players in Tar Heel history. He's a former NBA Rookie-of-the-Year and an all-pro performer. Kuester was the Most Valuable Player in both the ACC Tournament and the NCAA Eastern Regionals as a senior. LaGarde was an All-America whose mid-season knee injury may have cost the Tar Heels the national championship in 1977.



One of the NBA's rising young stars with the Cleveland Cavaliers, Brad Daugherty was a spectacular player at Carolina from 1983-86. He is the school's career leader in field goal percentage and ranks high on Tar Heel record lists in many other categories.

And, of course, there was Phil Ford. He was the National Player-of-the-Year in 1978 and is the all-time Carolina leader in scoring and second assists. He has been called the greatest point guard to ever play college basketball. Ford also won NBA Rookie-of-the-Year honors in 1979 with the Kansas City Kings. He has now returned to his alma mater as an assistant to Head Coach Dean Smith.

One of the best defensive players in ACC history was Dudley Bradley. A first-round pro draft choice, Bradley was the Most Valuable Player of the 1979 ACC Tournament.

The next big stars were a trio of dynamic forwards — Mike O'Koren, Al Wood and James Worthy. O'Koren was the sixth player chosen in the 1980 NBA draft after completing a brilliant Carolina career. He ranks among the school's all-time leaders in scoring, rebounding and assists.

Wood capped four sensational years by leading the Tar Heels to the 1981 NCAA championship game. He set an NCAA semifinal-round record with 39 points against Virginia. Always a great shooter, Wood developed into a complete player at Carolina. He was the first senior selected in the NBA draft in 1981.

Worthy was named Co-National Player-of-the-Year in 1982 after leading the Tar Heels to a 32-2 record and the NCAA championship. Worthy saved perhaps his greatest performances of his career for the stretch drive that year, being named MVP in the ACC Tournament, the Eastern Regionals and the Final Four. He had a career-high 28 points against Georgetown in the NCAA Finals as a one-man wrecking crew and was the first player chosen in the 1982 NBA draft by the Los Angeles Lakers.

Another key player on the 1982 team was Jimmy Black. As the senior point guard, Black quarterbacked the Tar Heels through one of the school's greatest seasons. He has the fourth-highest all-time assist total at the school and ended his career as an outstanding defensive player.

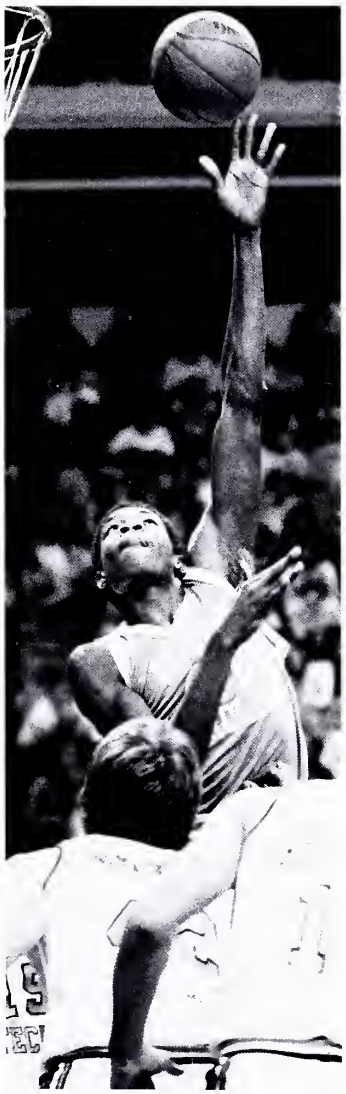
Other starters on that national championship team were Matt Doherty, Sam Perkins and Michael Jordan. Doherty was a perfect role player for the Tar Heels. Whatever needed to be done, he was capable of doing — whether that meant a big defensive play, an important basket or a perfectly executed pass. He and Davis are two of just four ACC players to finish their careers with 1,000 points, 400 rebounds and 400 assists.



Another key player in Carolina's great teams of the early 1980's was steady Sam Perkins, the long-armed rebounding and scoring machine from Latham, N.Y. Perkins ended his Tar Heel career as the University's leading rebounder and second-leading scorer.

Perkins ranks as Carolina's second-leading all-time scorer and is the top rebounder in school history. A brilliant defensive player, he was one of the biggest stars on the 1984 U.S. Olympic team in Los Angeles which won the gold medal. But that was to be expected. Perkins always seemed to be at his best in the biggest games. Some of his top performances came against opponents named Sampson, Tisdale, Olajuwon and Ewing.

Jordan was the unanimous 1984 National Player-of-the-Year after being named the nation's top player in 1983 by The Sporting News. A 6-5 guard, Jordan was capable of dominating a game both offensively and defensively. It was his jump shot with 17 seconds to play which gave the Tar Heels the winning points in the 1982 NCAA Finals. He followed that up with more last-minute heroics during the next two seasons, and was the leading scorer on the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team. His accolades in the NBA have included Rookie-of-the-Year, Defensive-Player-of-the-Year and Player-of-the-Year. He is a legitimate NBA superstar and currently the game's most dominant presence.

The number-one pick in 1986's NBA draft was Brad Daugherty, who had an outstanding four-year career in Chapel Hill. Daugherty left Carolina as the school's fourth-leading all-time rebounder and seventh-leading scorer. A great inside scoring threat, he broke Bobby Jones' career field goal accuracy mark with a percentage of 61.99.

The 1987 Carolina squad tied a school record for victories in a season while going 32-4. The leaders of that squad were a pair of seniors who were both selected in the first round of 1987's NBA draft. Kenny Smith was named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times that year, capping a brilliant Tar Heel career which saw him finish as UNC's career leader in assists. Joe Wolf was the consummate role player—a great shooter and passer and one of Carolina's best defensive players ever.

A freshman on that 1987 team was J.R. Reid, who was selected fifth by the Charlotte Hornets in last season's NBA draft. Reid decided to turn professional after his junior season, the fourth Carolina player under Dean Smith to do so, and though he only played at Carolina for three years, he achieved Carolina's third highest career field goal percentage, 15th highest scoring total and 11th highest number of career rebounds.

Reid is just the latest in a long line of outstanding athletes who have helped make the Carolina basketball program what it is today— the best in college game.

A member of three world championship teams with the Los Angeles Lakers, James Worthy would get many votes as Carolina's top power forward of all time. He was the spiritual and physical leader of Carolina's 32-2 NCAA championship squad of 1982. (Photo by Al Steele)

CAROLINA BASKETBALL IN

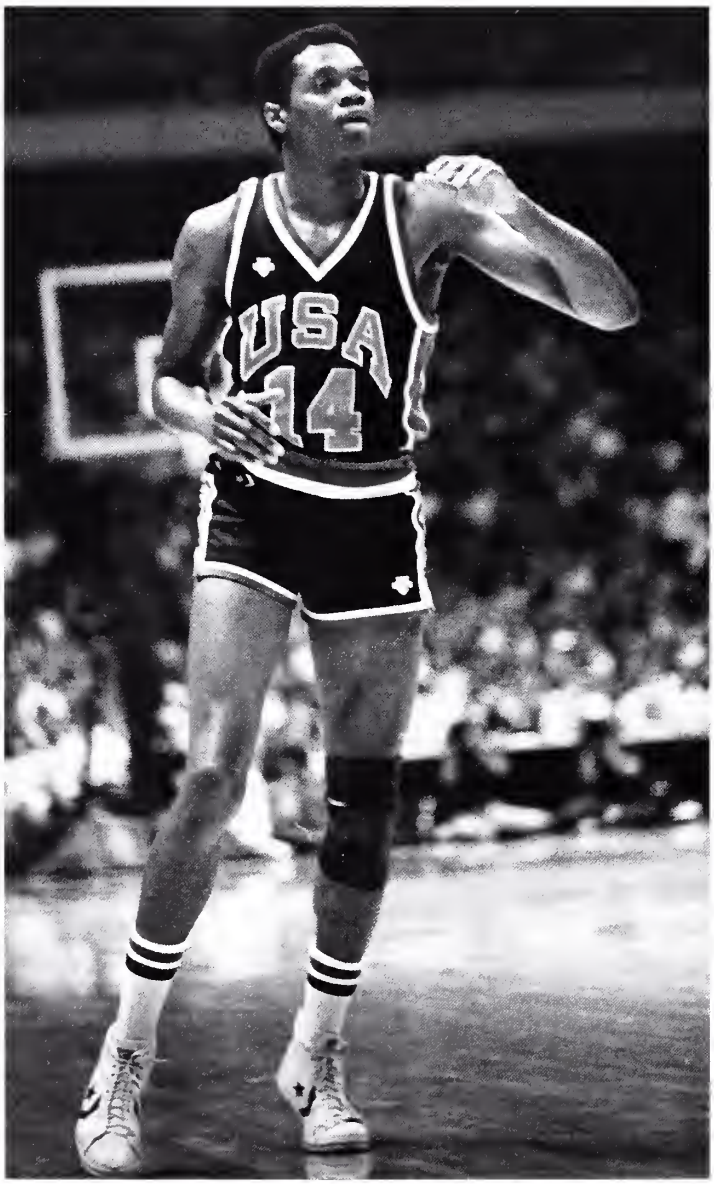
International Competition

The legendary talents of University of North Carolina basketball players have been displayed not only within the limits of the Atlantic Coast Conference but also throughout the world. From Moscow to Mexico City, from London to Seoul, Tar Heel stars have traveled to the four corners of the globe to showcase their talents and lead the United States to many unforgettable wins in international competition.

Carolina cagers, while household names in American sports circles, have also gained fame abroad entertaining millions of fans worldwide with their sparkling brand of play.

It has practically become an off-season tradition.

Carolina players seem to adjust with relative ease to the slightly different rules and more physical play of the international game. The playmaking wizardry of a Phil Ford, for example, or the eye-popping dunks of a Michael Jordan, were just as amazing to Brazilians and Spaniards as they were to Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.



Sam Perkins was a co-captain of the 1984 U.S. Olympic team which swept past eight opponents en route to the gold metal. He had 12 points and seven rebounds in the championship game win over Spain. (Photo by Hugh Morton)

The most recent foray by Tar Heel basketball players into international play came this past summer when rising senior Kevin Madden and junior Tar Heel teammate Pete Chilcutt played on an Atlantic Coast Conference All-Star team coached by Clemson mentor Cliff Ellis in Greece.

Madden and Chilcutt's trip came on the heels of J.R. Reid's participation in the 1988 Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea. The burly forward was a member of Georgetown Coach John Thompson's team which won the bronze medal.

Just the summer before, in 1987, Jeff Lebo earned a spot on the U.S. roster to play in the Pan American Games in Indianapolis, where he and his teammates earned a silver medal. Scott Williams also got a taste of international play that year as a member of the U.S. squad which played in the Junior World Cup in Italy.

However, it has been in the Olympic Games, the world's most prestigious athletic gathering, where Carolina's basketball program has received the most international acclaim.

In fact, the last seven U.S. Olympic teams have included at least one Tar Heel each. Beginning with Larry Brown, who played on the 1964 gold-medal-winning team in Tokyo, a total of 11 Carolina players have been honored as Olympians. Even Coach Dean Smith and his chief assistant, Bill Guthridge, have been involved, guiding the 1976 U.S. squad to the gold medal in Montreal. That championship team included four Tar Heels—Mitch Kupchak, Walter Davis, Tommy LaGarde and Phil Ford. Smith has remained an important figure in international play, serving on numerous Olympic-related committees. Those have included selection committees for both players and coaches for various international events.

Jordan strung together two incredible weeks at the 1984 Summer Games held in Los Angeles. A two-time National Player-of-the-Year, he led the U.S. in scoring (17.1 ppg)—and in rave reviews.

Jordan, of course, wasn't the only Tar Heel to win critical acclaim in Los Angeles. Sam Perkins may not have been as spectacular as Jordan, but his play was nonetheless brilliant and his consistency unmatched.

Before the Games began, Jordan and Perkins were named U.S. co-captains. Their accomplishments in leading the U.S. to an eight-game sweep of the gold medal proved them more than worthy of that honor. Despite his high scoring average, it was Jordan's mid-air magic that so often left opponents standing flat-footed, staring at him in disbelief.

His long jumpers and acrobatic moves thrilled the fans, delighted the news media and awed opposing coaches.

"Today he showed me nothing incredible," Spanish coach Antonio Diaz-Miguel said after his team fell to the U.S. "He is always the same. He comes in there like an airplane. I don't know how he remains in the air while everyone else is going down. He is elastic."

But Jordan's own teammates and coaches were probably more impressed with him than anyone.

"I'm not sure anyone who watches the Olympics will be able to appreciate Jordan as much as our coaches and players do in practice," said Southern Cal Coach George Raveling, a U.S. assistant coach in the 1984 games. "One day, here in L.A., he made a move to the basket that just stunned the players. (Patrick) Ewing looked at (Wayman) Tisdale and just shook his head. He couldn't believe it."

Jordan was at his best in the first of two games versus Spain. He scored 24 points, sinking his last nine shots from the floor to finish 12 of 14. His steal and 35-foot jumper at the halftime buzzer gave the Americans a 46-41 lead. The U.S. blitzed the Spaniards in the second half to win, 101-68.

Perkins scored more than eight points a game and was America's third-leading rebounder during the Los Angeles fortnight. His inside defense was also outstanding.

Perhaps no one appreciated Perkins' talent more than U.S. Head Coach Bobby Knight, who repeatedly praised the three-time All-America. "Give me players like Sam Perkins," Knight said, "and I'll coach forever."

To no one's surprise, Jordan and Perkins were the American heroes in the gold medal game. Facing Spain for the second time, the U.S. romped, 96-65. Jordan scored 20 points on nine of 15 shooting, while Perkins had 12 points and seven rebounds.

Carolina's tradition of Olympic excellence, of course, had begun 20 years earlier with backcourt star Larry Brown. Charlie Scott represented the Tar Heels in 1968, when the U.S. swept to the title in Mexico City, and Bobby Jones was a member of the 1972 team, which settled for the silver medal amidst great controversy in Munich.

As a result of that disputed loss to the Soviet Union, there was tremendous pressure on the U.S. to recapture the gold medal in the 1976 games. The Americans desperately needed the title to reestablish the nation's international basketball superiority.

This task fell upon the shoulders of Coach Dean Smith and his top aide at Carolina, Bill Guthridge. The four Tar Heels featured on the roster each played key roles in leading the Americans to a six-game sweep of the coveted gold.

With Smith stressing aggressive defense and an unselfish offense, the U.S. routed Italy in the opening game. The Americans next encountered a fired-up Puerto Rican team, but managed to avoid an upset thanks to Ford's clutch free-throw shooting in the final moments. The U.S. rolled into the finals by beating Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Canada. In the championship, the U.S. defeated the Yugoslavs to reclaim the gold medal.

Because of the Olympic boycott, the U.S. did not compete in the 1980 Games in Moscow. Still, Carolina's Al Wood starred on the American squad coached by Dave Gavitt which compiled a 5-1 record against professional teams in a series of exhibition games held across the country.

When the world again gathered in Seoul last year for the 1988 Olympic games, Reid played an important reserve role for Thompson's squad. His best performance by far came against the Brazilians in the United States' third game.

With starting big men Danny Manning and David Robinson in early foul trouble, Reid came off the bench to dominate the Americans' offensive effort. During one stretch, he scored six points in a row and eight of the team's 10. Reid finished with 16 point, hitting seven of 11 shots on the way to a convincing 102-87 revenge win over the Brazilian squad that had beaten the U.S. in the 1987 Pan American Games championship contest.

But the 1988 squad was not fortunate enough to win the gold medal in Seoul. After losing to the Soviets in a semifinal game, the U.S. had to settle for the bronze, beating Australia.

But Olympic achievements alone do not fully explain why Carolina has had such a strong impact on international basketball. There have been plenty of other outstanding performances.

The Tar Heels have been represented in the last five Pan American Games. Robert McAdoo played on the 1971 U.S. team, while Tommy LaGarde starred for the 1975 squad. Mike O'Koren co-captained the 1979 team that won the gold medal in Puerto Rico.

Perkins and Jordan teamed up in 1983, leading the U.S. to the title in Caracas, Venezuela. Perkins was regarded as the most coinsistent American player in that tournament. Jordan keyed a couple of comeback victories with last-second heroics that Tar Heel fans became so accustomed to during his three years in Chapel Hill. Lebo made it five Pan Ams in a row for Carolina players with his selection in 1987.

One year before his Pan American performance, O'Koren was a starting forward for the U.S. in Gregarian Cup competition in Moscow. LaGarde journeyed into the Soviet Union as well as a member of the Continental Cup team in 1975. That team also played games in Greece, Yugoslavia and other parts of Europe.

Dennis Wuycik played on the U.S. pre-Olympic team which toured Europe in 1971. In the summer of 1973, a Soviet National Team came to America to meet a U.S. all-star team. Carolina's George Karl and Bobby Jones both played instrumental roles in that series. Later that summer, Karl became one of the first Americans in decades to visit mainland China. He was on a U.S. team, which played there and, again, he was outstanding.

Three Tar Heels have won gold medals at the World University Games—Billy Cunningham at Budapest in 1965, Larry Miller at Tokyo in 1967 and Kupchak at Moscow in 1973.

The summer after he helped Carolina win the 1982 NCAA championship, Jordan toured Europe on a U.S. all-star team. In 1983, Matt Doherty played on the U.S. Select Team in Southeast Asia. During that same summer, Steve Hale played in Europe with a team sponsored by Athletes in Action. Two Tar Heels, Brad Daugherty in 1984, and Joe Wolf in 1985, have represented the U.S. in the William Jones Cup Tournament in Taiwan. Both played on teams which went 9-0 and won the championship there.

Carolina's success across the seas, though, is more than a collection of fine individual efforts. On five occasions, the entire Tar Heel team has ventured to Europe for tournament competition.

In 1971, Carolina visited Madrid, Spain, for the International Christmas Tournament. In claiming the championship, the Tar Heels swept past Brazi, Spain and Real Madrid, the European champion. The game was televised across Europe, and Carolina responded with a brilliant all-around performance.

Smith took his team back to Madrid for the same tournament in 1974, but this time the Tar Heels were not as fortunate, falling to a veteran Real Madrid club in the championship game. Carolina did spring a major surprise in that tournament, however, defeating the powerful Cuban National team on a remarkable half-court shot at the buzzer by Walter Davis.

London was the destination in 1979, as the Tar Heels entered their third international Christmas tournament of the decade, finishing third. Prior to the 1984 season, Carolina visited Greece and won four games against teams from Italy and the host nation. A Perkins steal that led to a final-second shot by Jordan clinched one win. Perkins, Jordan and Buzz Peterson were selected to the all-tournament team.

The Tar Heels returned to England in December of 1987 to beat the Great Britain National Team in the championship round of the World Invitation Club Tournament. Reid led the way for Smith's squad with 24 points. The hometown hero, however, didn't play for the home team. Carolina's Steve Bucknall, a London native, scored 18 points in the Tar Heels' 87-79 victory.

Many Carolina players have gone on to successful pro basketball careers in Europe. Doug Moe accomplished the most, three times earning European Player-of-the-Year accolades. Other Tar Heels who have played professionally in Europe include Dave Chadwick, Kim Huband, Craig Corson, Donn Johnston, John O'Donnell, Donald Washington, Ed Stahl, Bill Chambers, Bruce Buckley, Tom Zaliagiris, Geff Crompton, Randy Wiel, Jeff Wolf, Rich Yonakor, Pete Budko, Tommy LaGarde, John Virgil, Chris Brust, Jeb Barlow, Steve Hale, Warren Martin, Robert McAdoo and Dave Popson. In addition, former Tar Heels Cecil Exum and Curtis Hunter have played professionally in Australia.

It seems that Carolina's outstanding basketball tradition, so well-documented in the U.S., has virtually become a global affair.

Mitch Kupchak, here dunking on his Cuban opponent, was a mainstay on the U. S. team which won the gold metal at the World University Games in Moscow in 1973.

The Smith Center

THE

Dean E. Smith Center

By Ed McPhillips
Sports Information Student Assistant

The place makes people rattle doors. Every weekend, grown men and women will go from door to door at the Smith Center, trying to get in, even though the building doesn't open again until Monday at 8:00 a.m., hoping someone forgot to lock that one door so they can sneak inside and see what it looks like in person. Unless they have a ticket to a game or a concert, they will not be successful.

I know. The first time I came down to Carolina in the fall of 1987, when I worked for Old Dominion University sports information, I did the exact same thing.

And why not? The Smith Center is the crown jewel of Carolina's renowned athletic facilities, a very fitting conclusion since Dean Smith and the Tar Heel basketball program have placed Carolina in the intercollegiate athletic forefront for the past 28 years. After Carolina had lost only 20 games in 21 years at Carmichael Auditorium, there were too many people who wanted too many tickets for too few seats. The Smith Center is the only 21,444-seat arena which could help more fans see the Tar Heels play without making people overly nostalgic for the coziness of Blue Heaven (Carmichael).

The Smith Center era opened when Warren Martin scored its inaugural points with a dunk off a feed from Kenny Smith two minutes into a 95-92 victory over Duke on January 18, 1986. With 40 victories in 45 starts at the Smith Center entering this season, the Tar Heels have settled into their new home quite nicely.

Hard work, however, is the only reason the 300,000-square-foot facility ever reached fruition. That hard work came from Dean E. Smith and his players, who built a program worthy of such a tribute and from those who spearheaded the fund-raising drive, collecting the 33.8 million dollars of private contributions necessary to make the architectural drawings a reality.

The fund raising officially originated in 1980 as the University, the Carolina athletic department and the Educational Foundation joined forces in a seemingly near-impossible task. Then-Educational Foundation Executive Vice-President Ernie Williamson remembered that "a lot of people, including us, were awfully scared that the money could not be raised. The professional fund raisers said there was no way we could raise $30 million unless we got $12 million to $15 million from four or five con-tributors. They were wrong, of course."

Instead, the Educational Foundation's 500 volunteers convinced 2,362 individuals to contribute what they could, and they responded with contributions ranging from $1 to $1 million.

Consequently, the Smith Center and the adjacent Koury Natatorium lie unobtrusive to their surrounding wooded landscape on Skipper Bowles Drive, named after the late Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles, who chaired the fund-raising campaign. Bowles became seriously ill in 1984 when the building was more than half-completed and could not enjoy the satisfaction of being present at its dedication. His contributions, however, are far from forgotten. "Skipper was just unbelievable," Williamson, now the Foundation's Director for Endowment, recalls. "He went to every meeting we had in the early going (about 135) and never doubted we would succeed. I shudder to think what might have happened if he weren't there from the beginning."

Construction started on August 1, 1982 when workers began to remove the 20,000 cubic yards of rock in order to make room for the Smith Center's foundation. Over 18,500 cubic yards of concrete form that foundation on which the 340 by 380 foot structure lies. After 43 months of construction--and already a few basketball games--the building was complete.

Dedication Day, however, fell on September 6, 1986 while the building received its finishing touches. The basketball lettermen from 1956-86 were honored first and would later play an exhibition game. A moment of silence was held for Bowles. Then, Carolina Athletic Director John Swofford made the official dedication of the facility to Dean Smith, who was characteristically humble about the whole affair. Smith wanted to dedicate it to all of his players. "I was afraid this was going to happen," Smith said. "The reason we have the Student Activities Center is all these young men behind me (the lettermen). This is a chance to collectively honor all of (them)."

Now, if one considers the Smith Center today, what would those people who rattle the doors on the weekends see inside if they came back for an event or during operating hours? Amazingly, the interior of this multi-purpose facility is as likely to impress as its exterior.

The arena itself is the main attraction and rightfully so. Even with a building of this size, every one of its 21,444 seats directly faces the main court and is no more than 150 feet away. Nine thousand seats grace the lower level while the remaining 12,500 are situated upstairs. Its octagonal shape makes the facility one of the finest places to see a game, a concert or any other function. And it's all Carolina Blue.

The Smith Center is one of the largest on-campus facilities of its kind in the country and, amazingly, was financed entirely by private contributions. (Photo by Bob Donnan)

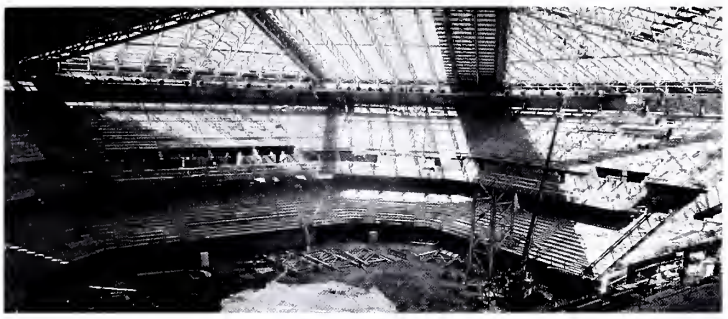
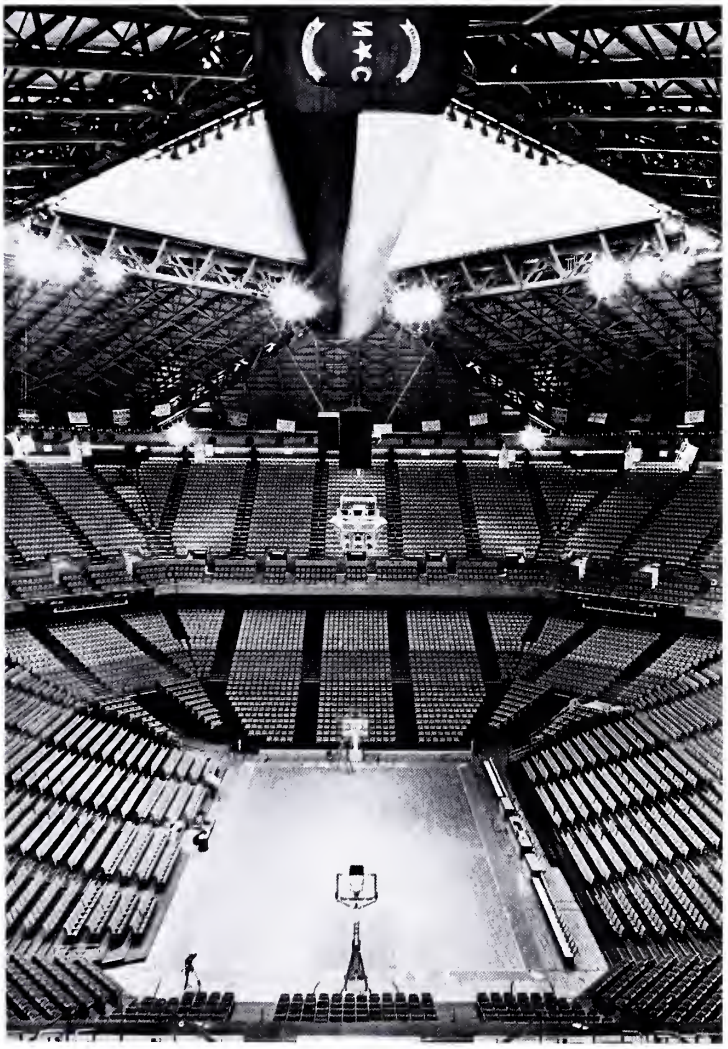
The basketball court itself represents one of the most innovative technological advances the Center provides. Its permanent maple floor lies atop hundreds of arched metal springs. The Spring-Aire floor, the largest of its kind in the country, reduces knee and ankle pressure by giving up to one-eighth of an inch when sufficient weight is exerted on the court.

The dome that covers the main arena looks down 140 feet from the playing surface and consists of 13,000 square feet of Teflon-coated fiberglass which allows natural light to flood the arena.



The construction of the Smith Center took 43 months to complete, but resulted in one of the great basketball arenas in all of the United States.



All 21,444 seats in the Smith Center face directly toward midcourt and are appropriately Carolina Blue. Whether it's basketball or a rock concert, there truly is not a bad seat in the house. (Photo by Bob Donnan)

A breathtaking basketball arena would pretty much go to waste if a fan could not see the court, hear the introductions or tell what the score is. The Smith Center provides these necessities and more; computer-controlled lighting, a technologically advanced sound system, four scoreboards and two 29-foot electronic message boards that reproduce pictures and words in different colors allow a Carolina fan to enjoy a Tar Heel victory in the finest of surroundings.

Besides housing the Tar Heels for about half of every basketball season, these surroundings also hosted the first and second rounds of the 1988 NCAA East Regionals, and the 1987 United States Olympic Festival basketball and gymnastics competition, highlighted by a Smith Center record crowd of 22,713 for the gold medal basketball game.

Another fascinating technological accoutrement of the arena is the 32,000-pound space frame rigging grid that hovors over one end of the floor. The 64' X 80' X 6' structure provides the hanging points for the lighting and sound equipment that allow concerts at the east end stage. This added versatility has allowed the Smith Center to attract such stars as Whitney Houston, Bruce Springsteen, the Monkees, Elton John, Lionel Ritchie and Chapel Hill native James Taylor.

The Center's second level houses the athletic department's administrative, basketball, sports information and ticket offices. Twelve-foot-high glass doors grace the area adjacent to the ticket office, marking the entrance to the University's memorabilia room. The room, which Pro Football Hall of Fame designer Jerry Goodman oversaw, celebrates great players and great moments in Carolina athletic history with videotape and artifact displays.

The first level contains the basketball locker room and lounge, but basketball, although its inspiration, is not the only sport served by the complex. Six recreation locker rooms, a modern training room, weight facility and two swimming locker rooms also populate the floor.

An underground hallway connects the swimmers' lockers with the Koury Natatorium. The Natatorium houses a 50-meter, eight-lane swimming pool that was the host site of the 1987 United States Olympic Festival swimming and water polo competition, the 1987 and 1989 men's and women's Atlantic Coast Conference swimming and diving championships and the 1989 United States Swimming Short Course National Championships. The Educational Foundation was not left out from the building it helped spawn; its administrative offices sit adjacent to the pool and atop the 7,000-square-foot Skipper Bowles Room the University employs for pre-game and post-game receptions and other activities.

When the Smith Center underwent construction, Swofford said that "it is a visible commitment to excellence in athletics. The building sends a message to prospective athletes and it becomes a symbol of the University. It's going to be a showplace." Later, after the completion of the complex, Swofford commented: "We set out to have the finest basketball facility in the country, and I think we have it." Obviously, this multi-purpose building, a showcase for athletic and artistic stars and a tribute to Dean Smith, failed to disappoint him. It most certainly would not disappoint those on the outside looking in, rattling doors. Every door. So, please, do come back. For a game or a weekday visit; then you can just walk in.

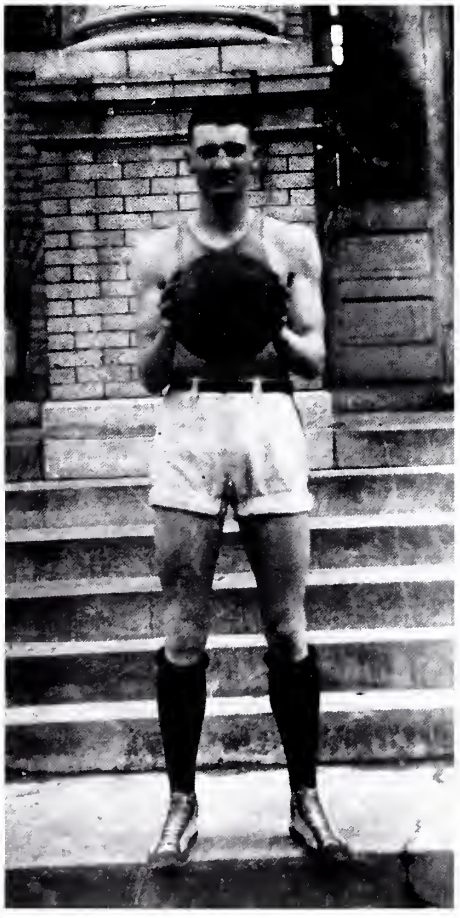
Smith Center Jerseys

Hanging from the rafters of the Dean E. Smith Center are 13 Tar Heel jerseys, which together serve as a symbolic reminder of Carolina's consistent success over its 78 years of college basketball competition.

When the Smith Center was opened in 1986, it was decided the new building needed a proper salute to those who helped make Carolina basketball what it is today. To that end, on dedication day in September 1986, 12 jerseys were hung in the rafters. The 13th jersey, belonging to Kenny Smith, was added following his 1987 senior season.

The six jerseys in the front row belong to men who have earned National Player-of-the-Year honors, and these numbers have been retired. The seven in the back row belong to men who were named first team All-America twice or more, and the numbers hang in their honor.

The retired jerseys belong to Jack Cobb (a numeral), George Glamack (#20), Lennie Rosenbluth (#10), Phil Ford (#12), James Worthy (#52) and Michael Jordan (#23). The honored jerseys include those of Cartwright Carmichael (a numeral), Billy Cunningham (#32), Larry Miller (#44), Charlie Scott (#33), Mike O'Koren (#31), Sam Perkins (#41) and Kenny Smith (#30).

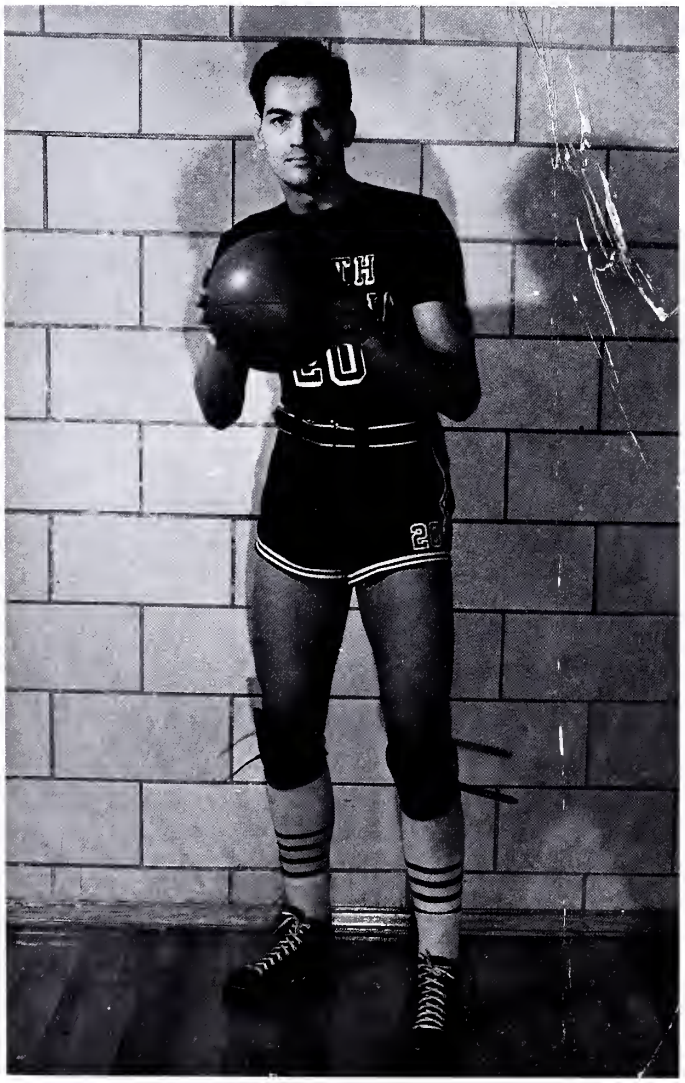


Cartwright Carmichael

Won first-team All-America honors in 1923, becoming Carolina's first All-America in any sport. Regarded as an excellent shooter in his day, Carmichael was tabbed an All-America again in 1924 and garnered All-Southern Conference honors from 1922-24. During his three varsity seasons at Carolina, the Tar Heels were 55-7, and he led teams to two Southern Conference championships and an undefeated season in 1924 good for a national championship as voted by the Helms Foundation. A versatile athlete, Carmichael also lettered as an outfielder in baseball.

Jack Cobb

Was a teammate of Carmichael's on the national championship squad in 1924 and was the school's first three-time All-America. He captained the 1925 squad during his junior year, and in 1926 he earned National Player-of-the-Year accolades. Amazingly, during his three varsity seasons, Cobb averaged 15 points per game while the entire Tar Heel team averaged only 35. Cobb is a member of the Helms Hall of Fame and the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame.

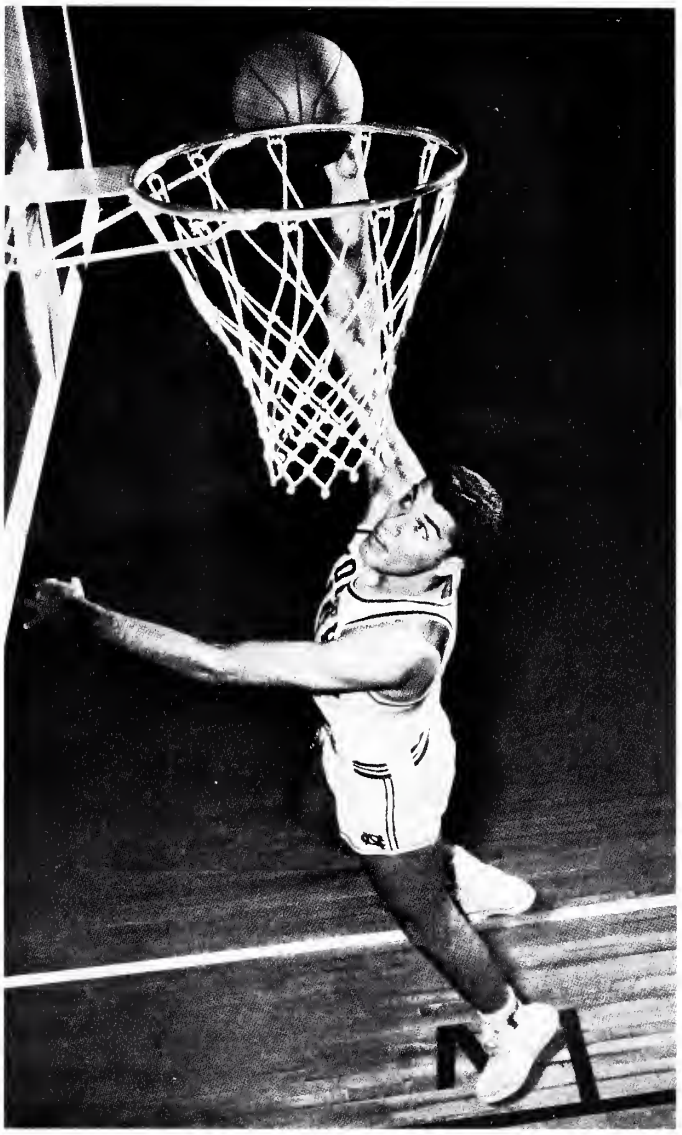


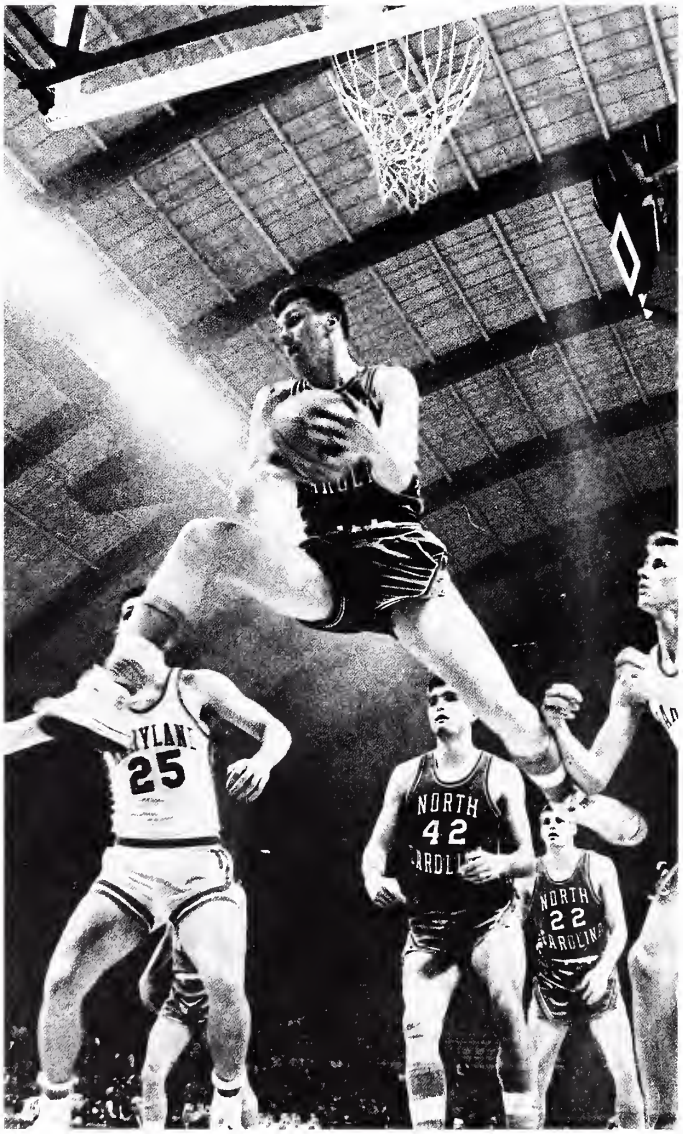
George Glamack #20

Better known as "The Blind Bomber" due to his poor eyesight, he was twice named All-Southern Conference, All-America and National Player-of-the-Year, in 1940 and 1941. A master at maneuvering in the paint, Glamack had a deadly hook shot with either hand, which helped him lead Carolina to a 1940 Southern Conference championship. As captain of the 1941 Tar Heels, he averaged 20.6 points per game, an amazing figure for the 1940's.

#10 Lennie Rosenbluth

Led the Tar Heels to a perfect 32-0 season in 1957 as Carolina won the national championship game in triple overtime over the Kansas Jayhawks and Wilt Chamberlain. The 1957 National Player-of-the-Year, Rosenbluth set UNC records for scoring average in a season and a career, with 28.0 and 26.9 respectively, both of which still stand. He currently holds 10 school records, and his 2,045 career points--third in Carolina history--was tops in the Tar Heel record books for 21 years. Rosenbluth was a three-time All-ACC selection and was tabbed ACC Player and Athlete-of-the-Year in 1957.



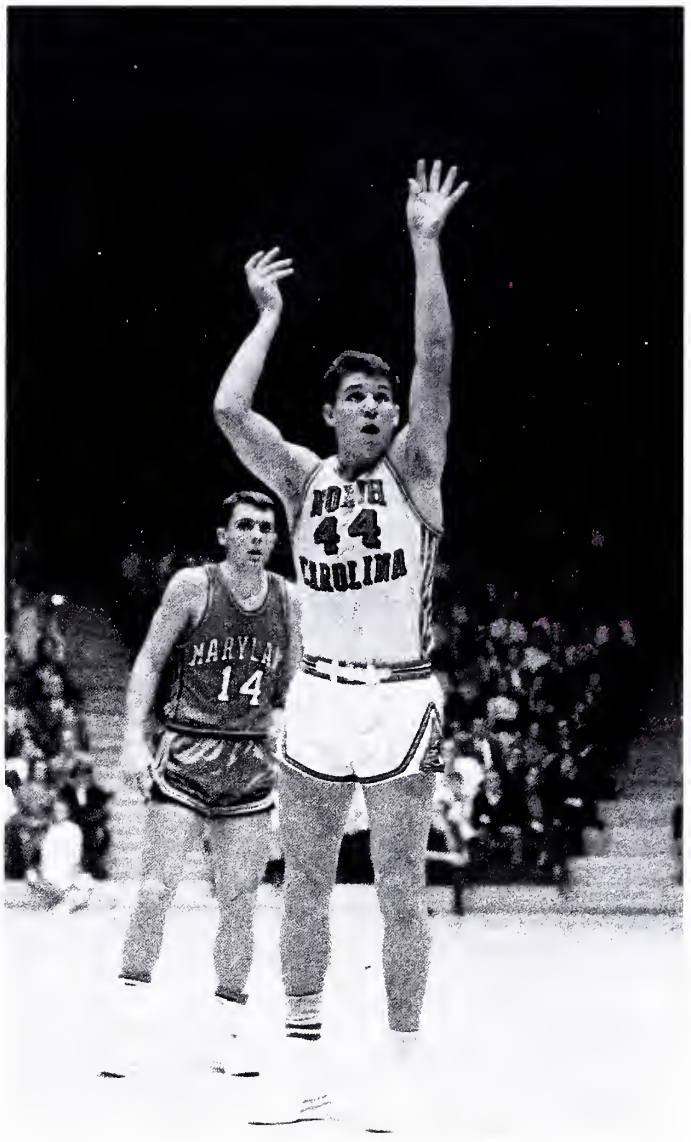


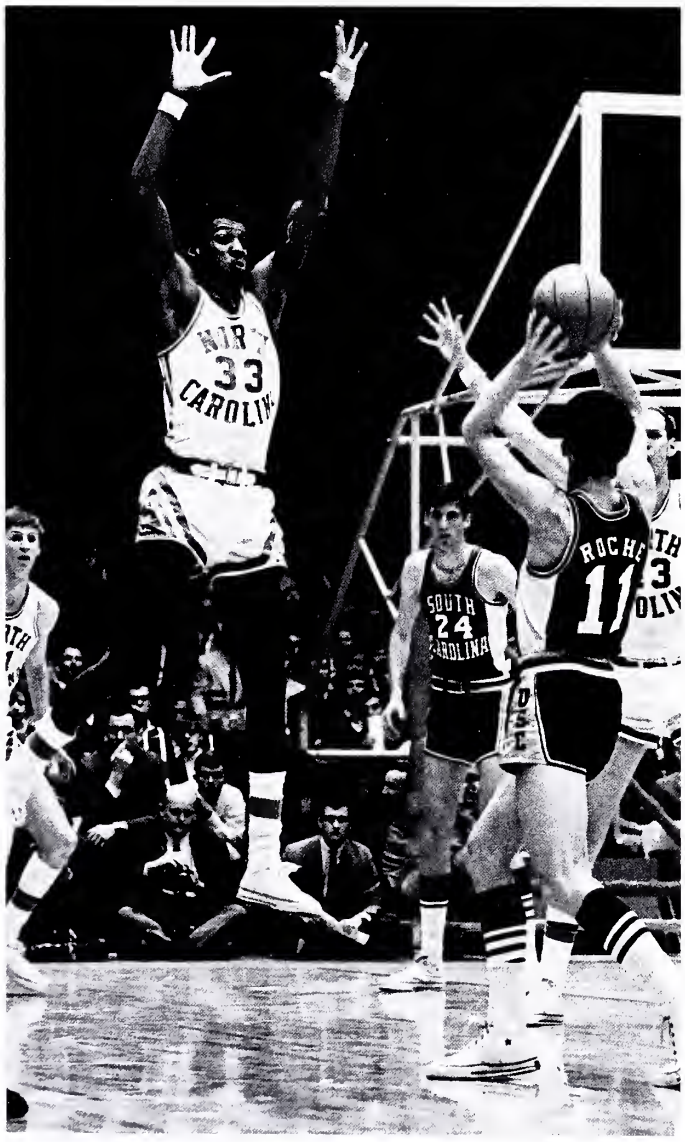
Billy Cunningham #32

Nicknamed "The Kangaroo Kid" for his exceptional leaping ability, he gained notoriety for leading the ACC in rebounding three years in a row. Cunningham still holds six of eight UNC rebounding records, and is the second-leading rebounder in Tar Heel history. ACC Player-of-the-Year in 1965, All-ACC three times and first team All-America twice, he led the ACC in scoring two years in a row, with 26.0 points per game in 1964 and 25.4 in 1965. Cunningham was named Carolina's MVP three straight years, and twice he made the ACC All-Tournament team despite not playing in the finals either year. In 1965, the College Sports Information Directors of America named him to its Academic All-America team.

#44 Larry Miller

Led UNC to ACC titles and the NCAA Final Four in 1967 and 1968, and was named All-America and ACC Player-of-the-Year both of those years. The ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1968, Miller was one of only two players ever to be MVP of the ACC Tournament on two occasions. He once scored in double figures a school-record 64 consecutive games, and is still UNC's sixth-leading career scorer and seventh-leading rebounder. Miller was named to the NCAA All-East Regional teams in both 1967 and 1968, and was on the all-tournament team in the 1968 Final Four. He played one of the greatest games in ACC Tournament history in the 1967 finals, hitting 13 of 14 field goals and scoring 32 points in an 82-73 victory over Duke.



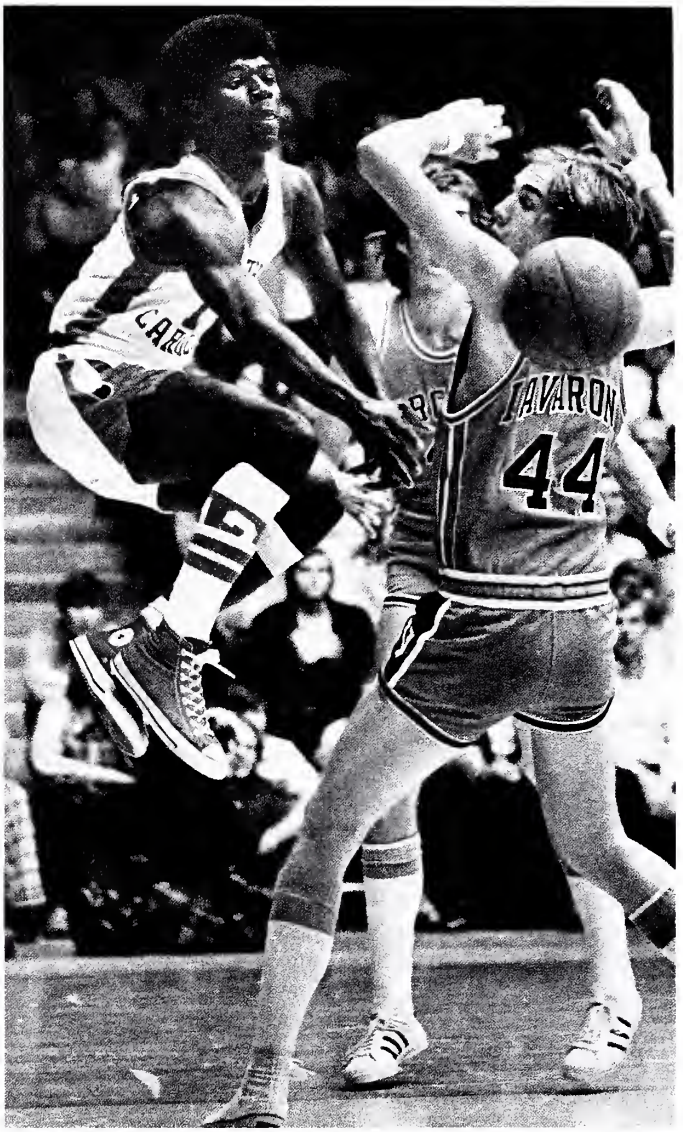


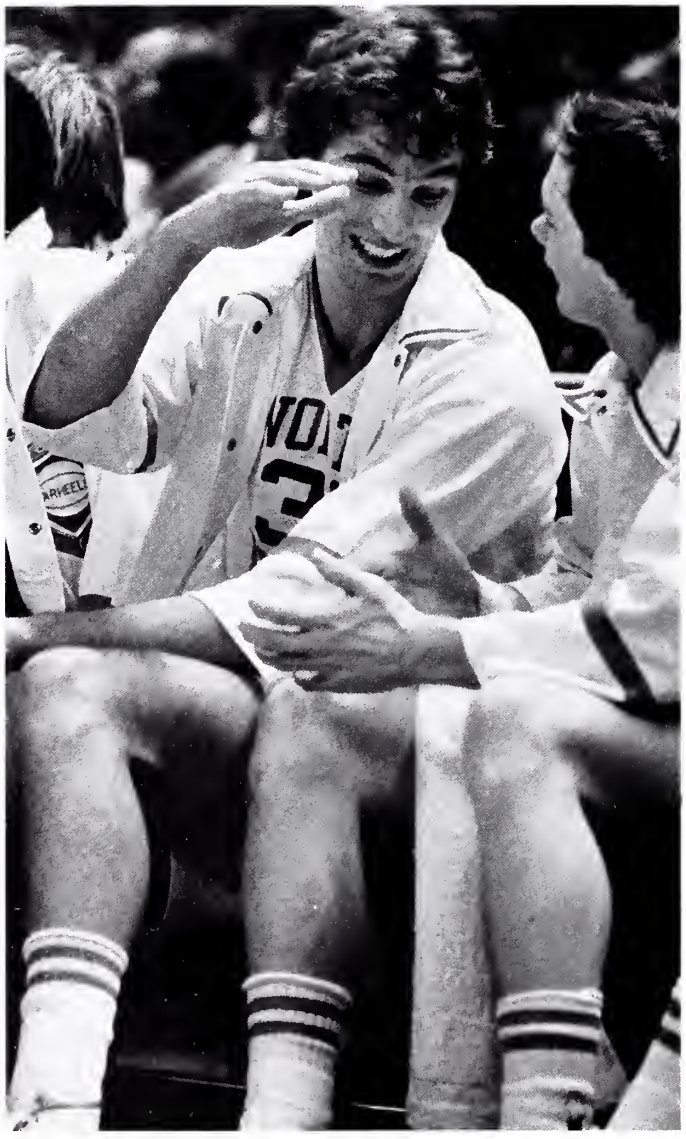
Charlie Scott #33

A superb all-around athlete, he helped direct UNC to its third straight Final Four in 1969, in the days when a conference sent only one team to the NCAA Tournament. He was a first team All-America in 1969 and 1970, and a three-time All-ACC selection. Scott is UNC's fifth-leading career scorer, 17th-leading rebounder and is 12th in assists. A member of the 1968 gold medal-winning Olympic Team, he scored 40 points in the ACC Tournament finals against Duke in 1969, bringing Carolina from a nine-point halftime deficit to an 11-point victory. In 1970, he led the ACC in scoring with 27.1 points per game and was named to the 1970 CoSIDA Academic All-America Team.

#12 Phil Ford

Now an assistant coach at Carolina, he is one of college basketball's all-time best guards and is perhaps best remembered for running Dean Smith's famed "Four Corners" offense with tremendous precision. He is UNC's all-time leading scorer with 2,290 points and second in assists with 753. A three-time All-America in 1976, 1977 and 1978 and the 1978 National Player-of-the-Year, Ford directed Carolina to three straight first-place ACC finishes as well as ACC Tournament titles in 1975 and 1977. Ford played on the 1976 gold medal-winning U.S. Olympic Team under the leadership of Coach Smith, and is one of only eight players under Smith to start in the first game of his freshman year. The ACC Athlete-of-the-Year in 1977 and 1978, Ford scored a career-high 34 points in a 1978 victory over Duke in his last regular-season game at Carolina to give the Tar Heels the ACC title.



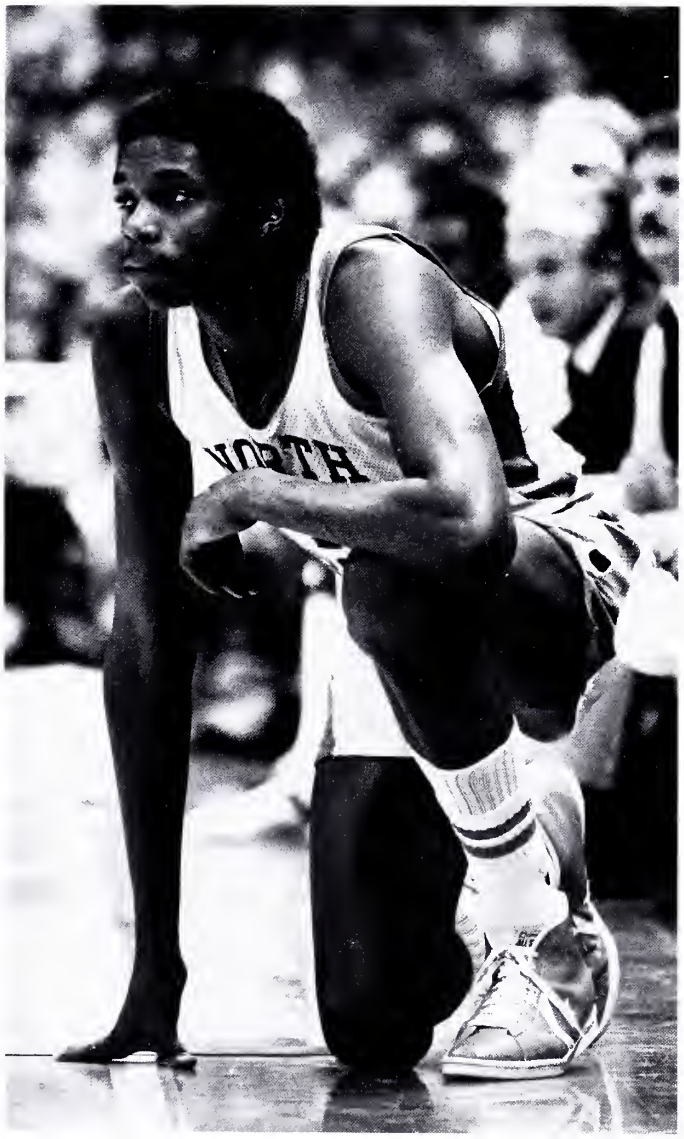


Mike O'Koren #31

A solid all-around player who ranks among school leaders in scoring (11th), rebounding (ninth) and assists (11th), he won first team All-America honors in 1979 and 1980. O'Koren led the ACC in field goal percentage as a sophomore (64.3) and ranked second nationally. A four-year starter, he scored 21 points in the 1977 ACC Tournament finals against Virginia to lead the Tar Heels to victory, and he had a career-high 31 points in the NCAA semifinals in a win over Nevada-Las Vegas. The 1977 and 1979 All-ACC Tournament selection had a sensational game against Duke as a junior with 17 points, 20 rebounds, seven assists and four steals, and he held Blue Devil star Gene Banks scoreless in the second half of that game. O'Koren co-captained the 1979 U.S. Pan American Games team, which captured the gold medal.

#52 James Worthy

Led Carolina to its third national championship in 1982 with a career-high 28 points against Georgetown in the finals. He was named MVP of the ACC Tournament and the East Regionals as well as first team All-America and co-National Player-of-the-Year his junior season. Worthy missed most of his freshman year with a broken ankle, but he came back to average 14.2 points per game and finish third in the ACC in rebounding as a sophomore. He helped Carolina reach the national championship game in 1981 with his outstanding play in the ACC Tournament and NCAA West Regionals. After consulting with Coach Smith, Worthy passed up his final year of eligibility to become the first player selected in the NBA draft by the Los Angeles Lakers where he has won three world championships.

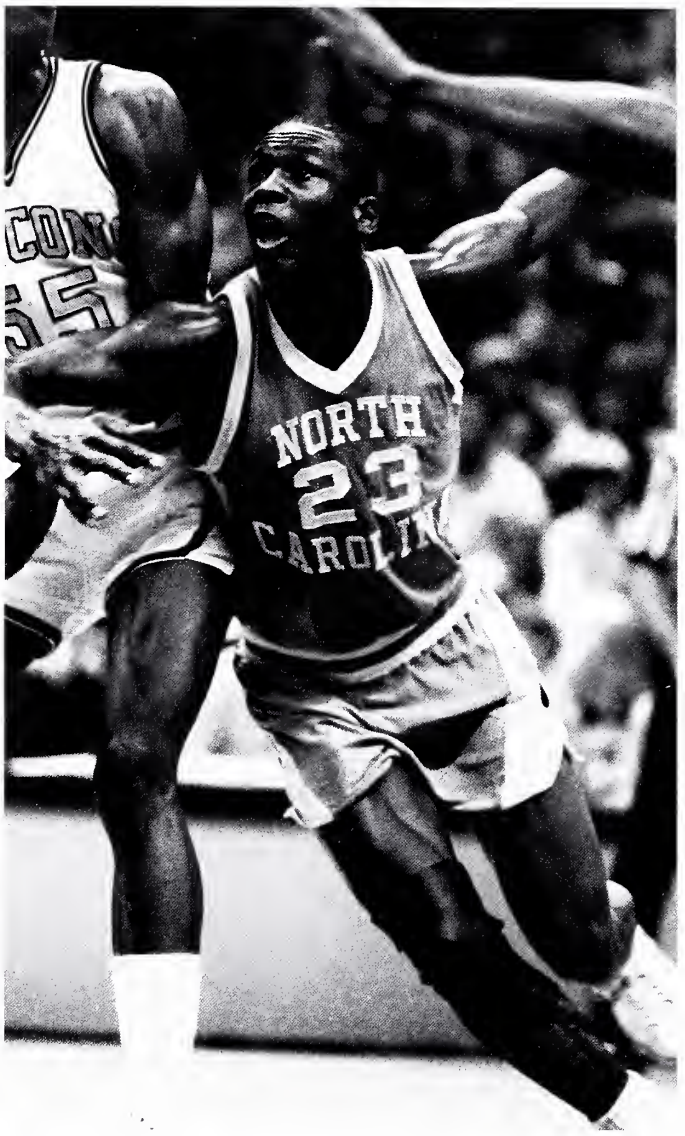


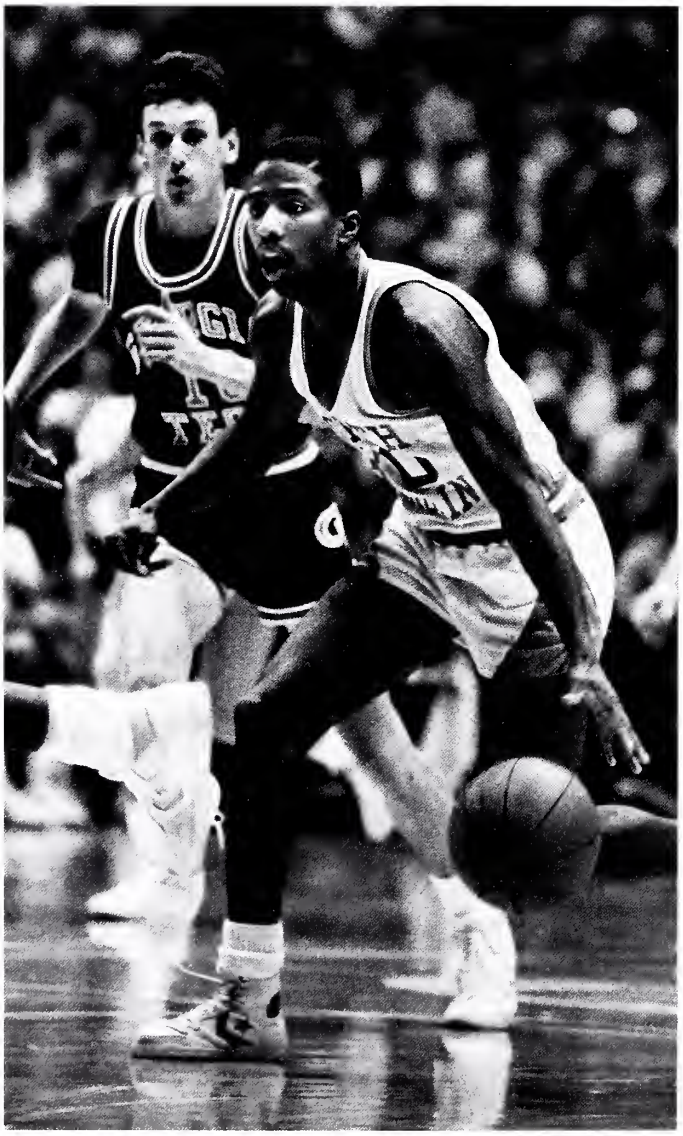
Sam Perkins #41

A 6-9 center with long arms and an uncanny jumper, he is Carolina's all-time leading rebounder and second-leading scorer. One of only three Tar Heels to be first team All-America three times (the others being Ford and Cobb), Perkins was also a three-time All-ACC selection those same years and was ACC Rookie-of-the-Year and MVP of the ACC Tournament in 1981. He went to the Final Four in 1981 and 1982 with his Tar Heel teammates and was named to All-Regional teams both years as well as the All-Final Four team in 1982 when UNC won the national crown. He was a member of the 1983 Pan American Games team and the 1984 Olympic team, both of which won gold medals.

#23 Michael Jordan

Was one of the most electrifying Carolina players ever. As a freshman, Jordan hit a jumper with 15 seconds left to give UNC its third national title in 1982, and he was named ACC Rookie-of-the-Year due in part to his 13.5 scoring average. He is one of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to have started the first game of the season. Against Virginia in 1983, Jordan won the game with a last-minute steal and dunk, and he sent a game versus Tulane into overtime earlier that season with a steal and a 35-foot jumper as UNC won in double overtime. Jordan led the ACC in scoring in 1984 with 19.4 points per game and was subsequently named ACC Player- and Athlete-of-the-Year, adding to his 1983 and 1984 National Player-of-the-Year kudos. The leading scorer on both the 1984 Olympic team and 1983 Pan American Games team—both of which won gold medals—Jordan passed up his final year of eligibility after consulting with Coach Dean Smith and entered the NBA draft, where he was chosen third by the Chicago Bulls. He has gone on to be a superstar in the pro ranks with Chicago.





Kenny Smith #30

A unanimous first-team All-America his senior season, he was named National Player-of-the-Year by Basketball Times in 1987. An All-ACC choice in 1987, Smith is Carolina's all-time assist leader with 768 and led the Tar Heels in scoring in 1987 with 16.9 points per game as well as in assists with 209. One of only eight freshmen under Dean Smith to start the first game of his career, he had 86 assists in NCAA Tournament play, the most in that storied event's history. Smith led UNC to undefeated ACC marks in both 1984 and 1987, and he poured in a career-high 41 points in that 1987 season in a 108-99 comeback win at Clemson. His game-high 23 points against the Soviet Union in the championship of the World FIBA Tournament propelled the U.S. team to a gold medal-clinching victory in 1986. Smith won the Patterson Medal, the highest athletic award at Carolina, as the top senior athlete on campus in 1987.

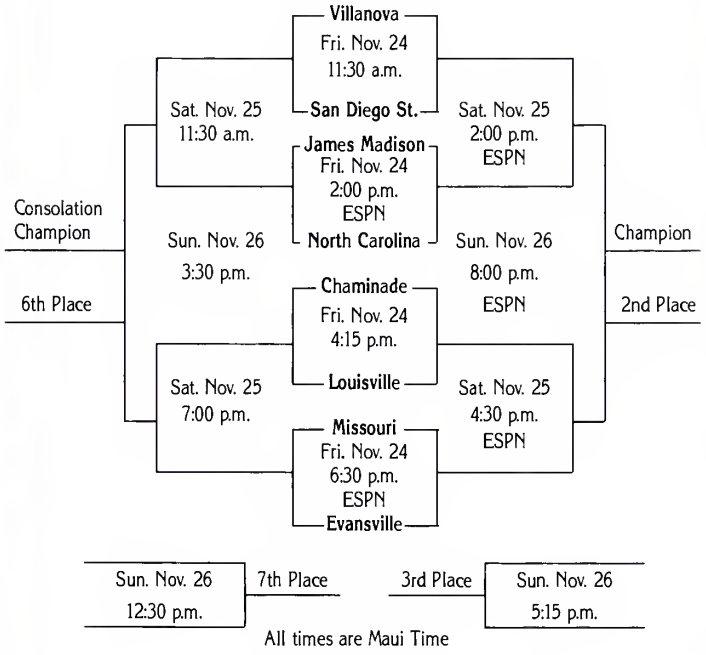
1989 MAUI CLASSIC PAIRINGS

Lahaina Civic Center, Maui, Hawaii



Maui Classic Preview

Every year, Chaminade University invites several major college basketball powers to Hawaii for the Maui Classic; this year, four 1989 NCAA Tournament participants who each won at least one game in last year's tournament join the Maui Classic field, namely North Carolina, Louisville, Missouri and Evansville.

The Tar Heels make their first trip to Hawaii since November 1986 and face old ACC rival Lefty Driesell and his James Madison Dukes in the first round. JMU plays a tough non-conference schedule this season in hopes of cracking the upper ranks of recognized college powers, and transfers Steve Hood and Fess Irvin could lead it there.

Louisville lost Pervis Ellison to the NBA draft, but Denny Crum's Cardinals are always national contenders. LaBradford Smith, Tony Kimbro and Keith Williams, along with last season's deep bench, all return for Crum this season. Missouri was a contender for national honors last year, earning a berth in the Sweet 16, but only two starters return from that Big Eight championship squad. Doug Smith and Lee Coward will have to provide the scoring and leadership, while super soph Anthony Peeler will join the starting lineup in all likelihood.

Evansville turned some heads last year with a 25-6 record and an overtime upset of Oregon State in the NCAA first round. Four starters return, headed by 6-9 senior center Dan Godfread, who averaged 15.8 points and 8.0 rebounds. The Purple Aces, however, will have to overcome the loss of Midwestern Collegiate Conference Player-of-the-Year Scott Haffner. Villanova reached the NIT third round last season but returns only two starters: 7-3 center Tom Greis and 6-6 forward Rodney Taylor. Greis scored 14.1 points and grabbed 6.3 rebounds per contest, but he will need help on the inside from Taylor and from the outside from any of seven returning guards.

Dukes Outlook

Lefty Driesell continues his attempt to put JMU in the college basketball spotlight with an upgraded schedule. All that remains to be answered is if the Dukes will field a sufficiently upgraded team as well. There is no question that the Dukes will challenge for CAA title honors, but they face a grueling non-conference slate. Transfers Steve Hood (Maryland) and Fess Irvin (LSU) are key additions to a team that returns four starters. Sophomore 6-5 swingman William Davis is not listed as a returning starter, but the 1988-89 CAA Rookie-of-the-Year will look to improve on his 15.7 scoring average. 6-6 junior guard Claude Ferdinand added 12.9 points last year and should team with Irvin or 6-0 junior Kenny Brooks in the backcourt. Troy Bostic and Barry Brown will vie with Hood and Davis for frontcourt starting time. If the Dukes can keep from being beaten up by the likes of Oklahoma, Florida, West Virginia and Carolina in the early season, JMU may bring the Lefthander a banner year.

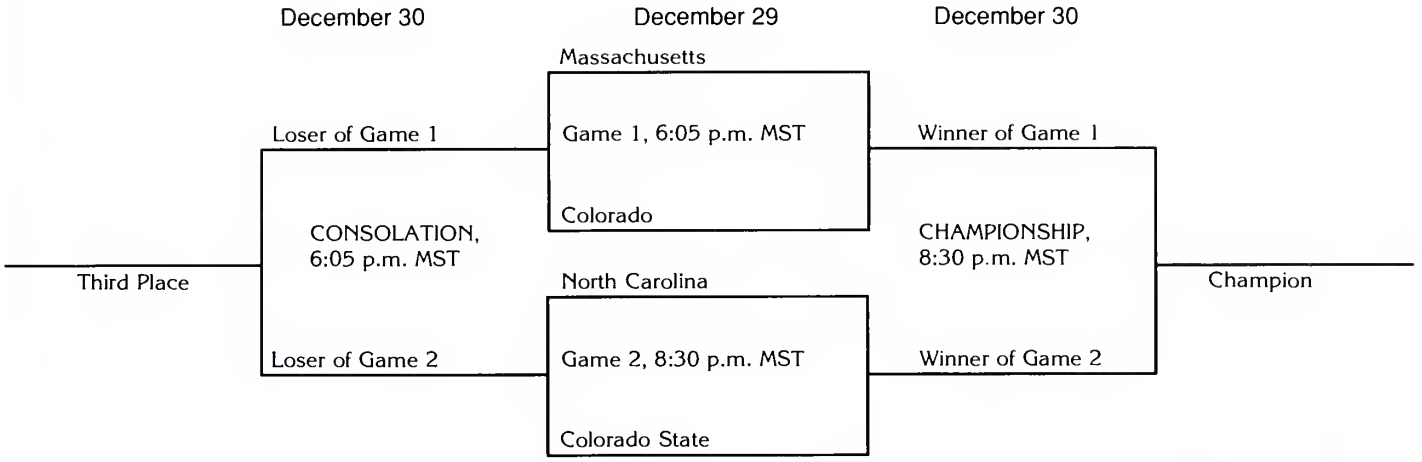
1989 Mile High Classic Pairings
McNichols Arena, Denver, Colo.



Mile High Classic Preview

Carolina faces its first-ever contest against a team from the state of Colorado when it faces off against Boyd Grant's Colorado State Rams in the first round of the Mile High Classic at Denver's McNichols Arena. The Rams are coming off a regular-season title in the Western Athletic Conference and an NCAA first-round upset of Florida, but the Rams return only two starters.

In the other first-round contest, Colorado hosts the Minutemen of Massachusetts. Colorado was 7-21 last season, but the Buffs have four starters returning from the team which took Top 10-ranked Oklahoma into double overtime at the Big Eight Tournament, led by 6-10 junior center Shaun Vandiver, the 1989 Bight Eight Newcomer-of-the-Year. Massachusetts also has four starters coming back from Jim Calipari's 10-18 1988-89 squad, Calipari's first season at the helm. Sophomore guard Jim McCoy scored 19.8 points per game for the Minutemen last season.

Crimson Tide Outlook

The defending Southeastern Conference Tournament champions have three starters returning but lost their two leading scorers from last year's surprising squad. 6-8 senior center David Benoit is the top returning scorer and rebounder for the Tide, averaging 10.8 points and 8.0 rebounds per game in 1988-89. Robert Horry, a 6-8 sophomore forward, comes back after a promising freshman season in which he averaged 8.6 points and 8.2 rebounds per game as a starter, SEC assist leader Gary Waites will anchor the backcourt for the Tide. The 6-2 junior guard dished out 6.2 assists per game and is the only returnee who started every game last season, this coming just one year after suffering a serious knee injury. The two remaining starting spots are likely to be claimed by 6-6 junior guard Keith Askins and 6-8 junior forward Melvin Cheatum. Askins started 13 games last season and earned All-SEC Tournament honors after garnering a career-high 23 points in Bama's 72-60 victory over Florida in the SEC final, while Cheatum started 20 games.

Knights Outlook

First-year coach Joe Dean hopes to turn the Knights around after a diffficult 7-20 season last year in which UCF defeated only two Division I teams and were beaten by 25 or more points seven times. 1988-89 leading scorer and rebounder Ken Leeks hopes to avoid the sophomore jinx in following up a season where the 6-8 forward led the team in scoring in 10 games and rebounding in 14, while shooting an impressive 57.9% from the field. Senior guard Bob Blackwood returns at point after leading the Knights in assists last season, including a season-high eight against Dayton. Joining Blackwood in the backcourt will be 6-0 senior guard Edsel Bester who was second to Blackwood in assists and was UCF's number one three-point shooter, netting 25 of 51 attempts. 5-5 sophomore guard Vernon Pinkney was sparkplug off the bench last season, including an eight-assist, four three-pointer outing in a close loss to Southwestern Louisiana.

Tiger Outlook

The Tigers enter this season with probably the strongest frontcourt in the ACC, giving Coach Cliff Ellis an excellent shot at pulling off Clemson's first ACC crown. Led by 6-10 senior center Elden Campbell, the Tigers return four players 6-7 or taller who received extensive action last season. Campbell poured in 17.7 points and collected 7.5 boards per game last season while blocking 87 shots. 6-11 junior Dale Davis led the conference in field goal percentage, converting at an excellent .670 clip, while scoring 13.3 points per game. Senior point guard Marion Cash, who led the Tigers with 161 assists in 1988-89, returns to run the Tiger offense. Sophomore David Young showed promise last season with good shooting range and quick defense and should have the inside track for the starter's role at shooting guard. For Ellis' Tigers to meet expectations, however, they will have to overcome Clemson's poor history in the ACC Tournament where they have won only seven games in 36 years.

Blue Demon Outlook

DePaul fields its most inexperienced squad in some time this year after the graduation of its top two scorers, Stanley Brundy and Terence Greene. Coach Joey Meyer, however, will still be looking for his sixth straight NCAA Tournament appearance. The Blue Demons do have a good deal of potential considering that sophomores David Booth, Stephen Howard, Chuckie Murphy and Curtis Price combined for 33% of DePaul's scoring attack last season, the best Blue Demon freshman class output ever. Booth, a 6-7 forward, is the leading returning scorer at 9.9 points per game. The 6-9 Howard could take over the starting center role after getting 7.5 points and 4.9 rebounds per game as a reserve last season. 6-3 junior guard Brad Niemann will be counted on for outside scoring punch after averaging 8.8 points per game, but the three-point specialist must completely recover from an off-season back injury. 7-1 senior center James Hamby, the tallest player ever to don a Blue Demon uniform, will have to improve his 2.5 points and 2.4 rebounds per game to help DePaul inside.

Blue Devil Outlook

The Blue Devils do not have Danny Ferry to rely on any more. The 6-10 first team All-America and Wooden Award Winner led Duke to three NCAA semifinal appearances, but the road without him could still be rather pleasant for the 1989-90 squad. Things improved, however, when 6-4 guard Phil Henderson decided to return to Duke for his senior season after originally attempting to transfer to Illinois. Henderson scored 12.7 points per game in 1988-89, mostly on slashing drives to the basket. 6-5 senior forward and team captain Robert Brickey, along with 6-11 sophomore center Christian Laettner, will have to pick up the inside scoring slack left void by Ferry. Brickey is famous for his astounding dunks, and he did score in double figures in 20 games, but he will have to be more consistent and improve his 56.4% shooting at the foul line for the Devils to improve. Laettner came on strong in the second half of his freshman year, pumping in14.6 points per game in the NCAA Tournament. Senior center Alaa Abdelnaby will see plenty of action under the basket, especially considering his 63.4% shooting from the field last year. Duke will be seeking its seventh consecutive 20-win season under Coach Mike Krzyzewski.

Hoya Outlook

The best defensive team in the country is loaded down low and his name is Alonzo. Mourning, that is. The 6-10 sophomore center led the nation in blocked shots last year with 169. Together, he and 7-2 junior Dikembe Mutombo combined for 244 blocks, 11 more than the previous NCAA team record. With the Hoyas' famous full-court defense, they should be just as tough to score on as last year when they held the opposition to a .391 shooting percentage. Offense remains the question. Gone is the team's leading scorer and Big East Player-of-the-Year Charles Smith. Mourning will have to take on more of the offensive load, along with guards Mark Tillmon and Dwayne Bryant. Tillmon experienced a big drop in offensive production in 1988-89, scoring only 8.3 points per game after averaging more than 13 his sophomore year. Bryant will need to run the point smoothly and help with the outside game in order to free up Mourning on the inside.

Yellow Jackets Outlook

Dennis Scott, the prolific 6-8 junior sharpshooter, will be greatly counted on to fill up the nets to compensate for the loss of All-ACC forward Tom Hammonds in 1989-90. Scott attempted 292 three-point shots last season and sank 116 of them. Scott, who scored 20.3 points per game last year and sank a heart-breaking game-winner versus Carolina in March, will have a good deal of help, however, 6-4 senior Brian Oliver, the best rebounding guard in the conference, returns at point, and a touted freshman guard by the name of Kenny Anderson arrives in Atlanta this year. The back court, therefore, looks very solid, but the inside game may tell the story of the season for the Jackets. 6-9 senior Johnny McNeil is the leading returning post man, but he scored only 5.8 points per game and grabbed only 5.3 rebounds in a starting role. Help will have to come from red-shirt 6-11 junior James Munlyn.

Hawkeye Outlook

Sixty-four percent of the Hawkeye scoring attack graduated from last year's 23-10 team, so Dr. Tom Davis will be hard pressed to compensate for the loss of seniors B.J. Armstrong, Ed Horton and Roy Marble. 7-0 Less Jepsen and 6-5 Ray Thompson are the only returning starters, and, while Thompson had a fine freshman season, averaging 11.5 points and 4.5 rebounds, Jepsen only scored at a 4.2 clip in 30 starts. Davis will be looking for scoring punch from 6-9 senior forward Matt Bullard who contributed 9.1 points per game despite a mid-season knee injury that forced him to miss 13 games. 6-7 Michael Ingram missed almost the entire season with a knee injury of his own but will be counted on to add punch down low. Brian Garner and Troy Skinner will vie for Armstrong's vacated point position. Both sophomore guards received valuable experience last year due to Iowa's multi-substitution full court pressure defense and fast breaking offense. The rigors of the Big Ten season probably will provide tough obstacles to overcome for the Hawkeyes, however.

Wildcat Outlook

Coach Lon Kruger is following his word to extend the defense and pick up the tempo by bringing in a group of smaller, more mobile forwards and guards as Kansas State University prepares for the 1989-90 season. All-Big Eight guard Steve Henson is the center of attention, however. He scored 18.5 points and dished out 4.7 assists per game last season and needs only a backcourt running mate to keep the guard play solid. With six rookie guards battling for time at the number two guard slot, a lack of Division I experience may hamper K-State. Five frontcourt players return, led by returning starter Lance Simmons. Simmons scored only 5.3 points per game and will require help from 6-8 center Tony Massop (5.9 ppg., 5.6 rpg) down low. Most likely Kruger will again have to employ last season's frontcourt shuffle, when five different forwards averaged 17 minutes or more per game. A difficult schedule that features 13 games against teams that had post-season action in 1989 will not give him much time to find out.

Wildcat Outlook

After suffering their first losing season since 1926-27, the Wildcats believe that Rick Pitino will rework the magic he spun at Providence and Boston University and rebuild a Kentucky program that faces two years of probation. The Wildcats were hurt by the transfer of second-team All-SEC forwards LeRon Ellis and Chris Mills. Also, point guard Sean Sutton left school, leaving Pitino with a vastly inexperienced squad that possesses only two players who have extensive experience; returning starters Derrick Miller and Reggie Hanson. Miller rebounded from a disappointing sophomore season to score 13.9 points per game last year. The 6-6 senior guard will have to carry the scoring and leadership load, but the 6-7 Hanson (9.8 ppg., 4.5 rpg.) should contribute down low. Sophomore guard Richie Farmer, a former Kentucky Mister Basketball, must improve from a subpar freshman campaign if the Wildcats will be able to be competitive in the tough SEC.

Terrapin Outlook

First-year Terp coach Gary Williams returns to his alma mater and finds some very promising talent on a Terrapin squad that suffered through a disappointing 9-20 season in 1988-89. 6-9 senior Tony Massenburg is a true force inside the paint who is known to rattle rims with his dunks. Massenburg led the Terps in scoring and rebounding last season and could do the same this year, unless 6-11 sophomore Jerrod Mustaf continues to improve. Mustaf employed fine offensive moves and solid rebounding and shot-blocking skills to prove to be the best ACC freshman this side of Virginia's Bryant Stith. 6-8 Walt Williams showed sparks of excellence his freshman year. Williams started 12 games at small forward last year and also saw action in the number two guard slot, earning him the monicker "Mr. Versatility." Junior Teyon McCoy, a starter in 1987-88, returns to start at point guard after sitting out last year to concentrate on his studies.

Hurricane Outlook

A tough schedule and the loss of eight seniors would usually cause alarm for a coach, but Bill Foster's Hurricanes have high hopes for this season, and 6-9 junior Joe Wylie has a lot to do with that. Wylie worked inside for 10.7 points and 8.5 rebounds per game last season. He will have to augment those numbers a great deal for the 'Canes to overcome the loss of three 1,000-point scorers. 6-11 Joe Ross enters his first season at 100%. The junior center had two knee operations his freshman year that hampered his progress last season, but Foster is counting on the big man to help open up Wylie on the inside. Point guard Jake Morton is one of two returning starters, but he and fellow sophomore Jerome Scott will be counted on to handle the ball and score from the outside. Eleven games against 1989 NCAA Tournament teams, seven on the road, will make the going tough for Miami, but the best recruiting class since the program's rebirth five years ago is a good sign for the future.

Wolfpack Outlook

The Pack is loaded even after losing All-ACC performer Chucky Brown; four starters return from last year's 22-9 ACC regular-season championship team. Rodney Monroe's 40-point performance with two game-saving shots in State's 102-96 double overtime win over Iowa in the NCAA's was the performance of the year by an ACC player. Monroe can shoot the jumper on the move, bomb away from 19'9" and score on quick drives to the hole. Junior point guard Chris Corchiani teams with Monroe to form perhaps the best backcourt duo in the nation and joined Monroe on the All-ACC first team last year. Corchiani led the league in assists and opens up the game for the post players with fine driving dish-offs. The low-post game will be left to 6-7 senior Brian Howard, 6-9 Avie Lester and 6-9 sophomore Tom Gugliotta. Howard can score, and Gugliotta showed promise his freshman year, while Lester must stick to defense and rebounding to be effective. State certainly appears to have the horses to go far this year.

Monarch Outlook

The Monarchs are seeking their first Sun Belt Conference title this year, and 6-9 junior Chris Gatling is the key to their hopes. Gatling, a transfer from Pittsburgh, earned All-Sun Belt honors and led ODU in scoring and rebounding last season. Gatling and 6-7 senior forward Anthony Carver give the Monarchs their best frontcourt combination in their history and the best in the Sun Belt this season. Rounding out the starting low-post men will be 6-8 sophomore Ricardo Leonard, who at 230 pounds gives ODU extra muscle inside. 7-0 Chris Kerwin is the tallest Monarch ever and is a project player who could make a big difference off the bench. Senior guard Darrin McDonald paces the backcourt as he enters his third starting season. Point guard was a problem for ODU last season as junior Donald Grant and sophomore Terrance Jacobs struggled at times. But experience and the addition of freshman point guards Donald Anderson and Chuck Evans should solidify the position. The Monarchs gave the Tar Heels a scare in Norfolk last year and will be tough this season also.

Waves Outlook

Pepperdine returns three senior double-figure scorers to the starting lineup in 1989-90, led by 6-7 All-WCC senior forward Tom Lewis, who pumped in 16.2 points and grabbed 5.2 boards per game. Lewis is an inside-outside threat who can score in the lane as well as outside the three-point stripe, canning 44 treys last year. Dexter Howard provides more of the conventional low-post weaponry for the Waves. Howard earned All-WCAC honors also last year. Off guard Craig Davis can fire from the perimeter with the best of them, leading the Waves with 71 three-pointers last season. Davis has started 85 consecutive games at Pepperdine and should combine with Lewis and Howard to give the Waves an experienced and diversified attack which should lead them back to post-season play. Point guard responsibilities will fall to either Shann Ferch or Rick Welch, and 6-9 Damon Braly has the inside track for the starting center position.

Tiger Outlook

Kurk Lee. Devin Boyd. Kelly Williamson. No, not household names, but three very talented returning starters who will make Towson a team the powers better not take lightly come NCAA Tournament time. Lee earned ECC Player-of-the-Year honors in 1988-89 after scoring 25.4 points and stealing 3.4 balls per contest, leading the Tigers to their best Division I season yet with a 19-10 mark. Combined with ECC 1988-89 Rookie-of-the-Year Boyd, Lee heads up one of the more underrated backcourts in the East. Boyd averaged 13.7 points and 4.8 assists at the point last year. Williamson broke his arm last season and missed the last six weeks of the season, bowing out with a 10.5 average. Senior Kennell Jones started in Williamson's place for the balance of the season and will most likely crack the top five at the small forward position. Two Mikes will be expected to clog up the middle, Morin and Colclaugh, that is. Morin saw action last year while Colclaugh sat out with a knee injury.

Cavalier Outlook

The Wahoos' bid for ACC prominence received a pair of severe blows when center Brent Dabbs transferred to Rutgers, and long-time coach Terry Holland announced this to be his last season, but UVa has two aces up its sleeves: Bryant Stith and John Crotty, the two players who led the Cavs to a shocking NCAA upset over Oklahoma and a berth in the NCAA Southeast Regional Final against eventual national champion Michigan. Stith earned ACC Rookie-of-the-Year honors after scoring 15.5 points and clawing for 6.5 rebounds per game out of the small forward slot. Crotty came into his own at the conclusion of 1988-89 and will engineer the Wahoos' attack with the deft ballhandling and excellent driving ability that led to most of his 6.3 assists per game. Junior Matt Blundin is an excellent defender and rebounder who takes the physical heat off Stith inside. The entire Cavalier bench returns this year and this talented compliment, made up mostly of small forwards, including senior Curtis Williams and junior Kenny Turner, will have to perform considering the Hoos will be lacking the natural big man.

Demon Deacon Outlook

Dave Odom begins his first year at the Wake helm with a fine nucleus left over from the Bob Staak era. Odom hopes to lead the Deacs to their first post-season action since 1985, and Wake should not only accomplish that, but also could be the dark horse in the ACC race. Senior Sam Ivy leads a contingent of three excellent returning starters. Ivy suffered from a dehydration complex last year which limited his effectiveness but owns a clean bill of health for this season. Freshman Chris King and Derrick McQueen excited the Deacon fans in 1988-89 but now will be looking for more success on the court to match. King led the Deacs in scoring and rebounding and can score from all over the court. McQueen runs the point with confidence and flair, but Wake lacks depth at the position. Senior David Carlyle is one of the ACC's most dangerous three-point threats, and 6-10 senior Ralph Kitley provides adequate support off the bench.
